PALM SUNDAY Services

Palm Sunday Special Activities At United First Parish

United First Parish Unitarian Church, Quincy Center, will mark Palm Sunday, March 23, with special activities for both adults and children at the 10:30 a.m. worship service.

Esther Sanger, executive director of the Quincy Crisis Center, will speak on the plight of Quincy's homeless this Easter season and non-perishable food items will be collected for dispersal by the Center.

The Church School children will hear the story of Palm Sunday, then join the adult congregation to distribute palm fronds in remembrance of the occasion.

The church's traditional Easter Egg Tree will be assembled during the social hour which follows the service, with members of the congregation invited to decorate and add eggs with Easter messages to the tree.

Palms To Be Distributed At St. John's

Holy Week services will begin this Palm Sunday at St. John the Baptist Church, 44 School St. Quincy Center.

This observance of the passion of the Lord will actually commence Saturday when the blessing and distribution of palms will be done at the 4 and 7 p.m. Masses.

Sunday there will be a solemn blessing and procession of palms at the 9:30 a.m. Mass. Palms will also be distributed at the 7, 8:15, 11 a.m. and 12:30 and 5:30 p.m. Masses.

During the days of Holy Week daily Masses will be Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at 8 a.m., 12:10 and 5:30 p.m.

Holy Thursday Masses

Easter Cantata At Faith Lutheran Church

The cantata "Come Celebrate Jesus" by Bill and Gloria Gaither will be performed at the Faith Lutheran Church on Palm Sunday, March 23 at 10 a.m. The choir will sing under the direction of Barbara Berg.

Piano accompaniment is by Ted Savoie.

All are welcome to attend and refreshments will be served after the performance.

For more information call the church office at 472-1247.

Lenten Service At St. Joseph's

The Rev. Joseph Raeké, Associate Pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Quincy Point, will conduct a Lenten Service Monday, March 24, at 7:45 p.m.

Additional priests will be available for confession.

Palm Sunday Celebration At Bethany Congregational Church

The Palm Sunday worship service and celebration will take place March 23 at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary of Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center.

The entire congregation will join in singing "The Palms" by Faure, as the processional hymn.

The Chancel Choir under the direction of Peter E. Kransinski, organist, will sing as the first selection, "Hosanna to the Son of David" by Willan, and as the offertory John Prindle Scott's composition, "Ride On! Ride On!"

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach the sermon titled, "Behold Your King" based on scriptural texts from Philipians 2:5-11 and Mark 10:32-34. The children of the Sunday School will attend the opening portion of the service in the sanctuary, and Pastor

Arnold will lead them in an "action-scripture" reading. The children will go to their classes from 10:20 to 11:00 a.m.

Harry F. Massey, Jr. will be the lay scripture reader, and the Rev. Joel F. Huntington, associate minister, will serve as liturgist.

Nursery care will be provided during the entire hour for babies and toddlers, under the supervision of Allana O'Shea, Bethany's early childhood coordinator.

The worship service will be broadcast "live" at 10 a.m. over station WJDA, 1300 kc.

At the opening of the service, small missionary palm crosses made by native Masasi Christians in Tanzania, Africa, will be given to all worshippers, gift of the Rev. and Mrs. Elden D.J. Zuern. And at the close of the worship fresh palm slips will be distributed to those attending the service.

At 11 a.m. there will be a fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor with light refreshments.

Also as a dramatic way of reliving the Palm Sunday experience when Jesus rode into Jerusalem on a colt, the foal of a donkey, and was hailed as a king, a live colt will arrive at 11:15 a.m. at Bethany as part of the celebration. The children will be able to ride the colt with supervision, on the Spear Street lawn between the chapel and sanctuary. Adults are encouraged to join the church school children in waving palm branches and shouting "Hosanna." Persons and families from the community are welcome to attend.

For information on any of Bethany's services and ministries, contact the church office at 479-7300.

'Shadows Of Holy Week' At Covenant Congregational

On Palm Sunday, March 23, 1986 at 4 p.m. the Sunday School of the Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts., will present a shadow play depicting the events of Holy week.

The play, entitled "Shadows of Holy Week" will consist of scripture readings by members of the Sunday School and music. The scenes will be represented by cut-out figures silhouetted against a plain, back-lit screen. The project was conceived by the Sunday School Superintendent, Robert Dano, who is responsible for creating the cut-out figures.

The morning worship service will be held at 10:45 a.m. Rev. Fred Lawson's sermon topic will be "Today's Shouting: Tomorrow's Echo."

The sanctuary will be decorated with palm, plants and banners made by Karen Nelson, the current chairman of the church. The choir will sing "The Palms" by Faure and "The Holy City" by Adams. "Jerusalem" by Mendelssohn will be sung by Luisa Dano, accompanied by Richard Smith, organist-choir director.

Other Holy Week services include a Communion Service at the Granite Place Chapel on Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. and a Maundy Thursday Communion Service at 7:30 p.m. March 27. Special music, featuring excerpts from "St. Matthew's Passion," arranged by Richard Smith, will be provided by the choir and Rev. Fred Lawson will reflect on the "Upper Room Experience." Instead of distributing the elements for communion, the congregation will be invited to the altar to share in the sacrament.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"Success" is difficult to define. It means so many different things to different people. It might mean getting all A's on report cards, or living in the "best" neighborhood, or a position of influence.

We all know people who are obsessed with the fear of failure. They place such a premium upon the idea of succeeding that they have difficulty with acceptance of limited success or failure. Yet isn't it true that every day we succeed in some efforts and fail in others?

Vital life is a matter of growth. Growth in understanding, in learning, in human relationships, growth in so many ways, and so often this is related to our value judgments. Isn't it true that what is valuable to one person may not be valuable to another person, and vice versa?

There are some things, however, in life, that assume an importance universally. Recognition of our humanness and seeing it in relationship with a power beyond human comprehension, puts an entirely different perspective upon what is success and failure. That power, God, has made us free creatures, choosing whether or not to honor (and worship) Him. We all have many, many failures during our lifetimes, but if we are in proper relationship with our Creator, we can count ourselves successful.

When the pace of living gets you down, why not think on these things?

Youth Leader Core Participates In Quantum Church Service

The Youth Leader Core, a group of 30 young people and their leaders, participated Sunday morning in the all-church breakfast and special youth service at the First church of Quantum.

The group, which was drawn from across the state, had spent the weekend at the church.

Accompanying the group were its leaders: Linnea Kelly, Martha Kesseli, Arlene Lotti, Rich Stone, Sue Wyand, and Steve Youd, its director.

The Youth Leader Core is a program of intensive spiritual development for teenagers who are trained in six weekend sessions throughout the year. The emphasis is on leadership development and spiritual growth. No church can send more than two young people in a single year.

The program is sponsored by the American Baptist Churches of Massachusetts. The concept of the Youth Leader Core is an idea being promoted across the country by the American Baptist Churches as a denomination (ABC-USA).

Youth participants included Kim Alexander, Joann Black, Nancy Borzomato, Jonathan Davis, Mal Fitch, James Frates, Jennifer Gates, Brad Geake, James Heath, Mindi Hurd, Robert Jope, Kathy Kosinski, Donna Lamb, Laurie Lichtenberg, Maria Littlefield, Andrew Long, Brian Long, Julie Lytle, Michele McDonald, Brian Mosher, Kimberly Pray, Robert Reid, David Roy, Cindy Smith, Cristine Souza, Kathleen Waters, David Williams, Michael Williams, Valerie Williams and Beth Wynne.

Apart from his welcome to the visitors and the pastoral prayer given by church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, the young people in the Youth Leader Core and the church led the entire service.

Valerie Williams gave the call to worship. Jonathan Davis led the opening prayer and the Lord's Prayer, and Brad Geake gave the prayer of dedication. He was assisted by Joann Black at the time of the offering.

Ushers were Diane Ahearn, Sandra Ahearn, Bonnie Adams, Steven Catton, Steve Champa, Mal Fitch, Kim Pray, Reece Thornton and Mike Williams. Mindi Hurd played the organ in a duet with pianist Mary Ruth Scott on the old hymn, "I Love to Tell the Story."

David Williams preached a sermon entitled "Finding Our Mission." His text was, "But a Samaritan, as he journeyed, came to where he was; and when he saw him, he had compassion, and went to him... And Jesus said, 'Go and do likewise.'" (Luke 10:33-34a, 37c)

The Cherub Choir, which is directed by Mindi Hurd and Susan Scott, sang "Happy All the Time." The Youth Leader Core sang "He Is Alive" and "I Will Serve Him" which included a special witness by Cindy Smith. The Crusader Choir sang the prayer response, "Father, I Adore You." The Youth Choir and the Chancel Choir combined to sing "Thanks Be to Thee" by George Frederick Handel. The Youth Choir also sang "The Power and the Glory" by Eilers.

The hymns were "Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life," "Christ for the World We Sing," "Seek Ye First," "Glory, Glory" and "Now, O Lord, Go With Us." "O Seek Ye First" and "Glory, Glory" the congregation was accompanied by seven guitarists: Robert Dixey, Linnea Kelly, Andrew Ogilvie, Mary Ruth Scott, David Williams, Sue Wy and Steve Youd.

Greeters for the morning were Sandra Stohlberg and her daughter, Deborah. Sandra Ahearn was in charge of the flowers. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Hazel Mayne and Laurie Smith.

Hazel Mayne and her crew of volunteers were responsible for feeding the group throughout the weekend. Robert Potter, director of the Dorchester YMCA, made its facilities available to the young people for showers on Saturday.

This was the fourth of the six weekends for the Youth Leader Core. It will meet again in April at the First Baptist Church in Pittsfield and in June at the First Baptist Church in Wakefield.

The Lenten series on "The Ministry of Jesus" concluded last night on March 19, with a meal/supper at 6 p.m. and the program at 7 p.m.

A Death In The Family

Shuttle Mission 51 L's violent explosion triggered an explosion in our hearts.

The shock, numbness, pain, and devastating sadness have hit each of us like a death in our own family. In front of you stand 7 American Flags, symbolizing our American heroes.

Of the 7 men and women one became famous to us like a sister. Although we knew Christa McAuliffe for only six brief months, we knew her the best because she was everyone's ideal teacher. She had the ability to inspire not only her own students, but an entire nation of "turn onto learning." She and her six companions knew that only a teacher could interest the youth of America in careers in scientific research. She said, "If I could get one student tuned onto what's going on in space, then my job's been done."

Each of the Challenger's astronauts shared common dreams about his or her mission. On today which should have been their fourth day in space, I would like to share these dreams with you.

First, for the youth of America to reach for the stars and expand their horizons.

Second, for every child to have the ability and desire to dream, to imagine and to become awesomely enthusiastic about life.

Third, for every child to have the desire to explore and discover new ideas in a classroom and hopefully in space.

Fourth, for the teachers in our nation to challenge you, the children, with new and exciting ideas and methods.

Fifth, for teachers to inspire you and to become our future scientists, aerospace engineers, astronauts, physicists, pilots, and teachers.

Sixth, for mankind not to dwell on what might have been but, to alter history and the future. And seventh, if a tragedy should occur on Challenger, that this tragedy would not stop the American pioneer spirit from exploring space, science, and life.

Laura C. DiTullio

'When We Think Of Those Seven Dreams'

When we think of these seven dreams, or hear a bell tolling 7 times, or listen to a clock chiming 7 times or multiply 7 x 1 or see 7 balloons reaching for the clouds, we shall remember our 7 heroes:

One Black physicist who left a small town in the south, graduated from M.I.T. in Cambridge, Massachusetts and loved playing his saxophone in space.

One Jewish woman electrical engineer who loved playing classical piano.

One Japanese American aerospace engineer and a Boy Scout who at 13 dreamed of being an astronaut.

One electrical engineer who graduated from Northeastern University in Boston, Massachusetts and couldn't wait for this flight.

One flight commander and one co-pilot who got their rush and their high from soaring through the clouds in their jets and one extraordinary, effervescent teacher from Framingham, Massachusetts who loved her students, her profession and life.

These are your heroes, who we mourn and honor today. Their legacy to you is love. A love of life, science, space and learning. We feel a devastating sadness. We must remember that a life once taken from us can never die in our hearts. These men and women will live forever in each one of us.

Dedication

This past year has been one of renewed interest in space exploration by our young people. Many of us watched and read with enthusiasm the choosing, the training and the planning of our "First Teacher In Space." Christa McAuliffe. The bravery and the spirit of all seven astronauts have touched each of our lives. This special supplement is dedicated to them and the future of our space program.

'Be Proud, Be Great!'

We were very fortunate to have the artist-in-residence program, sponsored by a grant from the Cultural Education Collaborative, here at Broad Meadows with Bart McCarthy and Susan Periale.

As teachers of middle school youngsters, we were pleased to see the tremendous growth of the students who worked with Bart and Susan, the building of self-confidence, the enthusiasm and the pride in their production. The presence of Bart and Susan also helped to create an interdisciplinary study on the topic of Halley's Comet.

Classes in social studies, language arts, reading, science, art and drama became involved in research, creative expression and scientific exploration while awaiting the next arrival of Comet Halley. It was an opportunity for learning and personal growth for all involved. We hope that these photographs and the writings of our students will help us share with you the unique experience had by

BART MCCARTHY

It's Coming

For the last four weeks Bart McCarthy and Susan Periale have been at Broad Meadows Middle School as our artists-in-residence.

Bart and Susan are from the Boston Arts Group. Bart and Susan worked with two core groups made up of the sixth, seventh, and eighth grade. Bart and Susan also visited the reading and some of the language art classes in our school. The time they spent with the core groups was used to write a play on Halley's Comet called, "It's Coming." This play was 45 minutes long and was one act long. This was Broad Meadows' first student play.

Mr. Eugene Creedon, our principal, and also the director of the Broad Meadows Middle School youth theater said, "I thought that the residence was a wonderful time for us here at Broad Meadows Middle School. We achieved our goal of working with a playwright and also a professional actor. We learned to write a play, research one, and stage it."

We were fortunate to be chosen as the recipient of a grant from the institute for the arts which enabled us to have Bart and Susan at our school. We hope that someday we will get another grant and have Bart and Susan with us again.

Students Star In Play About Halley's Comet

On Dec. 3, 1985, Broad Meadows Middle school held a play about Halley's Comet.

The play took place during three different times: the future, the past, and the present. In the future segment, robots took the place of people. The robot characters collected comet dust and particles and compounded it. Then they threw it away. The robots like the comet.

In the past segment, some people were afraid of the comet while some people were very interested in it. The people who were afraid of the comet thought it would destroy the world, start a war, or kill them. The people who liked the comet wanted to look at it all the time. Some people got ideas to paint pictures or take photographs of it. Then, there were others who didn't care about it at all.

In the present segment of the play there wasn't much of a change than there was with the past. Some people are interested and some people are not interested in this subject. The play also included some scenes with Edmond Halley and his wife, a scene with sir Isaac Newton, and a scene featuring the Roman Emperor Nero.

Boys and girls formed a core group of actors. These students were selected by Mr. Creedon and the teachers. The students took the play seriously and were very proud of their accomplishments. When we first met Bart McCarthy and Susan Periale we learned about what we were going to be doing. We had some warm-up exercises to loosen up. There were no scripts handed out. We all gave our ideas and a script came later. Altogether it took about four weeks to get the play ready.

Although the play involved much hard work, it was very enjoyable. Our production had parts in it that were both fictitious and non-fictitious. I think this feature makes the play more interesting. Bart McCarthy and Susan Periale, our Artists-in-Residence, are very nice people who took their time to explain our parts. They were also very patient. I hope someday all of the people who worked in the play can perform something for them so that they will be even more proud of us than they were on the night of the play.

Interview With Bart McCarthy Before The Performance

The following interview took place with Bart McCarthy while he was working with the students at Broad Meadows. Throughout the interview Bart stressed that he believed in a wholistic concept of education.

Q: What are your goals as an artist-in-residence?

A: My goals are:

1. To utilize drama as a tool for developing the critical, conceptual and imaginative skills of our students.

2. To bind together through drama several educational disciplines and the arts.

3. To write and produce a dramatic piece using the appearance of Halley's Comet as the focus.

Q: What were your high points?

A: Hopefully, the play itself will be one of the high points of my stay. Also, I knew immediately when I walked through the doors of Broad Meadows that this school would be a very receptive place in which to work. I loved the spirit and attitude of the students and staff towards our program, Susan, and me. In addition, many students in the core group discovered things about their personalities that were surprising to them.

Q: Did you have any disappointments at Broad Meadows?

A: I have been very happy here. However, (after pausing for a moment) my only disappointment was that I didn't have enough time to work closely with the social studies and science teachers in their classrooms. Two of my favorite topics are whales and Abraham Lincoln.

Q: How did you choose the topic of Halley's Comet?

A: I saw a book in the bookstore on Halley's Comet which interested me. Susan and I felt that the topic was very relevant this year. I also felt the subject was interdisciplinary, including many subjects such as mythology, history, science and mystery.

Bart had much to say about his experiences at Broad Meadows. He feels that theater should be an event and an enjoyable time. All students and teachers benefited by Bart and Susan's residency and gained knowledge from their work.

After The Performance

After the final performance of Halley's Comet, I spoke with Bart McCarthy. He felt that although he liked the efforts of both performances, the second show was better. The first show was in front of the students' peers which is a difficult audience for whom to perform.

The second show had better timing and the students showed better concentration. The evening performance was truly a professional show and most important of all, the students showed respect for each other. Mr. McCarthy ended the interview with, "Be proud, be great!!!"

The Boston Arts Group

Bart McCarthy and Susan Periale came to Broad Meadows Middle School from the Boston Art Group, Inc., in Belmont. We learned that the Boston Arts Group (BAG) has been together for over ten years. BAG works with teachers and students instructing creative drama, creative movement, mask making, mime, dance and theater improvisation, play production and research creativity. The group uses drama as an educational tool in the subject areas of history, literature, science and culture appreciation.

The artists of BAG also perform in various productions.

Last year, Al Eaton, a member of the group, performed at Broad Meadows as Martin Luther King, Jr. in his production of M.L.K. Recently, Bart McCarthy performed at Broad Meadows as Abraham Lincoln. The Boston Arts Group also produces various other performances such as Beauty and the Beast and synapse dance theatre.

Comet Celebration

The sixth grade art classes at Broad Meadows Middle School participated in an interdisciplinary celebration of Halley's Comet by creating original paintings of the anticipated event. Before they began their paintings, they studied comets in their science classes, visited the Planetarium at the Science Museum, and looked at the various ways that artists have depicted comets throughout history.

ARTWORK OF Halley's Comet is displayed by Erica Papkey, Michael Carr and Kelly Reilly.

We're All Waiting

The comet came! The comet has gone! The comet is coming back!

That's what all the students at Broad Meadows will be waiting for! Sometime in late March on a clear night just before sunrise those with hardy souls and inquisitive minds will gather behind Broad Meadows Middle School for the experience of a lifetime - the viewing of Halley's Comet!

The staff and students at Broad Meadows thought this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity was deserving of a party - so evolved the Broad Meadows comet party! In addition to having an opportunity to view Halley's Comet, students will have a chance to view other heavenly bodies through telescopes brought in by staff and students. A special display of projects about the comet and related topics will add to the festive "party" atmosphere. Of course, what would a party be without food! The party will conclude with a "comet breakfast" which will feature some edible creations inspired by Halley's Comet.

The Broad Meadows comet party should prove to be a memorable experience for all of us and one that will leave an indelible mark on our memories of the passage of Halley's Comet in 1986!

The Comet's Return

The 30th return of Halley's Comet has made people all over the world very interested. Space probes, two each from the Soviet Union and Japan, will study the comet. The best encounter with Halley's Comet will be by a spacecraft named Giotto. Traveling at a speed of 152,000 miles per hour relative to the comet, Giotto will pass within 310 miles of the comet's center on March 13, 1986.

The pictures and transmitted data by the spaceprobes may offer us clues to the comet's chemistry and composition. We may also learn more about our solar system.

Under ideal weather conditions we'll have about fifty chances to see the comet between November and mid-May 1986. One can see the comet with the naked eye or one can see it even better with a pair of binoculars. Don't miss the comet!!!

VERA PEPDJOVNIC, Gr. 7

How The Comet Got Its Name

Halley's comet was named after Edmond Halley. Some people think he discovered it, but he really didn't. Many people saw the comet that Halley did. He was the one who figured out that the comet would come in 1758 and would reappear every 76 years later. His predictions were correct! So, the comet was named for Edmond Halley.

Kelly Wilson, Gr. 7

History Of Halley's Comet

Edmond Halley was 26 when he first saw the comet that would bear his name streaking the sky in 1682. Comets were thought to be evil messages sent by angry Gods. But Edmond Halley, drawing on his friend Isaac Newton's Law of Gravity, determined that the comets of 1531, 1607 and 1682 were in fact, the same comet orbiting the sun in a perpetual eclipse. He predicted it would return in 1758 and every 75 or 76 years after that. Edmond Halley died in 1742 and when the comet was spotted by a German farmer on Christmas, 1758, it was named for the astronomer. Halley's Comet will be clearly seen in Massachusetts during March, 1986, and will not be seen again until 2061.

An Interview With Susan Periale

I first met Susan Periale when I participated in the artist-in-residence program. She told me she first became interested in drama when she started acting in plays in junior high school. What she enjoys most about acting is being able to be different kinds of characters.

Susan belongs to the Boston Arts Group. She prefers directing productions more than acting in them. Susan and Bart (the other artist-in-residence) chose the theme Halley's Comet because it was the subject in which they were most interested.

When asked if she had a message for the students she said, "Go for it. Don't be afraid to make mistakes. Look around yourselves, and enjoy life."

Chris Nichol, Gr. 7

Past Appearance Of Halley's Comet

The visit we had from Halley's Comet was in 1910, in that time people believed the Comet would put an end to the world with its fiery tail. This was because in the Bible it said "the end of the world would be caused by fire."

The comet is really not made up of fire, it is made up of dust and gasses. The only solid part of the Comet is the nucleus. The nucleus is made of a solid ball of ice or vapor. That's why the Comet is nicknamed the dirty snowball.

People thought the Comet was pretty, some thought of it as an omen flying through the sky to kill everyone. Some took Comet pills to save them from the Comet. Some just ignored it.

In the 1985-86 return of Halley's Comet the Americans are sending equipment to a Russian Satellite which is going up to space to get information and samples of the Comet tail.

Susan Byrne
Grade 6

Halley's Comet

Halley's Comet comes around every 76 years. It was named after Edmond Halley because he predicted when the comet came and go. He did not discover the comet.

Many people had seen the comet before, but they thought the comet was evil.

If there was a war, or something terrible happened, they thought it was the result of the comet. People also thought the comet was made of flames and fire, some even bought comet pills for protection. The comet is made of chunks of snow and ice. The last time the comet came was in 1910, and now it is here. The comet is visible until the middle of May, then it is gone until 2061.

Raiderettes Like His Family

Bregoli Wishes Season Could Have Gone On Forever

By TOM SULLIVAN

When the North Quincy girls' basketball team lost to Dennis-Yarmouth in the quarterfinals of the Eastern Mass. Tournament, bringing to an end its most successful season, it marked an emotional climax for coach Paul Bregoli and his "second family."

"These girls did more for our program than any others and the seniors completed an incredible four years of basketball," said Bregoli. "They were 9-1 as freshmen, were co-champions of the Suburban League as sophomores, went 11-9 last year as juniors, missing the tournament by one game, and had a 16-4 regular season record and a 17-5 overall mark this year, making the most wins and fewest losses in school history."

"I love these girls like my own family. I have seen them grow and they have seen my family grow. We had a lot of laughs together and, believe me, there were plenty of tears when we lost to Dennis-Yarmouth in the tournament. I just wish the season could have gone on forever."

"These girls were just great, working hard with the younger players and dedicating themselves to be successful. They worked hard in the off-season, playing in summer leagues and taking part in other off-season activities. They set some goals for themselves this year and accomplished two of them, beating Quincy twice and making the tournament. They finished second in the league."

As an example of the closeness of the girls, Bregoli pointed to the fact that senior Eileen Warren, who set many records, spoke to the underclassmen after the season ended and told them, "If you didn't work as hard as you did, we couldn't have done it."

"The girls were very unselfish," the coach added. "Jean Welby, for example, did her job well, playing strong defense and running the team, and Anne Marie Hughes covered the best of offensive players on the opposing teams and sacrificed her point production."

The five seniors who completed four highly successful seasons, were Karen Runge, a three-year varsity starter and the third leading all-time scorer; Warren, the top rebounder and number two scorer; Welby, who set a record for career assists; Hughes, who did a fine job of holding the opponents' high scorers down, and Nancy Lyons.

The girls were just as outstanding off the court as on and did much for the community. They presented a check to Sister Rita for the girls' home on Hancock Street, and gave $100 to start a trust fund in memory of the late Bobby Nolan, son of the former North boys' coach.

"Last year three of the girls, Warren, Welby and Runge, spoke very eloquently before the school committee explaining the many problems with our floor," Bregoli said. "They told of the many injuries suffered by the athletes and I'm sure they had a lot to do with us getting our new floor."

Many records were set by this year's Raiderettes.

Sophomore Nancy Flukes set a record for foul shots in one game, 11, had a season's record of 75 and had a record 79 assists for the season.

Runge tied her older sister Joanne for number of assists in a game, eight against Quincy, was the third leading scorer all-time with 559 points and had 38 career blocked shots. She will join her sister at Bridgewater State College in the fall.

Welby, who led the team in taking charges, set a career record of 154 assists.

Warren led the team in rebounds, with a record 259, was the second leading all-time scorer (Joanne Runge is the all-time leader), blocked 51 shots in her career, including a record 41 this season, and tied Chris Choukas, now at Bridgewater State, for rebounds in a game, 20. She holds the record for career rebounds with over 520.

The team as a whole scored 1175 points, a record for the school.

Although most of the top players will graduate, Bregoli will have an excellent nucleus returning. Anne McGuigan, Flukes, Marybeth Maloney, Karrie Pistorino, Maureen Donovan, Nancy Leonard, Tricia Koski, Lisa Mitton and Maureen Tolson, all of whom dressed for the tournament.

"There are some other fine players coming up from the junior varsity," Bregoli said.

"I have a lot of people to thank for their tremendous help," the coach said. "They are Ed Miller, the boys' coach, from whom I learned a lot; Dave Hohman, Tony White, Jimmy Timmins, Ted Stevens and Ken Panaro, all of whom have contributed mightily to our successful program."

"I think we have done well, considering there is no feeder system, with the dropping of a fine junior high program, and the fact we are the smallest school in the Suburban League. These girls deserve all the credit in the world for what they have accomplished."

Quincy Pee Wee B's Win State Championship

Quincy's Pee Wee B team, sponsored by A & T Movers, won the Pee Wee Division II state championship at Natick, defeating Framingham, 3-2, in the title game.

Quincy was behind, 2-0, at the 7:06 mark of the first period, both goals being scored on power plays. Twenty-two seconds later David Melly bounced a clearing pass off the boards at the red line to Mike Hughes, who carried the puck over the blue line, faked out the defenseman and passed off to Mark Kelleher. Kelleher slammed it past the Framingham goalie to cut the lead in half. A minute and 11 seconds later John Witham fed a streaking Greg Hohmann with a soft pass and Hohmann scored to tie the score.

In the second period both teams displayed good defense and strong offense. Pat O'Donoghue's great play in the Quincy goal was matched by the Framingham goalie. There was no scoring in the period.

In the third period Duane Keegan scored the winner at 2:47 on a 35-foot slap shot Kelleher assisted on the goal. For the next 12 minutes Armando Mancini, Bobby Scott, Matt Swierk, Richie Brooks, Keegan, and Melly played outstanding defense and frustrated the Framingham team.

In the semifinals Quincy faced Plymouth, which defeated Quincy in the semifinals last year and went on to win the state crown. For 36 minutes and 24 seconds of the scheduled 45-minute game, there was no scoring. Quincy appeared to wear Plymouth down with relentless checking, strong defensive play and patience. Hohmann broke the scoreless deadlock with Billy Lydon assisting.

Lydon scored 52 seconds later with Mancini and Mike Wood assisting, and Jamie Tapper iced the win with 1½ minutes left. John Witham and Jeremy Burn assisted. Mancini added an open-net goal with seven seconds left, with Kelleher getting the assist, completing the 4-0 win.

In the qualifying round Quincy topped Plymouth 11, 3-1, on goals by Hohmann, Kelleher and Mancini. Kelleher, Mancini, Brooks, Lydon and Mike Hughes had assists.

Quincy then defeated Revere, 4-1, scoring three goals in the final period. Mancini scored unassisted to open the scoring, but Revere tied it and it was 1-1 after two periods. Kelleher, Hughes and Tapper scored in the third period and Hohmann, Melly and Hughes assisted.

In the final qualifying game Quincy lost to Billerica, 3-2. Witham and Hohmann had the goals and Lydon and Kelleher assisted.

In October, when the team was put together, coaches Gordon Blainey, Ralph Freeman and Walter Swierk set two goals for the team: win the state title and defeat Plymouth.

The coaches praised the play of O'Donoghue and John Bertrand in goal. They combined for a fine 1.6 goals against average in the tournament.

The defensive and offensive skills of Jeff Freeman, the team's leading scorer, who suffered a broken collar bone in an earlier tournament, were sorely missed.

The Pee Wee B's will play in the Perini Tournament in Framingham, then are off to the national tournament.

In posting their first win, forward Deirdre Murphy scored 16 points and averaged 10 points a game, while guards Beth Holt and Paula Tolsen brought the ball down court with Tolsen averaging five points a game. Julie Higgins was the other starting forward and Karen Riesler played center for the young Raiderettes.

Kristin Drake, Beth Hughes and Donna Correnti contributed strong rebounding and Coach Koch observed an abundance of good guard prospects as Kellene Duffy, Debby Panaro, Suzanne Brooks, Michelle Deven, Shelly Lane and Michelle Lynch chipped in with excellent floor play.

Other good rebounders were Kristen Lydon, Sarah Harrington, Laura A. Cox and Dawn Halpin.

Koch, in the first season at the helm, concentrated on learning experience with basics stressed as the girls advance to the junior varsity and varsity levels.

Koch was a guard on the North Quincy girls' team in 1980-81 when the Raiderettes made the Eastern Mass. Tourney under Coach Paul Bregoli. She attended Quincy Junior College where she earned an Associates Degree majoring in Criminal Justice.

ASBESTOS LUNG DISEASE

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS of the 1930's-1970's have lung afflictions because they inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

"The best part about our classes," says Barbara Papile, certified Aerobic Patterns instructor in Quincy, "is that they're fun. You don't end up with aches and pains and the exercise really works."

The dances are choreographed to music rather than having music serve as a background, and the body toning moves are choregraphed right in. The students are also given careful instruction on how to monitor their own heart rate so that the cardiovascular workout is effective and safe.

Aerobic Patterns has been operating in the Greater Boston area for the past seven years. During this time, they have offered a consistent, safe, quality program. Research will attest to the safety of aerobic dance and the attainable fitness results.

AQUARIUS — January 21-February 19
Try to avoid conflict between family obligations and career responsibilities. Health improvement scheme should be prominent among springtime resolutions. Financial advice may require clarification.

PISCES — February 20-March 20
Whether preparing income tax, meeting with financial advisor or balancing your checkbook, don't postpone accounting tasks. Super visor or senior colleague becomes more cooperative and agreeable.

ARIES — March 21-April 20
Public relations activities are highlighted through this period. Your timing is impeccable and your wit sparkles. One caution: be sure to share limelight with your partner.

TAURUS — April 21-May 22
Spring colors suit your style in a week that may feature a promotion, a love note, and a financial news brightener. One caution: be sure to keep correspondence up to date.

GEMINI — May 23-June 21
Thursday-Friday focus on patching up injured relationships. Weekend may include a news bulletin about an on-again, off-again event. Modest financial windfall may arrive by Wednesday.

CANCER — June 22-July 22
Thursday-Friday see an easing up of frictions at the workplace. Weekend focuses on local travel. Property transactions are generally favorable but may require more legwork than expected.

LEO — July 23-August 22
Thursday-Friday may see you mapping out plans for a long term project. Weekend offers offbeat travel opportunities. Personal difficulty may have a positive effect by Wednesday.

VIRGO — August 23-September 22
Abstemiousness prevails; it's easy to forget appointments, and things have a way of going astray. Romance is thriving however, and you're floating like a feather all week.

LIBRA — September 23-October 22
You're on air for much of this romantically upbeat period, with a relationship improving by leaps and bounds. Financial picture requires complete review. Surprise gift arrives by weekend.

SCORPIO — October 23-November 21
News from abroad, which may arrive by the weekend, should solve a long time mystery. Consistency is essential in work or academic environment. In love, variety is operative word.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22-December 22
You can give a friend a much-needed shut in the arm, helping him/her over a major hurdle. Meanwhile, your own obstacle course becomes less complicated thanks to a mystery person.

CAPRICORN — December 23-January 20
Innovative ideas can be put into effect during this uncommonly productive week. Be sure to get all the details before preparing a recipe, repairing a faucet, or conveying a message.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
You have a tendency of monopolizing the limelight and wanting everything yesterday. Your quick wit coupled with high energy level can lead to career advancements by late 1986. Impatience can hinder relationships, let them take their course.

BORN THIS WEEK
March 20th, director Carl Reiner; 21st, actor James Coco; 22nd, actor William Shatner; 23rd, scientist Werner von Braun; 24th, actor Norman Fell; 25th, singer Aretha Franklin; 26th, singer Diana Ross.

Sewer System Fund Referred To Committee

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
Legislation establishing a special account for rehabilitation of the sewer system with money contributed by developers was referred to the City Council's Public Works Committee Monday night.

The home rule petition, introduced by Councilor James Sheets, would have developers seeking building permits contribute up to 1 percent of the assessed full and fair market value of the project.

It would not apply to single family residences if the owner occupies the home as his primary residence for at least one year.

The money would go into the City of Quincy Sewerage Rehabilitation Fund for the funding of engineering, testing, construction and rehabilitation of the sewage pipes, lines, facilities and systems located in the city.

The fund would also provide revenues to do all things necessary to correct, remedy, repair, prevent and prohibit any and all forms of infiltration or inflow from ground water and other sources of water into pipes, lines, facilities and systems.

The legislation would have to be approved by the City Council, mayor, and Legislature.

support the proposal.

Councilor Joseph LaRaia said that he hoped sufficient notice would be given to interested parties on future discussions of the proposal.

LaRaia suggested the council seriously look at the proposal in light of cutbacks in federal funds.

"I think it's a very important step forward to correct the situation," said Councilor Patricia Toland.

Councilor Thomas Nutley said that "I don't question the need, it's an excellent proposal."

"But I'm wary of linkage because it does tend to compromise,"

Sheets responded that the proposal differs from linkage because it is geared to a specific program.

He said it replaces a "two for one" plan whereby developers are asked to take two gallons of sewage out of the system for every one it puts in.

"That's a band-aid type process," said Sheets.

At a press conference earlier in the day, Mayor Francis McCauley said he "very enthusiastically" supported the proposal.

"There's a serious problem," said McCauley. "There's nothing worse than sewerage problems in homes."

Public Works Department Commissioner Paul Anderson also supported the home rule petition.

"It's a new approach and obviously will benefit the city for a long time."

Boston, Massachusetts—
Researchers at a major Boston university are looking into the possible use of television as breakthrough cure for insomniacs.

"Our theory is that, when people can't sleep, they need only watch a little TV to solve that unfortunate problem," said Dr. Howard I. Kno, leader of the research team.

"We see television as a depressant. It's so boring and predictable, we feel it's the perfect sedative."

The doctor does note, however, that people who subscribe to cable TV cannot use TV as a tranquilizer. "Cable offers a wide variety of exciting, stimulating programming: cultural programming,

$2,500 Hike For Council McCauley Asks $10,000 Pay Raise For Self

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The $92,017,245 city budget which will be submitted to the City Council April 7 will include proposed pay raises for the mayor, City Council and School Committee.

Mayor Francis McCauley said that he is proposing the raises for the positions of Mayor and City Councilors to make them comparable to other cities.

The School Committee raises were proposed by member Frank Anselmo at a recent meeting of that body.

McCauley is proposing a raise from $40,000 to $50,000 a year for the position of mayor, and an increase from $6,500 to $9,000 a year for City Councilors.

The mayor's salary would be increased in $5,000 increments Jan. 1, 1987, and Jan. 1, 1988.

The City Council raises would go into effect Jan. 1, 1987.

School Committee salaries would be increased from $100 to $200 per month.

The City Council will have 45 days to deal with the budget, said McCauley, and can reduce items but not add to them.

The budget will take effect July 1, 1986, he said.

Council president Stephen McGrath said that he would reserve comment until the budget is before the council.

"We'll look at it very closely and make a decision at that point," said McGrath.

The mayor's salary was increased from $25,000 to $40,000 in January, 1984, said McCauley.

But the amount is still less than that of many city department heads under him will earn as of Jan. 1, 1987, said McCauley, and lower than that of a number of mayors in other cities.

McCauley said that nine positions in general city government average $49,078, 28 School Department positions average $45,977 and 98 individuals in the Police Department earned over $40,000 during calendar year 1985.

For example, said McCauley, the School Superintendent will earn $63,741; the Police and Fire Chiefs, $56,582; and Commissioner of Public Works $47,015.

"Mayor is a full time position," said McCauley. "We have to effect an increase in salary to keep in line with the people he supervises."

"The gap over city employees earning over $40,000 is widening."

"I think the raise is reasonable, and we can afford it in the City of Quincy."

"Traditionally, it seems that the mayor has to raise his

Big Tuition Cut If QJC Becomes Community College

Yearly tuition at Quincy Junior College could be reduced 50 percent to 75 percent next year if a bill approved by the House and Senate's Joint Education Committee Monday becomes law.

The bill, filed by Sen. Paul Harold and co-sponsored by the Quincy, Beacon Hill delegation, would establish Quincy Junior College as the 16th independent community college in the state.

Yearly student tuition, which ranges from $1,450 to $3,500, would be reduced to $750 if the college becomes a state institution, according to Dr. O. Clayton Johnson, QJC president.

Dr. Johnson was among city and state officials, as well as QJC students, who spoke at the two hour hearing.

If the bill becomes law this year, the earliest that the tuition decreases could go in effect would be July, 1987, according to Harold.

"The thrust of our argument is that this is the last area being served by a municipal college in the state," said Harold.

"The fact that the state took over Blue Hills Institute in Canton last year, adversely impacted the long term future of QJC," said Harold who explained that the institute became part of Massachusetts Community College.

"In effect, it moved into our market area with reduced tuition," Harold said. "As such, we feel the state, by creating this problem, has a responsibility to resolve the status of QJC this year, to put it on the community college system."

"The immediate impact would be a decrease in tuition for students. It would put QJC on a par with other community colleges in the system."

Harold said that the committee and the two chairmen, Sen. Gerard D'Amico and House Rep. Nicholas Paleologos, were particularly impressed with the testimony of the QJC students.

"This is an important first step," said Harold of the bill, which must be approved by the Senate and House of Representatives and signed by the Governor.

"I absolutely feel this is the way to go," said Dr. Johnson, who explained that QJC currently operates on tuition from students and is under the jurisdiction of the Quincy School Committee.

"We have to reduce the cost of day tuition," said Dr. Johnson about QJC which he

Will Shine Shoes To Get Out Of Unemployment Line

By DAN CONNELLY

Michael Howell of 244 Quincy Shore Drive plans to polish up Quincy Center and figures he's a "shoein" to succeed in his new shoe shine business.

Howell's venture was discussed at Tuesday's License Board when he requested a permit to operate such a business.

That request drew unanimous smiles of approval from board members who gave him a temporary permit. Howell, 20, explained that he was "sick and tired" of being in the unemployment line in the summer. During the fall and winter, he installs heating units, he said.

Howell said he got the idea for the business last week when he watched a pedestrian disengage a shoe from a muddy puddle on Hancock St., and voiced despair over the condition of his shoe.

Howell brought the idea home to his father who, Howell said, earned pocket money "way back when" shining shoes in Charlestown.

The youth's "business-on-the-hoof" will consist of a shoe shine box and the desire to succeed. He hasn't yet arrived at what he'll charge per shine and is considering giving free shines to the ladies.

When the hearing ended and Howell descended the stairs someone yelled down: "Go out there and shine up all those dirty soles."

Second Arrest Imminent In Creedon Rape Case

Quincy Police expect to arrest within a day or two a Spanish speaking man, who, along with former Quincy School Supt. Lawrence Creedon, is being charged with the alleged rape of a woman March 21 in Quincy.

Police Capt. David Rowell, Chief of Detectives, said that progress is being made in the investigation and leads are being followed.

Creedon, pleaded innocent Friday at Quincy District Court to charges of rape and indecent assault and battery on a person over age 14.

The sentence for the first offense is a maximum of 20 years, and for the second offense, five years, according to Rowell.

Creedon appeared before Judge Lewis Whitman with his lawyer, Atty. Richard Barry.

He was released on personal recognizance and will return to Quincy District Court April 17, at 1:30 p.m. for a pretrial conference.

A pretrial conference is standard procedure, according to Arthur Tobin, clerk magistrate of Quincy District Court.

At such conferences, the attorney for the defense, Police Department and District Attorney's Office get together to discuss pertinent details of the case to narrowly define the charges, explained Tobin.

If both parties feel they have a strong case, they go forward. If one or the other doesn't, then they may talk about possibly reducing the charge, or some type of plea bargaining, said Tobin.

The courts encourage the conferences because they save time, Tobin said.

Creedon was arrested by Detectives Thomas Healey and Russell Miller Friday about 9 a.m. outside his Viden St. home where the alleged incident reportedly took place.

Police were acting on a complaint by a woman who said she was picked up by the men in Boston's South End. She entered the car willingly, according to police.

The woman is in her 40s, said Rowell, rather than in her 20s as reported earlier.

Creedon resigned as school superintendent in July, 1984, as the Quincy

McGrath Requests Security At Tobin Towers

Council President Stephen J. McGrath has again requested Mayor Francis X. McCauley to provide city funds for security positions at the Tobin Towers elderly housing complex at 80 Clay St., Wollaston.

In a letter to the mayor, McGrath, who represents Ward 5, pointed out the danger of leaving this building unprotected as evidenced by the fire last week at the building, apparently caused by an arsonist.

"Obviously, the need is there to have this building protected by paid security personnel. Funding is available from city sources to pay for security personnel and the city should provide it.

"While I appreciate the argument that the Commonwealth ought to provide the funding, the city should take the responsibility in the absence of the Commonwealth exhibiting any.

"I believe we owe it to the elderly residents to give them some peace of mind," said McGrath.

McGrath Urge Gas Station Clean-Up

City Council President Stephen McGrath urged the License Board Tuesday to take immediate action on erasing an eyesore on and around a vacant gasoline station at Wollaston Ave., and Hancock St.

When informed by McGrath of the present conditions at the property, located near St. Ann's Church, Board chairman John Gillis turned the matter over to Michael Shaheen of the health department.

The board said the property is owned by Joseph R. Riccobene, Coleridge St., East Boston.

Shaheen will report back to the board within two weeks and subsequent action by them will follow.

Pizza-To-Go Shop Approved

Domino's Pizza will be open for business soon in President Plaza, Quincy Ave., after the License Board Tuesday granted Michael Hatfield's request for a common victualer license.

Hatfield, who operates a Domino's Pizza in Weymouth, said his business is designed to take orders over the phone and free delivery service.

Ward Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro appeared before the board and voiced no objection to granting the license.

Police Chief Francis Finn warned Hatfield that delivery people operating three company vans must use caution exiting the plaza and merging with the traffic flow on Quincy Ave.

Hatfield also assured Acting Fire Chief Carl Valanti that company vehicles will observe all fire lane rules.

Besides selling pizzas-to-go Domino's will serve one soft drink, said Hatfield.

NATURAL GAS THE MODERN ALTERNATIVE

Take a big load off laundry costs with a new gas dryer.

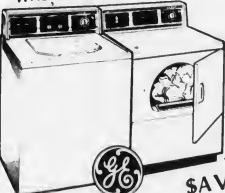

- Nothing dries clothes more economically than a natural gas dryer. Clean, efficient gas dries more loads than electric dryers do for the same cost.
- Nothing dries clothes faster than a natural gas dryer. It moves more warm air through the drying drum.
- A reliable gas dryer maintains its efficiency year after year. Your dryer lasts longer.

Burning calories before you eat them? Take control with a gas range.

- Professional chefs demand natural gas ranges for the precise temperature control they need.
- Only a clean, gas flame adjusts instantly from high heat to low, low to high and everything in between.
- A gas range's flexible flame hugs every size pot and pan perfectly, for total heat distribution.
- With gas, there's no warm-up or cool-down delay. You start cooking instantly, and have control to stop boiling over, burning and spattering.

Sterling Not To Be Closed

$300,000 To $600,000 Needed To Open Wollaston School

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

If the School Committee wants to reopen the Wollaston Elementary School, it will have to come up with the $300,000 to $600,000 needed to renovate the school which was closed in 1982, according to Mayor Francis McCauley.

McCauley was commenting on the School Committee's 5-2 vote last week to reopen the school and create a 10th school district to ease overcrowding at the elementary level.

Voting against the proposal were McCauley and School Committee member Mary Collins.

"I feel that it's not necessary at this time to reopen the school," said McCauley who added that he would not allocate additional money for reopening the school.

McCauley said that the overcrowding, most notable at the Furnace Brook and Parker Schools could be eased by moving the boundary lines for the schools so the students would be more evenly proportioned throughout the city.

School Supt. John Osterman said there was no money in next year's budget to pay for the work on the school which would be reopened in the 1987-1988 school year.

Also during the meeting, the School Committee voted 6 to 1 to reject a recommendation made by the superintendent to close the Sterling Middle School at 444 Granite St.

Mayor McCauley was the only member voting in favor of the closing.

The decision drew applause from 200 parents, students and friends of the meeting who attended the meeting.

Declining enrollments at the middle school level have forced the decision to close a middle school, according to Osterman. "The students are just not there in the numbers we would like," he told the audience.

According to Frances Kabilian, a Sterling alumna and a member of the school's parent-teacher council, the school is in good shape.

"The windows need to be replaced and the brickwork in the front of the building has to be repaired, but on the other hand, it has a cafeteria, a beautiful theater, a track and a very well-kept gym," she said.

The gym, as William Luoy pointed out, is used not only by the school but also by community groups. "It's not just a school," he said. "It's a community center."

McCauley disagreed with the parents' contention that neighborhood schools were better for their children.

"The best thing that can be said about a neighborhood school is that it's convenient," said McCauley.

Also during the meeting, the School Committee approved next year's $28.9 million budget.

HOLY WEEK at Bethany Congregational Church began with a dramatization of Palm Sunday using a live colt. Atop the colt, portraying Jesus, was Jennette Archer. Disciples were Keith Boggs, Ann Buckman, Lisa Chenette, Steven Fernald, Curtis Gifford, Eric Leuchte and Kriasy Massey.

Every working person (even a person already covered by a pension, profit-sharing, SEP or Keogh Plan) can put up to $2,000 into an Individual Retirement Account each year. With a non-employed spouse, the limit increases up to $2,250 per year. And if both work, each may contribute up to $2,000 a year, or a tax-deferred total of as much as $4,000.

The "No-Excuses" Individual Retirement Account.

You've probably thought about opening an Individual Retirement Account before. But you've put it off.

Perhaps because you thought you needed $2,000 to open an IRA. You don't. At Quincy Savings, you can open an IRA with just $10 and earn a money market rate. We're also offering a new IRA Club Account to make it easier to fund an IRA systematically.

Another excuse you may have used is that your retirement date is a long way off. That may be true. But don't forget that every year you contribute to your IRA it's deductible on your Federal income tax return. Which can save you a lot of money.

Depending on your tax bracket, there even are some advantages in borrowing what you want to open or fund your IRA at Quincy Savings, as our free "Net Tax Savings" analysis will indicate. If you qualify, we'll lend you up to $2,000 at an attractive rate, with a one-year repayment plan.

And if you've thought that a year's delay in opening your IRA doesn't make much difference, ask for our free computer-generated projection that will show you exactly how much money you'll lose by postponing your decision for just one year.

There's really no excuse for paying Uncle Sam extra taxes again this year. Especially when you can open your IRA at Quincy Savings for just $10, and select either short or long term certificates for larger amounts. And now Quincy Savings even offers mutual funds and self-directed plans as well.

So come to our nearest office soon, for one of our computer-generated projections and to open your IRA. Or call us at 471-3500, if you have any questions.

Density Increase Would Eliminate Affordable Houses

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
According to the Patriot Ledger of March 20, 1986 the City of Quincy Housing Authority had a joint meeting with department heads, city councilors, state reps. and the governor's office on shortage of housing.

They all agreed that there is a severe housing shortage in the City of Quincy. Now on March 31, 1986 the mayor's office, the city council and the planning board are proposing an increase in density.

Is this not going in the opposite direction?

This increase in density will make the shortage of affordable housing even more severe and eliminate all affordable housing. It does not make sense.

NQHS Students Seek Support On Governor's Title Amendment

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Last year, a group of students from North Quincy High School petitioned State
Rep. Michael W. Morrissey
(D-Quincy) to file an Article of Amendment to the Massachusetts Constitution.

The intention of the article was to change the title of the Governor of Massachusetts from "His Excellency" to "Her or His Excellency."
The class felt that "Her" should be added so that if a woman were elected to the office of Governor, she would get the appropriate title.

A year has passed since the legislation was filed, and the article has gone through the committee process and is waiting for the necessary Constitutional Convention.

There was no Constitutional Convention last year, but one has been scheduled for this April 16. This is the first change our bill has gotten.

Therefore, we are trying to have our story published to bring attention to this oversight by the original framers of the Constitution and to drum up some support from other legislators so we can get it on the agenda and passed at the Convention.

Harold Congratulates Broad Meadows On Quincy Sun Supplement

Editor, The Quincy Sun

I would like to congratulate

It was most impressive and informative, and highlighted the theatrical, historical, at Broad Meadows, through its excellent focus on space

As a graduate of Broad pride in reading the "Broad deserved emphasis to the wide

Condon Has No Regrets

Joanne Condon says she has no regrets.
If she had it to do all over again, she would still run for mayor and not for City Council at-large as some political observers thought she should have.

"No, I have no regrets for having run for mayor," she says. "I really felt it was the time to do what I did."

"It was the time to get up or get out."

Does she miss politics?
"I miss the people," she says. "But then, I still see a lot of them."

Will she try a political comeback? CONDON
"I might possibly run again sometime in the future."

If Councilor at-large Richard Koch, Jr. leaves
Quincy this year to take a new job with Kemper Insurance creating a special election, would she run for that seat?

"Maybe, but I don't think so."

Pressed on the "maybe," she said:

"It would depend on who else is running."

If City Council President Stephen
McGrath was one of the candidates, it is doubtful Condon would run.
They have been good friends and political allies — he in Ward 5 and she in neighboring Ward 6.

But right now, politics is the last thing on her mind.

She's going to U-Mass/Boston "working on a bachelor's degree in political science."

She would like to go to law school.

She recently completed a real estate course and will take the examination for her license in April.

"I might go in the development field," she confides.

She freely admits to being 45 and looking ahead to becoming a grandmother twice this summer.

Her daughter, Susan Beagle is due in May. Her son and his wife, the former Shirley Chan, are expecting in August.

"I'm having the time of my life," she says. "I'm enjoying being me."

Cahill ran in the 1981 election and did pretty well.

He finished fourth in a 10-candidate field in the preliminary election behind Joseph LaRaia, Koch and

But in the final election LaRaia, Koch and Toland

HN Pizza Shop Denied Permit

By DAN CONNELLY

Plans for a new Houghs Neck pizza shop were killed Tuesday by the License Board after neighbors and Ward Councillor Michael Cheney voiced their objections.

Acting too on their own input, the board sided with the objectors and denied Anesti and Georgia Peppas of Brockton a permit to open the business at 1272 Sea St., the former site of Findlay's Market.

The Peppas' plans were to be open seven days a week and they would also sell subs. They would be open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. and the business will be family-oriented.

One abuttor told the board that last year was the first summer the neighborhood has had peace and quiet.

Board members cited past problems with this type of business in the general neighborhood and questioned whether that neighborhood needs another such business.

Cheney said efforts to have a community meeting with the Peppas' failed and he agreed with neighbors at the hearing that the request for a permit be denied.

Parking conditions too added strength to the board's decision.

Scott Deware, a Quincy funeral director and owner of the building where the shop would be housed, was unable to attend the hearing.

45 MPH Speed Limit On Burgin Ext.

If you've become accustomed to using the new Burgin Parkway Extension as a quicker way to get to and from Quincy Center, make sure your foot isn't too heavy on the gas.

Even though there are no posted signs, the speed limit is 45 m.p.h. and Quincy Police have given out some speeding tickets.

According to Lt. John Flaherty of the Traffic Division, police are authorized to give out tickets even though the speed limit is not posted.

Mayor Francis McCauley

said that there has been a delay in erecting the signs because the roadway has not yet been turned over from the state.

According to Public Works Commissioner Paul Anderson, that is scheduled to take place in the spring.

Anderson said he would request that the state erect speed limit signs in the meantime.

The extension, which links Route 3 with downtown Quincy, opened in November, 1985.

POST OFFICE STATION NO. 150 RE-OPENED

Post Office station number 150 (Quincy Point) reopened this week in Stone's Pharmacy on the corner of Washington and Chubbuck Sts.

Peterson Announces For Congressional

David Peterson of Quincy announces that he will run for the 11th Congressional District as a Democrat.

Peterson, 37, is a former Quincy mayoral candidate.

He is endorsed by the National Democratic Policy Committee (NDPC), founded by Lyndon H. LaRouche.

Peterson said, "I am proud to announce my candidacy for the U.S. Congress, following the greatest upset in American Politics since President Truman defeated Governor Dewey.

"Two candidates for major statewide office in Illinois, backed by The National Democratic Policy Committee (NDPC), won their nominations in the Democratic Party primary. Mark Fairchild won the race for Lieutenant Governor, and Janice hart won for Secretary of State with vote totals of 380,000 and 369,000 respectively.

"I say that these victories indicate a willingness on the part of the American people to endorse the LaRouche program, and to repudiate the Carter-Mondale leadership of the Democratic Party. Republican Governor of Illinois, James Thompson said "it proves that you cannot take the voters for granted."

"The NDPC now has over 750 national candidates, with close to 200 for U.S. Congress. We now have a total of five Congressional Candidates in Massachusetts and we will add more.

"I will be raising a number of critical issues facing the country; stopping the deadly AIDS epidemic by implementing full Public Health Measures, a crackdown on all drug trafficking, and the need to make development and nation building our policy at home and abroad.

"My opponent, Brian Donnelly did less than nothing to stop the closing of Fore River Shipyard. I will continue the fight to save it."

South Shore Bank

To Celebrate 150th Anniversary

Festivities including a parade will mark the 150th Anniversary of the South Shore Bank of Quincy.

South Shore Bank was the first bank in America to be started by a public stock subscription and the first bank in New England to have a "curbside teller."

The parade, which begins at 8:30 a.m. Monday, March 31 from Quincy City Hall. Dignitaries participating in the parade will be the Quincy High School Band, Mayor

WILLIAM B. AUSTIN
Dwyer, Senior Vice President.

Affiliated with Multibank Financial Corp., the bank has 34 Banking Centers from Wellesley to Cohasset, including the main office on Hancock Street in Quincy Square.

Other "Charter Day" events are: the unfurling of the 150th Anniversary banner in the Main Office after the parade; cutting of a large cake while the high school band plays Happy Birthday.

There will be a register in the Main Office and at each Banking Center for the public to sign. These signatures will be placed in a Time Capsule, along with other memorabilia to be opened Monday, March 31, in the year 2036.

There will also be a special sweepstakes with lots of great prizes. People can sign up for these prizes at each of the Banking Centers and the drawing for the winners will take place on April 8, 1986.

Blood Pressure Screenings

Quincy City Hospital will conduct free blood pressure screening for the public Tuesday, April 1, 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., in the Ambulatory Care Department.

The screenings, performed by nursing staff, will enable individuals to keep track of their blood pressure, and be aware of dangerous elevations in the pressure. Persons in need of referral to a physician, will be advised to do so.

The screenings, which will take place on the first and third Tuesday of each month, are free of charge.

Quincy Builders & Businessmen's Association

406 Willard Street
Quincy, Ma. 02169

The following example will show you how they are eliminating all affordable housing in the city of Quincy.

Example #1: Under the present proposed change of 1,000 sq. ft. density per unit: on a lot of 100,000 sq. ft. you would be able to build 100 units under the proposed, with the new change you could build only 50 units. This would double your land cost, therefore, the units that were to sell for $89,900.00 now would have to sell for $19,900.00 an increase of 45%, because of the reduction in units and increase in density.

If you bought the unit for $89,900.00 your monthly payment would be $724.00 per month principal and interest. If you had to buy the unit for $129,900.00 your monthly payment would be $962.00 per month, this would be an increase of $238.00 per month or 45% increase.

The above shows how all affordable housing would be taken away and in this climate of low interest and a good economy why cause an added shortage in the already short housing market in our city of Quincy.

Please come March 31, 1986 at 7:00 p.m. Voice your opinion, preserve your rights.

QUINCY BUILDERS & BUSINESSMENS ASSOCIATION
D. BUCCHERI, SECRETARY 471-6074

Help Again

To the concerned citizens of Quincy, on March 31, 1986 at 7:00 p.m. a joint public hearing will take place between the Planning Board and the City Council to discuss the proposed zoning change in P.U.D. zoned areas. The Council, Planning Board and the Mayors Office are considering increasing the density in this zoned area by SEVEN HUNDRED PERCENT (700%). The current density is 250 sq. ft. per unit, their proposed change is 2,000 sq. ft. per unit. The Builders are asking both the Planning Board and the City Council to stay with the original proposal of 1,000 sq. ft. density per unit. By increasing the density more, a hardship would result reducing the availability of affordable housing in the city of Quincy for our children and families.

See example →

If you are concerned about affordable housing, please come to the City Councilors Chamber McIntyre Government Center (Formerly Old City Hall) at 7:00 P.M. Sharp.

THE GLORY OF EASTER

'Easter And Snowflakes' Sermon At Bethany Church

The resurrection of Jesus Christ will be celebrated Easter Sunday, March 30, at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary of Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center.

The service will open with a choral introit and a fanfare with brass, timpani, and organ, composed by Bethany's organist, Peter E. Krasinski.

The chancel choir will sing two anthems "Litany for Easter" by Gordon Young, and "Praise Ye The Lord" based on Psalm 150 by Cesar Franck, the childrens choir will sing "Allelu" by Repp.

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach the sermon titled, "Easter and Snowflakes," based on the scriptural text from the Gospel of Matthew 28:1-9. The lay scripture reader will be Louise B. Forsyth.

The associate minister, Rev. Joel F. Huntington, will serve as liturgist and lead the Easter prayer, "An Act of Joyful Adoration."

Nursery care for babies and toddlers will be provided under the supervision of Bethany's early childhood coordinator, Allana O'Shea.

Some 140 lilies will fill the chancel as symbols of Christ's resurrection and as memorials. The lilies will be given to persons confined at home, in hospitals, or in nursing homes, and will be distributed by members of the congregation.

The morning will begin with an early Easter service at 7 a.m. on the Wollaston Beach between the two yacht clubs.

An Easter breakfast will be served at 8:30 a.m. in Bethany's social hall for church members and friends. The cost to cover expenses is $2.00 for adults and youth, and $1 for children.

The breakfast is sponsored by the Christian Education Committee under the leadership of Harry F.

Massey, Jr. Kenneth Fernald will be the chief chef assisted by a crew of seven men, and some 20 young people and youth advisors will serve the breakfast.

Last year, over 200 persons came to the breakfast, sitting down to eat at the same time as a church "family." Church School classes will not be held on Easter so that children can attend the breakfast and worship with their families.

Following the Easter service there will be a fellowship hour at 11 a.m. in the Allen Parlor.

At 11:15 a.m. an Easter egg hunt, sponsored by the Bethany Mother's Club, will be held on the church lawn for children, toddlers through 3rd grade.

The beach service, breakfast and worship service are all open to the public.

For additional information on these and other programs and ministries of Bethany, contact the church office at 479-7300.

Squantum Church Plans Sunrise Service

Four young people were confirmed at the First Church of Squantum on Palm Sunday.

They were Andrew Ogilvie, Deborah Stohberg, Susan Scott and Sarah Milgram. The service was pre-ceeded by an all-church breakfast sponsored by the young people of the church.

Worshippers were greeted at the door to the church by a large colorful cartoon of the first Palm Sunday. It had been done by young people at the Brockton Diagnostic and Assessment Unit in one of the activities that church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin does there as a chaplain each week for The Way Up, a specialized ministry to teenagers.

Cliff and Shirley Mason were the greeters for the morning. The service began with a Palm Sunday litany read by the congregation and the pastor. Palms were distributed by Sam and Jeffrey Corey, Blythe Bumpus and Kristen Reister.

Assisting the pastor during the confirmation were Stewart Scott, Chairman of the Board of Deacons, and Evelyn Ahearn, Senior Deaconess. After the confirmation, the four confirmands were welcomed into the church with the right hand of fellowship and many enthusiastic hugs from a group of people representing the whole congregation, including Dr. Langevin, Stewart Scott, Evelyn Ahearn, Charles Todd, Genevieve Todd, Don Frazer, Patti Hurd, Tore Wallin, Hazel Mayne, Steven Williams, David Williams, Ellen Ogilvie, Sandra Stohberg, Mary Ruth Scott and Marie Milgram.

Each of the young people confirmed received a white carnation from Patti Hurd as Chairman of the Board of Christian Education and a certificate of confirmation from the pastor.

On March 27 there will be a special Maundy Thursday service at 7:30 p.m. On March 28, Good Friday, members of the congregation are encouraged to attend the community service at the Quincy United Methodist Church in Wollaston from noon to 3 p.m.

On Easter morning, March 30, a Sunrise Service will be held at Moswetuset Hummock at 8 a.m. with a light breakfast back at the church after that. The traditional Easter morning worship service will be held at 10:30 a.m.

Edward R. Connolly, 46, Firefighter Killed In Freak Accident At Fire

More than 3000 firefighters in dress blue uniforms were called to attention by the beating of muffled drums to bid farewell to Edward R. Connolly, a 46-year-old West Quincy resident, the first Boston firefighter to die in the line of duty in five years.

Connolly was killed in a freak accident early March 21 while battling a nine-alarm fire on Mercer St. in South Boston.

During the fire, a 20-foot-high tree trunk fell on Connolly when the front of 4 Mercer St. collapsed. He died later at Boston City Hospital.

Firefighters, some from as far away as California, jammed St. Agatha's Church in East Milton and tendered a misty farewell to a fallen comrade while others lined up six deep outside in a blue blur that stretched for blocks in both directions on Adams St.

It was a moving tribute as the cortege made its way toward the church through streets filled with silence after assembling at the Dolan Funeral Home, 460 Granite St., Milton.

Cardinal Bernard F. Law, in a special gesture, shared the grief of the Connolly family by presiding at the celebrated funeral Mass. Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn, Governor Michael Dukakis and other dignitaries knelt side by side with friends and neighbors.

Rev. Francis Turke, in his main homily as pastor of St. Agatha's called Connolly "an honest-to-God firefighter. He gave the ultimate. He gave his life—the epitome of giving," Fr. Turke said. "No greater love has any man than he who gave himself. Ed Connolly was real, he was a figment of no man's imagination."

Cardinal Law told the congregation that Connolly belonged to "the noble profession of firefighting."

"What would it be like if there were not men who are willing to put their lives on the line for us?" he asked.

Law then turned to Mrs. Pauline Connolly and the two Connolly children, James 25, and Barbara, 20, and said: "We thank God for him. We give thanks to God for all those who, like him, day-in and day-out put their lives on the line for us."

Burial ceremony was later held at Forest Hills Cemetery in Jamaica Plain, followed by a somber reception at Florian Hall in Dorchester, headquarters of the firefighters union. The flag at the hall was half staff.

Nine families were left homeless by the fire, which did an estimated $350,000 damage. A department investigation revealed that the fire was started by an improperly connected gas hot water heater.

D. Scott Deware.

"Out of the mouths of babes". This has always been a favorite expression of adults. This brings to mind the story of a family who came to church on the Sunday after Easter and found the parking lot filled to capacity. The young son exclaimed, "They must still think it is Easter."

He had gone to the heart of the matter, as small children are often inclined to do. He suggests the central meaning and challenge of Easter. If Christ be risen and alive, then it puts our lives in a new dimension both here and hereafter.

Easter does not end with the celebration on Easter Day. Should it not be continued in our lives with a daily renewing of the living spirit of Christ? Otherwise we shall have missed the Easter faith.

The real test of Easter is what follows after Easter Day when we have heard the Resurrection story and our Lord's promise: "Because I live, ye shall live also." Shouldn't Easter be for each day of the year — a continuing experience? ...

In Sun Spotlight Things Really Sweet At Sweets 'n Things

By DAN CONNELLY
"How sweet it is!" aptly describes Sweets 'n Things, 1470 Hancock St., Quincy Center which offers a rare commodity today; originality of its product line, personal and creative service.

Eileen Cohen, owner of the store, invites everyone to stop by, whenever that special occasion arrives, like Easter, or just to fill your sweet tooth. Products are also available for those who are on a restricted diet.

Her candy section will make chocaholics think that they are in heaven. The uniqueness of gifts and novelties will make even the most creative individuals cringe with jealousy that they didn't think of the idea.

Eileen believes that gifts are interpreted as an extension and reflection of the giver. She believes her customers should have the freedom to create gifts to their liking. "My shop encourages the customer to be the master designer. The price of a gift has no bearing as to what the gift looks like. No matter what price range you choose to spend, when you walk out of the store you feel like your gift cost a million dollars. Bright colored ribbon, tissue paper and stickers add to the elegance of the gifts.

"As an example, for Easter, why not eliminate giving the conventional plastic Easter basket and give instead a bunny-balloon-in-a-box," suggests Eileen.

"This is a new concept for the store. You start with a selection of numerous Easter balloons, add a stuffed bunny and choose from the vast array of Easter candy. Put it all in the box which is already decorated with a bunny and watch the surprise on the face of the one you give it to when they open the box."

For customers on a disciplined diet, the store has sugar and salt free chocolates and taffy to satisfy their sweet

IDEAL EASTER GIFT — Eileen Cohen, owner of Sweets 'n Things, prides herself on this bunny-balloon-in-a-box creation — a gift personally designed for Easter.

Contemporary marriage: A blending of traditional with personal tastes

Today's couples have many wedding and lifestyle options

Sophisticated splendor

Marriage today has no one formula. Gone are the days when those who married settled into one particular lifestyle. Today, married couples are more aware than ever before of the different lifestyle options available to them.

On the average, partners are older, more sophisticated and better educated than ever before. All these factors contribute to making today's bride and groom more equipped to decide what lifestyle is best for them.

And, there are many lifestyle options open to young couples today. Whether you opt for getting married when you are older or younger, or decide to have a dual-career marriage or a more traditional marriage, one thing most brides and grooms agree on is that you can make your marriage what you want it to be.

This type of freedom has had a positive effect on the institution of marriage. Young couples now share more of the responsibility for planning a wedding and deciding what type of life is right for them.

When both parties take an interest in the planning, the results are a very personalized, joyous occasion. Planning a wedding the way you want, like planning the type of life you want together, is an expression of what you, as a couple, are "about."

Today's weddings are a combination of yesterday's tradition and your own creative touch. It is not unusual today to see a wedding where the bride wears a traditional wedding gown complete with long train and veil, but refuses to go along with the traditional wedding vows in which she promises to "love, honor and obey."

Most couples take what they feel comfortable with, in terms of tradition, and then add their own personal style.

People are more relaxed today when it comes to wedding etiquette. Many brides and grooms share in the cost of the wedding celebration, and what is even more popular is the sharing of wedding expenses between both the bride and groom's parents.

Rules of proper dress have also eased up considerably. At one time, it was thought appropriate for the groom and his ushers to wear tuxes only for an evening wedding.

Today, it is not unusual to spy a groom and his ushers dressed in tuxes or tails for a noonday wedding. They might even be wearing a plaid, pastel or bright red tie and cummerbund.

The traditional bridal shower has also been updated. Once thought to be a time for girlfriends, aunts and mothers to get together and shower the bride with gifts and words of wisdom, today's bridal shower is more likely to be a cocktail party for both the friends and family of both bride and groom.

A PROFESSIONAL PHOTOGRAPHER can capture that special moment between the bride and her father.

Professional photographers capture the true wedding spirit

A wedding is an act of love, a joining of families, a celebration. But once the cake is eaten and the bouquet thrown, what's left of this special day? Your photographs.

Since the photographs are the one thing from your wedding day to have lasting emotional value, all the more reason to contract a professional photographer who has the experience, technical expertise, versatility and imagination to tell your wedding story in photographs.

Here are some suggestions to help you select the right photographer:

- Begin your search early, particularly if you are getting married in the popular months of June, July, August or September—the busiest seasons.

- Interview a variety of photographers before making your final decision. Select a photographer whose style suits the images you'd like to capture.

- Carefully review your photography needs and budget after selecting a photographer. Remember that wedding portraits of the bride and groom can be taken in advance for the newspaper, and some studios offer bridal packages that include candid shots for a set fee.

Other professionals charge an hourly rate for photography and an additional fee for prints. Cost ranges from about $200 upward, with the median price hovering somewhere between $350 and $750.

- Your photographer also should be willing to discuss various components of the bridal portrait such as hairstyle and makeup, which reflect your true image. It's a good idea not to change your hairstyle or color for your portrait sitting.

- The location is also an important component of your portraits. Professional photographers can suggest an attractive park location as an alternative to the more traditional church or synagogue setting.

- Once the poses are selected, consider the number and size of the prints you need. Most professional photographers use Kodak film and paper for quality portraits. Remember that your wedding photographs are also suitable for gift-giving as an album for your parents, personal thank-you notes, gifts and holiday cards. And, wedding portraits can also be enlarged and framed, adding personal elegance to your home.

Set your cost priorities early.

Planning a wedding is wonderful and exciting, but it's costly as well. Proper planning and setting your priorities straight early on can help you to cut down on costs.

Concentrate on those things that you feel make your wedding special and unique. That way you can cut corners on those things that aren't as important to you. Determining early on what mood you would like to create will make things easier when it comes to determining costs.

The '80s is a decade of numerous options, but the only way to feel happy about the type of lifestyle you choose or the type of wedding you plan is to follow your own instincts, because you don't have to follow one formula!

Unexpected origins of wedding customs

It happens in every wedding: The bride and groom exchange rings. They share cake. The bride throws her bouquet. But do you know how these customs began? THE BRIDE: A Celebration (Harry N. Abrams, Inc.), a book by Barbara Tober, Editor-in-Chief of Bride's magazine, reveals their sometimes surprising origins.

The bride throws her bouquet so an unmarried friend can "catch" some luck in romance, goes the modern explanation. But the custom actually started as a form of self-defense.

In times past, belief in the mystical value of a bride's adornments prompted friends and strangers alike to try to grab a piece of her outfit. Eventually, some clever bride found that by flinging her flowers away from herself, the crowd would have something to fight over—and she would escape intact!

The wedding party originally served the serious purpose of protecting the bride and groom from the curses of evil-wishers. They dressed in clothes exactly like those of the bride and groom, so the identity of the happy couple was kept secret on the way to the church and until they were safely married.

The first piece of wedding cake is cut and eaten by the bride and groom as a carryover from the time when the sharing of food or wine often was the marriage

The aisle runner protected the bride from evil spirits who, it was thought, lived below the ground. These demons were also feared to lurk around doorways, hence the bride is carried over the threshold of her new home.

Rice symbolizes the age-old hope that the couple will be as fruitful as the earth. We clink glasses when we toast the bride and groom in order to produce a bell-like sound (bells were believed to be repellent to the devil).

"The kiss," as a significant moment in the wedding, dates from the Roman Empire. At that time, the betrothal ceremony consisted of a kiss and the exchange of rings, with the kiss being the actual legal bond.

The trousseau, or dowry, was actually an early form of life insurance since it was meant to ensure that the bride could survive without her husband if the need arose.

We wear the wedding ring on the third finger of the left hand because the pharaohs of Egypt believed a vein, the "vena amoris," ran from that finger directly to the heart.

The honeymoon began, when, in ancient marriages by capture, the groom kept his bride in hiding to prevent searching relatives from finding her.

PURE LINEN SHEETS promise sweet dreams. Telene's sunny pastel stripes combine contemporary good looks with softness, strength and absorbency. On the breakfast tray, more linen treats: A striped mat (Telene), a hand-woven napkin with Lurex sparkles (Tessilarie) and classic linen napkins with spoke stitching (Sferra).

A LINEN DREAM HOME. Palest peach linen (Glant Fabrica) wraps the walls. A mirrored ceiling reflects a table set with embroidered linen mats, antique sterling and Baccarat crystal. The apartment belongs to Barbara Taylor Bradford, author of A Woman of Substance and Hold the Dream, and her husband.

Linen brings practical beauty to newlywed's homes

You've done it! You're engaged and the celebrations have begun. Your newlywed lifestyle may be traditional or that of a two-career couple. It may include a ready-made family of stepchildren as well.

A lifetime of dreams will become realities as you create a new home unit together, one that will symbolize your happiness to all those who share its warmth.

Whether your taste leans to luxurious formality or strong contemporary looks, think of linen as you gather the treasures for your new home.

This elegant fabric, a versatile favorite since the Egyptian Pharaohs, is in demand today for upholstery, drapery, wall-coverings, sheets, towels and all manner of table textiles.

Available in a wide range of colors and textures, linen presents a patrician facade with multiple practical characteristics: High absorbency, durability, anti-static (dust repellent) and anti-allergenic qualities, sound and thermal insulation.

Pauline V. Delli-Carpini, Director of U.S. Operations for the International Linen Promotion Commission, sees the return to linen textiles for the home as "part of a growing demand by the American consumer for the quality and performance found in natural fibers."

Linen for the walls and windows

In first homes, bedrooms often do double duty as home offices, dens or libraries. Guest rooms can be found in a living room sofabed. Walls covered with linen wall-coverings (woven or warp-lay), or upholstered in linen fabric, insulate multi-use rooms from extremes of noise and temperature.

Available through interior designers and design departments of fine stores, linen wallcoverings come in a dazzling array of colors and restful naturals, in traditional and contemporary prints, stripes, solids, geometrics and velvets.

The International Linen Promotion Commission, 200 Lexington Ave., #225, New York, NY 10016, offers detailed instructions on how to cover walls with linen by the staple method (To Staple Wall-coverings, 25¢ per copy).

At windows, sheer linen casements can provide privacy without sacrificing sunlight. Heavier linen draperies adapt gracefully to traditional or modern window treatments. Another option: Vertical blinds laminated with linen. The play of light on linen's rich texture is particularly attractive on the vertical slats.

Linen for bed and bath

The flax fiber used to make linen looks like bamboo under a microscope. Its hollow structure makes linen "wick" moisture more quickly than other fibers, which translates into wonderful sleeping comfort on smooth, luxurious linen sheets.

"Also, the emphasis placed on quality in design reflects the rich artistic heritage and respect given to Western European craftsmen and designers and the products they create."

Some firms, such as New York-based Belgamer, even custom-design linen sheets to harmonize with bedroom decor. Linen sheets cost more, but they outlast other sheets to such a degree they are often called "heirlooms of the future."

In the bath, linen towels are absorbent, lint-free, and sanitary. The flax fiber is extremely smooth, so linen traps very little dirt and makes a poor breeding ground for germs.

Linen terry "friction" towels, popular in Europe for saunas, soothe sore muscles and polish complexions.

Linen towels can also be had in elegant damasks, huck weaves, and contemporary stripes and solids, trimmed with lace, cutwork or embroidery.

And unlike many synthetics, linen will not "pill" or gray with age, but grows softer and more lustrous with use.

Look for linen sheets, towels and table textiles at better department and specialty stores.

Linen and the pleasures of the table

With the rise of gourmet and regional cuisine, entertaining at home is "hot" again. And how tables are "dressed" is scrutinized as closely as the menu.

With the variety of linen table fashions available, you can tease the eye with style and color as you tease the palate with a balance of flavors.

Elegance, durability and ease of maintenance can be yours in table textiles of pure linen and linen/polyester blends.

Stately linen damask can serve as a foil for the drama of special occasion menus. And brightly colored or handwoven linen mats and napkins can underline the fun of a brunch for two.

A special personal touch can be added to your table design with linen napkin sculptures. Ten easy folded designs are described in Fold a Pretty Napkin, 25¢ per copy from the International Linen Promotion Commission.

Each linen napkin sculpture gives a different look, from the formal Bishop's Hat to the tailored Double Diamonds and charming Candle, perfect for birthdays — and wedding anniversaries.

Good eye care routines that will give the glowing bride eyes that sparkle

To be a glowing bride, your eyes should glow too. But with hectic wedding plans you may be too busy to care for eyes properly. The time to start is now.

You're the center of attention these days ... contact lens wearers, don't risk red, allergic eyes by using lens care solutions with the irritating preservative thimerosal. CooperVision's Unisol® Preservative-free Saline Solution is ideal for easy lens care and Unisol comes in convenient single-use vials that are great for short honeymoon excursions. Unisol® 4 Sterile Saline Solution is available in larger 4-ounce bottles for longer vacations.

Lubricating and cleaning lenses

Weddings mean parties. Parties mean lots of smoke which quickly irritates your eyes. Contact lens wearers can have fast relief with a rewetter specially designed for contacts called Clerz® 2 Lubricating and Rewetting Eye Drops from Cooper-Vision Pharmaceuticals Inc. This solution lubricates lenses while removing possible irritants from the eyes — all while lenses are still in place. An added plus for brides on the go!

Only deposits can build up on lens surfaces, causing eye irritation and "foggy vision." Since you don't want to resort to eyeglasses on your wedding day, keep your lenses really clean with Pligel® Cleaning Solution. Pligel is a thimerosal-free cleaner that is both gentle and effective. And Pligel has 15 times more cleaning agent than any other cleaning solution available.

Relief for dry eyes

Late night wedding planning and celebrating can rob eyes of much needed moisture, causing them to become dry and irritated. For relief, many doctors recommend that non-contact lens wearers use an artificial tear solution. HypoTears® Lubricating Eye Drops is an artificial tear that soothes, moisturizes and supplements the eye's natural tearfilm. And HypoTears is low in salt ... a big plus for burning, dry eyes.

If you've considered switching to contact lenses to show off your beautiful eyes, but thought you couldn't wear them, think again! Recent scientific developments in lens materials have enabled many previous eyeglass wearers to comfortably (and beautifully) wear soft contact lenses. But, remember, even soft contact lenses require proper care.

Start now with good eye care habits and you'll never regret your decision. You're going to be beautiful from head to toe on your very special day.

FOR SPARKLING EYES ON YOUR SPECIAL DAY, begin healthy eye care habits early. Reprinted from Bride's. Copyright © 1985 by the Condé Nast Publications Inc.

Including the older member of the wedding

When an older, single woman is asked to be a bridesmaid for a younger relative or friend, her reaction is often mixed. She's pleased at the honor, but apprehensive, too. Will being part of all the wedding plans and traditions make her look and feel like an "old maid"?

A recent issue of Bride's magazine has this advice for the bride on how to make an older attendant most comfortable:

Understand her feelings. Realize that it's possible for your friend to be delighted for you — but still feel somewhat wistful. If she would like to be married herself, but "Mr. Right" has yet to show up, a woman might wonder what's keeping him. This can make close involvement with a wedding difficult for her.

Head off comments by others. Well-meaning wedding guests can make matters worse by asking your friend "And when are you getting married?" or announcing,

"It's your turn next!" Your friend can most likely deal with these tactless comments herself, but you might help.

The best response is usually a light-hearted one that immediately changes the subject. If you notice your aunt interrogating your single maid, don't hesitate to interrupt by suggesting that your maid join you to greet your college roommate — at the other end of the room.

Plan with sensitivity. There are some practical considerations you might make for an older attendant. For instance, the dresses you've chosen for your younger maids may look too "girlish" on an older woman. Perhaps she would wear a more sophisticated version of the style.

Another consideration is the bouquet tossing. If your older attendant is sensitive about being single, throwing the bouquet very deliberately in her direction is like hiring a skywriter to announce her eligibility.

A BRIDAL SHOWER BRUNCH is made easy when each guest brings a dish such as muffins and gives the bride the pans. The delicious main course is Farmer's Eggs, prepared at the table in an electric skillet, coated with "SilverStone", the premium non-stick surface.

New twist on an old idea..

A bridal shower brunch starts a marriage right

If you're planning a bridal shower, here's a new twist on an old idea. Why not hold a Sunday brunch where the guests bring the goodies as well as the gifts?

"Brunch parties are more popular than ever," says Alison Pulver, consumer consultant for Du Pont "SilverStone". "And what better way to get the bride and groom off to the right start than by showering them with kitchen essentials they'll need to prepare years of delicious meals?"

"You can make the new bride's life a lot easier by giving her cookware with 'SilverStone' premium nonstick surface, for cooking convenience and easy cleanup," Pulver says.

"The 'SilverStone' certification seal assures that you're giving a quality gift, backed by Du Pont's unique quality control program."

Tips for easy entertaining

The Du Pont consultant offers these suggestions for a shower that will leave the hostess free to spend time with her guests:

- Make up the menu and the guest list at the same time. Ask each guest to bring a side dish to the shower and, as a gift to the bride, the cookware in which it would be prepared.

For example, the friend who brings blueberry muffins might give the bride a set of muffin pans with "SilverStone"; the one who bakes fruit-nut bread or coffee cake for the party might give leaf and cake pans that clean up with no effort; the guest who prepares a quiche can bring the bride a glass or plastic casserole dish with "SilverStone" that can be used in microwave and conventional ovens.

- Suggest each guest tuck cards into their gifts, containing tried-and-true recipes for the bride's first months of marriage. (As the hostess, why not supply a recipe file filled with the names and addresses of guests for her thank-you's?)

- The non-cooks on your guest list can bring other kitchen necessities: A pretty teapot, matching oven mitts and kitchen towels, a set of saucepans with "SilverStone", a spice rack or canisters for flour, sugar and coffee.

"With little effort the bride will have almost everything she needs for the kitchen," says Pulver. "And, because everyone has pitched in, you'll be able to spend more time enjoying the fun."

Effortless cleanup

This recipe for Farmer's Eggs can be prepared in an electric skillet with "SilverStone", right at the table. Later, cleanup is practically effortless.

FARMER'S EGGS

10 strips of bacon, cut in half
2 green zucchini, sliced
2 yellow zucchini, sliced
4 scallions, cut up
2 tomatoes, cut in wedges
8 eggs
1/2 cup of milk
Cracked pepper
1 tsp. basil

Preheat Electric Griddle with "SilverStone" coating to temperature setting of 300°. Fry bacon only until transparent.

Turn temperature down to 280°. Add zucchini slices and scallions.

Cook until lightly browned. Add tomato wedges.

Combine eggs and milk and pour over zucchini mixture.

Sprinkle with cracked pepper and basil; cook until eggs are set.

Yield: 8-10 servings.

Tips for planning the ideal honeymoon, selecting the ideal location and environment for your tastes

Few things in life are more exciting — and rewarding — than selecting the place for your honeymoon with your mate.

Depending on your time, budget and the kind of environment you both prefer, there is now an unusually fine assortment of honeymoon packages at prime travel destinations.

The following are packages for newlyweds that are not only diverse in location and price, but honeymooners report that these hotels live up to their reputations for beauty, rooms, food and gracious service and hospitality.

Orlando resort

In Orlando, the Hyatt Regency Grand Cypress is the spectacular centerpiece of 920 acres of magnificent Grand Cypress Resort property in central Florida.

There are 11 tennis courts, a Jack Nicklaus-designed 18-hole golf course and a nine hole Pitch 'N' Putt course, the world's largest free-form swimming pool with waterfalls and jacuzzis, shuffleboard, racquetball, bicycling, jogging course and sailing.

The "Grandest Honeymoon" package is $450 for 3 days and two nights in a luxury suite, champagne on arrival, complimentary breakfasts in bed, and use of all sports and recreational facilities.

The Agha Khan recently took a whole floor of this lovely hotel for a second honeymoon vacation with his wife.

Private island

Peter Island, the exclusive private island resort in the British Virgin Islands, is a honeymooner's dream. The resort has just 52 rooms and occupies the eastern two-thirds of the 1,050-acre island.

Sun, swim, play tennis and wander the island. Four beaches, including Deadman Bay, one of the Caribbean's finest, offer Robinson Crusoe-like seclusion.

Privacy is key, whether at the Harbour Houses, overlooking what many call the world's most charming yacht harbour; the Beach Houses on Deadman Bay; or one of three villas.

All rates include three meals daily, watersports at Peter Island's beach, tennis, horseback riding and transportation to the resort's remote, romantic areas.

Peter Island's Honeymoon Plan adds a bottle of complimentary French champagne and a special gift memento. Price is $1150 per couple for seven days and six nights.

New England inn

Set amidst the natural splendor of New England in Williamstown, Mass., The Orchards re-creates the charm and intimacy of a grand English inn.

Antique furnishings, four-poster beds, and woodburning fireplaces set a romantic scene.

Within easy access are the Clark Art Institute — featuring one of the finest collections of impressionist art in the country — and some of the area's best skiing at Brodie Mountain and Jimmy Peak. In summer, enjoy the Williamstown Theater.

The New England Hideaway Plan, a three day and two night package for $290, enables guests to enjoy elegant accommodations, use of facilities in the Orchards' exercise room, sumptuous continental dinner, and two hearty English-style breakfasts.

IDEAL FOR A HONEYMOON is the Hyatt Regency Grand Cypress resort hotel in Orlando, Fla., offering golf, tennis, swimming, boating, health clubs, jogging trail and many exciting restaurants.

Cordless cleaning

NEWLY WEDS can keep their first home tidy with a lightweight Quick Up from The Eureka Company. The cordless rechargeable vac picks up dry spills from bare floors and surface litter from carpets. Suggested retail price is $49.95.

Eileen opened her store at 470 Hancock St. in 1982 and has increased her inventory ideas and innovation in that short span.

She also is planning to increase the size of Sweet 'n Things by opening up a new section. She will elaborate on this expansion plan in the near future.

Opening this type of business was a culmination of years of successful product merchandising for other companies, she said. Her sharp eye and flair for imaginative and creative ideas is seen in every gift that leaves the store.

She also involves herself in Quincy Center's activities. She co-chaired the Miss Quincy Beauty Pageant this past summer and enjoys the hustle and bustle of The Square and the meeting of new people.

Sweets 'n Things is not just a candy store, it's a person to person store. In other words you create the occasion and Eileen will create the gift...which isn't a bad buy at all these days.

DON'T STOP PROGRESS

Quincy needs new and wider streets, new parking areas, and a modern traffic light system.

Quincy desperately needs new housing to supply the work force for its many new office buildings which are supplying thousands of white collar jobs. We can't rely on Boston to supply us with work forever.

Don't you think its about time the city of Quincy admitted their own negligence and corrected their atrocious traffic and parking problems?

Reducing or destroying the value of property, and or the incentive to update this mostly marginal land will not do one thing to alleviate the existing traffic problems caused by the thousands of cars from out of town now using Quincy streets every day.

Having lost thousands of blue collar jobs in the industrial field and it's double set of standards in the housing field, Quincy should be grateful that after decades of advertising, their marginal land is finally being developed by the private capital building industry.

Now along comes a handful of disgruntled people who greatly benefit from this new development, charging the apartment house industry with overbuilding, and creating too much traffic and parking problems.

The city established these basic new zoning ordinances on March 22, 1971, which greatly decreased the amount of new housing being built at that time to bow to the wishes of the established homeowner, not the builder, not the developer.

Because of the very little residence 'A' vacant land, it was decided that apartment housing was the way of Quincy's future.

It's now the city of Quincy's obligation to update its roads, parking, and traffic lights.

Quincy's Problem Is Traffic, Not Housing, Says Lyons

Roger B. Lyons, of the Quincy Apartment House Owners Association, has released the following statement regarding proposed zoning changes and density requirements:

Quincy's problems are on its streets, not in its apartment buildings; its traffic problems, not housing.

As a result of proposed zoning changes introduced by the City Council last fall, after elections, public hearings were held. The apartment house owners, and the builders association and private citizens, being in the vast majority, all objecting, filled the Council chamber to overflow each time protesting the 2,000 foot density. Their 1,500 foot compromise in the Residence B and C classification was adopted.

Not a month later, other proposed zoning changes to further reduce housing units now in the P.U.D. classification to 1,000 foot density has been recommended by the City Council, as well as three other proposals.

The Planning Board altered the Council's proposal by recommending a 2,000 foot density per unit. Why?

Please don't let that happen!

The problem is traffic, not housing!

We used to have over 90,000 people living in Quincy, but in the federal census, it dropped to about 84,000 people, remember?

We have heard too many complaints about the traffic, falsely blaming it on our housing instead of on fact...commuters.

Quincy just corrected one earlier mistake when they opened up the City to the Braintree end of the South-east Expressway. Building the Newport Avenue Extension, widening McGrath Highway and Adams Street to the Milton line were really the only constructive traffic improvements made in Quincy in decades.

Neighboring Milton has continuously placed obstructions in our path, both on many local streets, an abandoned railroad bed, not even considering the impact of traffic by stopping the South-east Corridor through their town.

For a city that for years advertised "Shoppers Town USA," that invited developers through national publications to invest in Quincy, while it saw the Braintree Plaza overwhelm downtown Quincy's retail stores, it should have understood its traffic and parking problems and corrected them.

It's the streets, not its buildings that need attention.

After out of town builders and/or money have created many office buildings and office parks, what the City has needed to add to its mechanical and industrial trades background, there is a move proposed to restrict our own local developers from supplying that much needed new housing which would tend to be the ideal situation for a growing city, good jobs, and housing in various price ranges.

There are those who, over the years, consistently opposed new construction...that's their privilege...but their self serving ideas won't solve the housing shortage or the traffic problem.

We were told that apartments were the way of the future when the city was rezoned on March 22, 1971, as the cost to develop the vacant substandard land that was left for single family houses was too excessive.

The MBTA was invited to come to Quincy and with it change.

Of the five office buildings that have come on the line including and abutting State Street South that have been completed, they are assessed for a total of $115,553,200 and pay a tax of $3,565,972. Most of that subsidizes residential property.

Why are there so many people so critical of that development? They have created thousands of jobs, build, plow, and maintain their own roads, supply their own rubbish, patrol their own property, and don't add a single child to the school system...typical of much of our new housing.

What the City should be concerned about is the amount of commuters entering and leaving the city each day, and what will they do about it. Their $110,000 traffic engineering second phase study will astound them, but not do anything to correct it.

While General Dynamics is suffering from an incurable disease, lack of work, the State Legislature is planning on advertising in other states for more manpower to serve our industry's needs and increasing our housing stock by adding "An estimated 350,000 units of low and moderate income housing, twice that of 1985" according to a sponsor, The League of Women Voters.

We in the construction industry have many adversaries who are quite willing to dispense their disparaging remarks against us. They are content to stop progress; like in China, quit having babies, there isn't enough housing now!

Family of five nearly bred to death by TV.

Johnston, Rhode Island. In this quiet little town in western Rhode Island, the Wilson family say they had been bored into a near fatal state by the programming available on conventional television. "Blah sameness," said Mrs. Wilson. "Boringly boringness," said 12 year old Peter Wilson. "Ho hum, predictable-ness," said 8 year old Pam Wilson.

"Goo, goo, blah, blah," said 6 month old Vickie Wilson.

Mr. Wilson, a 38 year old banker said he agreed with his family's remarks "...that is, until we got cable TV."

Since installing cable TV the Wilson family says their TV boredom has changed to TV infatuation.

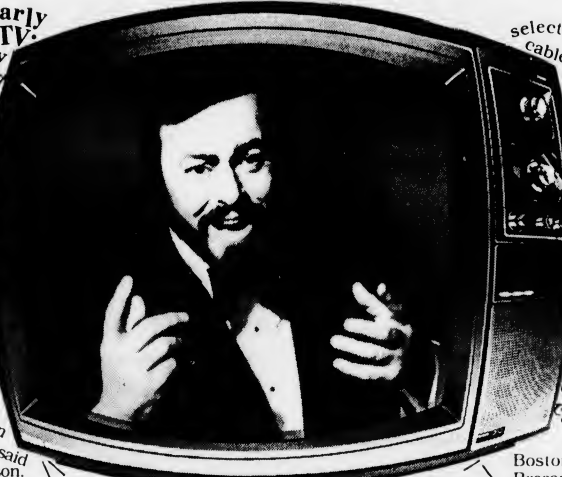

"We're not watching more TV," said Wilson. "We're just watching better TV."

Mrs. Wilson added, "Better quality shows in the educational, informational and cultural areas."

"Plus news, sports and weather at any time," chimed in Wilson.

"Don't forget classic movies," said Peter.

Obviously, this family is very excited about the wide selection of programming cable TV offers them. Their lives are richer. Their interests are more fulfilled. "And we were very surprised at how little cable costs per month," remarked a thriftpconscious Mrs. Wilson. Cable TV saved this Johnston, Rhode Island family from terminal boredom. What could it do for you?

Television being cure for insomnia

Boston, Massachusetts—Researchers at a major Boston university are looking into the possible use of television as breakthrough cure for insomniacs.

"Our theory is that, when people can't sleep, they need only watch a little TV to solve that unfortunate problem," said Dr. Howard I. Kno, leader of the research team.

"We see television as a depressant. It's so boring and predictable, we feel it's the perfect sedative."

The doctor does note, however, that people who subscribe to cable TV cannot use TV as a tranquilizer. "Cable offers a wide variety of exciting, stimulating programming: cultural programming,

Franceschini Hopeful

'Youth League' Brightens Quincy's Basketball Future

By TOM SULLIVAN
John Franceschini had a frustrating first season as coach of the Quincy High boys' basketball team, but he has instituted a youth program which he feels will make the future brighter for the Presidents.

Quincy finished with a 2-18 record in Franceschini's debut as coach, with a victory over North Quincy the lone Suburban League win. The only other was an opening night victory over Revere.

"I began a program this year for middle school boys from grades five through eight and I think it is going to pay off for us," Franceschini said. "I call it the Presidents Youth Basketball League."

Once a week a clinic is held with the boys learning the fundamentals of the game. "From these clinics we pick teams in the various grades," said the Presidents' coach. "Our boosters club has entered the teams in various tournaments throughout the state."

The program is open to all boys, including those from St. Joseph's and other schools, but the emphasis is on the boys in the public schools who will be going to Quincy High.

"This is a feeder system for Quincy High and Bob Corcoran is coordinator of the program," Franceschini said. "Assisting him are Ron Mariano, former freshman coach; John DiNardo, president of the boosters club, and Steve Buckley, a former Quincy player. From week to week other former players going back to the 1960s, show up and help out. They all want to give something back to the school."

"We will continue the program throughout the year without interfering with the boys' other sports. The clinics will continue once a week and teams will play in tournaments during the summer."

"I want to keep the boys from grade five right through 12 active. The program has been extremely successful with 45 boys from grades five through eight reporting and we pick up new kids every week."

The sixth, seventh and eighth grade teams played last week in a Milton tournament with fine results.

The sixth grade won the title, going 5-1 and defeating Braintree, 35-27, in the finals.

Joey Crespi had 12 points and Christian Ciavaro, Scott Marino and David Jolley all played well.

The seventh grade team also won with a 5-1 mark and topped Milton, 46-40, in the finals.

Peter Kelly scored 11 points and Robert Crespi, Ralph Bevilacqua, Mark Bogdan and E.J. Hordstrom all played strong games.

The eighth grade team was 1-4 with a win over Dedham and two close losses to Braintree and one to New Bedford. Playing well were Joey Russell, Michael Scalario, Tom Morrell and Jamie Greene.

The teams will play in a Dedham tournament April 4 through 7 and will host their own tournament April 11-13 at the Vo-Tech gym. Teams from Milton, Sharon, Braintree and Hanover have already entered.

As far as Franceschini's varsity plans go, he will have only two returning varsity players back and will be depending upon several promising players from the junior varsity.

"I am encouraging these boys to play in summer leagues and to keep in shape," the coach said.

Timberlake In Standout Freshman Year At BU

Quincy's Jeff Timberlake, who played his high school ball at Boston College High, recently completed an outstanding freshman season for the Boston University basketball team.

Timberlake played a prominent role in the Terriers' excellent season during which they finished at 21-9 and made the NIT tournament.

BU's ECAC North Atlantic Conference team was 11-3 after losing to Canisius on Jan. 30 and all three losses were to conference champion Northeastern.

BU, which last appeared in the NIT in 1980, losing to Boston College, made an excellent showing against Providence's Big East entry in the tournament, losing a 72-69 squeaker.

Timberlake led the Terriers by a wide margin in assists with 136, setting up numerous baskets by his teammates with brilliant passing. He set a season high with 11 assists against Drexel.

Jeff also averaged 4.7 points a game, had 30 steals, 45 rebounds and three blocked shots.

"He may be only a freshman, but he played like a senior," said first-year coach Mike Jarvis. "Frankly, when he first reported I didn't know if he'd fit into our scheme of things, but he did a tremendous job for us all season. He is a great ball handler and passer and he will be one of our key players the next three years."

Timberlake played four years of varsity basketball at B.C. High and was team captain and the team's MVP his senior year.

He set the school record for most assists with more than 600, was named all-Catholic Conference for three years and made the Boston Globe and Patriot Ledger all-scholastic teams.

He prepped a year at Maine Central Institute and was named Mr. basketball there.

Timberlake was a member of the Boston entry in the Boston Shootout Tournament in 1983 and 1984.

Koch Women Eliminated In South Shore Tourney

East Bridgewater ousted the Koch Club Women's Bowling League from the opening round of the South Shore Women's Bowling Tourney, 1523-1502.

The East Bridgewater combine hit a 550 in the opening round to the Koch Club's 500 as Sandy Hogan and Nilda Poe Sepp led with 117 while the remaining three members hit over the 100 mark.

Maryellen Walsh kept the contest from being a rout, posting a 114 in the opener while Jeanne Burgess had a 101.

The Kochs bounced back in the second string as Maryellen Walsh scored a 122 and Debra Koch a 108 to give the Quincy entry a 24-pin win and close the gap to a 26-pin deficit, but once again Sandy Hogan's 120 for the winners kept the Kochs at arms length.

In a too little and too late third string, the Koch ladies gained a five-pin win but were 21 pins shy of victory in spite of capturing one of the three strings.

Sandy Hogan led all bowlers in the match with a 351 to lead the Bridgewater five to their opening triumph while Maryellen Walsh fired a 345 in a losing cause for the Kochs and Debra Koch chipped in a 301.

The Koch Club Women's Bowling League won the tournament in 1984.

MOVING AND MONEY

QUESTION: Now that we have sold our home and bought a new one, we have to make the big move. How can I keep the cost of this household move from snowballing?

ANSWER: First, get estimates from several movers in your neighborhood. Then compare. Though tariffs are regulated by law, they do vary because there are several classes of carriers.

Make sure you get in writing an agreement on the declared valuation before you release your household goods, in other words, before he starts to load his van. To make sure your household goods are fully covered, you must declare their actual 100% cash value.

Succeeds Fitzgerald Donovan Head Baseball Coach At North

Leo Donovan, North Quincy's junior varsity baseball coach for the past five years, has been named coach, succeeding Tom Fitzgerald.

Donovan, who played baseball, basketball and football at Boston Tech High School, later played baseball at the Mass. Maritime Academy and played on the Cape Cod all-star team. He also played in the Boston Park League.

Donovan began his coaching career at South Shore Vocational High, where he coached baseball, soccer and basketball.

He then went to Atlantic Junior High where he coached soccer and for the last five years coached jayvee baseball at North, four years under head coach Charlie Bunker and past season under Fitzgerald. He also has coached girls' soccer at North for the past six years.

"I'm very happy to get the varsity coaching job and am looking forward to the coming season," Donovan said. "We had a fine turnout of 55 and I feel we can bounce back after a rough season last spring."

The Raiders will open their season on April 11 at Weymouth North.

Replacing Donovan as junior varsity coach is Dave Perdios, a former Quincy High and Morrisette Legion standout who had an excellent career at Brandeis University. He also had considerable semi-pro experience.

WEEK OF: MARCH 27

AQUARIUS — January 21-February 19

A supervisor responds positively to your words of praise on his capabilities. Difficult family situation requires a democratic discussion and perhaps a vote. New friend proves loyalty.

PISCES — February 20-March 20

Expect last minute cancellations, rescheduled events and surprise guests during a socially hectic period. At work, systems operate more smoothly and a long lasting rivalry evaporates.

ARIES — March 21-April 20

Business plans may be subject to revision and travel detours are possible through the weekend. Romance is on the upswing thanks to a more positive philosophy on your part.

TAURUS — April 21-May 22

Avoid shortcuts in areas related to health and diet. Documents require meticulous review — if you're bargain hunting be sure to check guarantees. Weekend spotlights your writing talents.

GEMINI — May 23-June 21

Avoid extremes, notably in areas of recreation and diet. Keywords through this period are moderation and compromise. Spring cleaning can inspire a major inventory project.

CANCER — June 22-July 22

Blessings in disguise form the theme of the week, and hidden pleasures are sprinkled through the period. Detective work can bring significant results. Catch up on correspondence by weekend.

LEO — July 23-August 22

Period focuses on new destinations and new ideas, while an old fashioned approach to romance can get April off to a sweet beginning. Follow ups in general bring bright results.

VIRGO — August 23-September 22

Partner's expectations may be unrealistically high but don't bring him/her down to earth too suddenly. Week is favorable for outlining a complicated project. Children respond to your encouragement.

LIBRA — September 23-October 22

Avoid taking anyone into your confidence too soon. Possible conflict of interest may exist on the job. Romantic intuition could pay off handsomely after the weekend.

SCORPIO — October 23-November 21

Minor family difficulties should be resolved before they assume larger proportions. Sense of humor helps you cope with brief series of job crises. Romantic situation stabilizes.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22-December 22

CAPRICORN — December 23-January 20

Unexpected visitors may play havoc with your schedule, but you may be granted a reprieve at work. Romance and travel blend well. Review all situations requiring shared expenses.

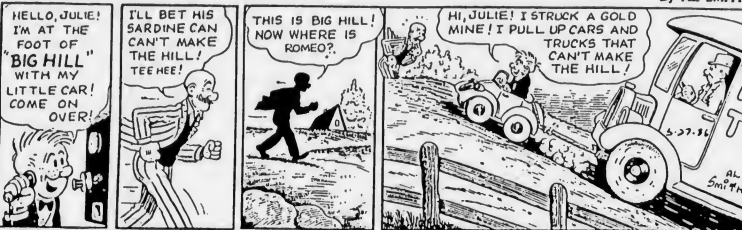

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

McCauley Asks Pay Raise own salary. There are no other mechanisms. He has to do it himself.

"I've said before that I think the mayor ought to be the highest paid official in Quincy."

McCauley said that he was announcing the proposed raises ahead of time so as not to give the appearance of slipping them through at the last minute.

"The salary should be commensurate with the responsibilities of the job," said McCauley. "The mayor has the most responsibilities, supervises all departments and is chairman of the School Committee."

"An increase in two steps is not out of line."

"The second step will take effect after the next election and could be given to my successor if I should not seek reelection."

McCauley said that the City Council has many responsibilities as well.

"They work hard on the City Council, they have responsible positions. I think the raise is warranted."

The City Council salary was also raised last in January, 1984.

McCauley said earlier that he also favors the School Committee raises. "I don't think an increase of $200 a month is too much," he said.

"I urge the Council to approve all three raises," said McCauley.

Second Arrest Imminent In Rape Case

School Committee was proceeding to investigate sexual misconduct charges brought against him by a high school student and two former students.

He denied the charges.

Creedon, who served as superintendent for nearly 16 years, was once cited by a national magazine as one of the 100 best school administrators in North America.

said is, at 27, the oldest public community college in Massachusetts continuing under its founding charter.

Dr. Johnson said that he stressed community and education in his testimony before the committee.

"It's a new world we have to deal with. We have to educate the population to face a technical age."

"In the next 10 years, 14 years of school will be common for the population and we should come to realize that."

"We want to provide equal opportunity to education. We're the only major city in the Commonwealth with immediate access to a community college dedicated to it."

"I told the Senate that the middle name of our institution is community, not regional. We should have our college suited to our needs."

"That's what community college means - a community of interests, bringing people together to enhance the quality of their lives."

Johnson noted that QJC serves 1,700 full time equivalent students, and that the number increases to 3,000 students to include those who take courses part time or evenings.

"I feel optimistic that the elected officials in the Commonwealth will understand the needs of the people and do what is required to help our citizens," said Dr. Johnson.

Mayor Francis McCauley, another speaker at the hearing, said that the bill would change Quincy Junior College's name to Quincy-South Shore Community College, and that the college would be governed by a board of trustees.

McCauley said he was pleased with the committee's favorable report.

"We don't want to have to compete against the state system with subsidized tuition," said McCauley.

Others who testified at the hearing in favor of the bill, said Harold, were Rep. Michael Morrissey, School Supt. John Osterman, City Councilors Patricia Toland and James Sheets, School Committee members Mary Collins and Frank Anselmo, and Sheila McIntyre, wife of the late former Mayor-Senator James McIntyre.

Also testifying were QJC full time students Robert Preble, Janet Kearney, Lisa Lawn, Paul Igo, Ellen Duggan and Wendell Jamison. All are members of the student government association.

Peter Mitchell, a member of the Board of Regents which oversees all schools in Massachusetts, offered a different proposal which would establish a community college of the South Shore.

The college would have three colleges comprised of QJC, Massasoit and Blue Hills, according to Harold.

McCauley: No Predictions On Pay Raise Reaction

Mayor Francis McCauley is offering no predictions on what the reaction of the City Council will be after pay raises for himself, the council and school committee are submitted Monday night.

"I have no feeling one way or the other," said McCauley, "you never know."

McCauley is proposing a raise from $40,000 to $50,000 a year for the position of mayor, and an increase from $6,500 to $9,000 a year for City Councillors.

School Committee salaries would be increased from $100 to $200 per month, according to a proposal by School Committee member Frank Anselmo.

The raises will be submitted as part of the $92,017,245 city budget. The council has 45 days to act on the budget.

"We haven't had any calls on the raises," said McCauley. "There has been less comment on these raises than on the increase for mayor three years ago (from $25,000 to $40,000.)"

Council president Stephen McGrath said last week that he would reserve comment until the budget is before the council.

"We'll look at it very closely and make a decision at that point," said McGrath.

Waste Recovery Change Favored At Hearing

A zoning change regarding waste recovery was overwhelmingly favored at a public hearing of the City Council Monday night.

Nineteen people spoke in favor, and 11 were recorded in favor, of the zoning amendment proposed by Councillor James Sheets.

No one was opposed. Sheets said that he submitted the proposed change several weeks ago making the City Council a special permit granting authority in the area of waste recovery.

"It is critical that people have input, and that the City Council listen to the people," said Sheets.

Paul Anderson, Public Works Department commissioner, said that the city has to involve the people in the process of what to do with solid waste in the future.

No Answer Yet On Tobin Towers Security

Mayor Francis McCauley said that he has no answer yet on a request by Council president Stephen McGrath to provide city funds for security positions at the Tobin Towers elderly housing complex, Wollaston.

"We'll have to wait and see what cuts there will be in federal programs," said McCauley. "We should learn in five to six weeks."

In a recent letter to McCauley, McGrath pointed out the danger of leaving the building unprotected as evidenced by a recent fire at the building, apparently caused by an arsonist.

"Obviously, the need is there to have this building protected by paid security personnel," said McGrath.

Mixed Reaction To Density Decrease

Taller Buildings Opposed

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The Council Chambers at City Hall overflowed Monday night with residents and business people concerned about proposed zoning amendments regarding dimensional and height requirements.

The City Council and Planning Board listened for two and a half hours to proponents and opponents of the amendments during a joint public hearing.

No action was taken.

The amendments concern:

- Limiting the height of building in residential districts to 110 feet above grade, and in commercial districts to 130 feet. In no case should any building exceed 10 stories.

- Increasing the area per dwelling unit from 250 to 2,000 square feet in Planned Unit Development sites.

- Increasing the minimum lot area per dwelling unit in Residence D from 500 to 2,000 square feet. Residence D is a high density, multi-family district. The only such area in Quincy is at the MBTA barn in Wollaston.

The 130 foot restriction for buildings in commercial districts was suggested by Planning Director James Lydon to allow 13 feet per story to accommodate mechanical spaces with such equipment as computers.

That would mean that 10-story buildings in commercial districts could be 20 feet taller than 10-story buildings in residential districts.

The amendments were originally introduced by Mayor Francis McCauley, and were discussed at public hearings held by the Planning Board and City Council.

RICHARD BUCCHERI, president of the Quincy Builders and Businessmen Association, said that the Planned Unit Development change would eliminate affordable housing in Quincy.

PETER KOLSON of Palmer St., maintenance supervisor for the Quincy Housing Authority, was among those in favor of the proposed ordinance change in Planned Unit Development.

recorded in opposition. Arthur Chandler, president of the Quincy Citizens Association, said he was against the 130 foot limit for buildings in commercial districts.

"We're looking for a 100 foot limit," said Chandler.

Developer Joseph Bates was opposed for a different reason.

McCauley Urges Assistance In Restoring UDAG Funds

Mayor McCauley wrote recently to Senators John Kerry and Edward Kennedy and Cong. Brian Donnelly to seek their assistance in restoring federal funds to Quincy's Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) Program.

The city is facing cuts of $617,000, or approximately 29% of the city's annual grant amount according to the Mayor.

McCauley implored the Senators and Congressman to override President Ronald Reagan's deferral of $500 million in previously authorized funds nationally for the CDBG Program.

"If successful, this action alone would restore approximately $320,000 to the Quincy CDBG Program, and would lessen the size cuts required in the elderly transit program, the community center program and other similar programs," McCauley said.

The Community Development Block Grant Program will begin its 12th year in Quincy July 1, 1986, McCauley said. Since its inception, well over $10 million has been invested in Quincy's neighborhoods through housing rehabilitation, public works improvements and park and playground renovations, according to the mayor.

The program is managed by the Quincy Department of Planning and Community Development.

Taller Buildings Strongly Opposed

Inspector," he said. The Planned Unit Development change had 16 people speaking in favor, and 40 recorded in favor. Seven spoke against the amendment and 38 were recorded in opposition.

John Howard of Ridgeway St., Wollaston said that Quincy is a "city of homes" and that residents don't want high rise buildings.

Maureen Mazrimas of Bayberry Rd. said, "We moved from Boston to get away from the density."

Lillian Austin of Sea St. said that "some councillors show favoritism to developers"

Leading off the opponents was Jeffrey Davidson of Morley Rd., the city's Planning Director in 1971 when the city was rezoned.

"The ordinance has worked for 15 years," said Davidson, who added that the restriction might preclude development that was desirable.

Richard Buccheri, president of the Quincy Builders and Businessman's Association, said that the amendment would eliminate affordable housing in Quincy.

He urged adoption of a 1,000 square foot limit.

Roger Lyons, president of the Quincy Apartment House owners, said that no action should be taken until traffic problems are corrected.

Lyons was the only one opposed to the Residence D increase.

He said that 1,000 feet would be acceptable.

Clara Yeomans, president of Save Our Shores, was among the proponents.

After the hearing, the Planning Board met to discuss these issues and others.

The board voted to table the height limitation pending information on whether the 130 foot limitation would affect ongoing projects, according to Principle Planner Richard Meade, an advisor to the board.

Also tabled was action on the PUD change awaiting a ruling by the City Solicitor on whether or not the board can insert numbers rather than vote yes or no.

The Planning Board voted to favorably recommend the Residence D change to the City Council.

Hearing April 7 On Shipyard Rezoning

NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The City Council will hold a public hearing Monday, April 7, at 6 p.m. on rezoning the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard from Industrial B to Planned Unit Development.

The PUD designation would mean that the Planning Board would have to give a favorable recommendation and two thirds of the City Council would have to approve plans for the site before a building permit was issued.

General Dynamics plans to close the shipyard this spring, and is looking for a buyer.

The zoning change was the idea of Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro in whose ward the shipyard is located.

DeCristofaro said he submitted a resolve proposing the change "to protect not only the area but the city of Quincy."

"I'm doing this so that we will have input on what will happen, what type of industry will go there."

DeCristofaro said that those expected to attend the hearing include Carter Elzroth, an attorney for General Dynamics, representatives of the shipyard union, Rep. Robert Cerasoli and residents of the area.

After the public hearing, the zoning amendment must be advertised, said City Clerk John Gillis.

The earliest that the council could vote on the measure would be April 21, according to Gillis who said the zoning change could go into effect immediately if it is approved.

DeCristofaro said that the consensus of the council is that the rezoning will pass.

"I've spoken to most of the councillors, and they support it," said DeCristofaro.

A study done for General Dynamics recently showed that it has a good chance of selling the site for reuse as an industrial park or redevelopment as an industrial park or a mixed use complex.

The probability of attracting a single major industrial user is not considered likely, according to the study by Temple, Barker & Sloane, Inc.

$1 Million Condo Project Gets Go-ahead

By DAN CONNELLY

June is a target date for construction of a $1 million-plus 20-unit residential condominiums in Quincy Point, after the developer received approval from the License Board to store gasoline in tanks of 18 parked cars to be garaged underground.

John B. Wise, who attended the Board meeting Tuesday morning on behalf of Burkhard Corporation, 175 Portland St., Boston, said the six-story structure, including garage, will be built on an empty lot at 362-366 Quincy Ave. near Southern Artery. The condo will be comprised of two-bedroom units with an approximate selling price range of $120,000 to $140,000.

The Board alerted Wise that the egress of vehicles into Quincy Ave. can be hazardous at times despite the developers' awareness that there has been a decrease in the traffic flow on Quincy Ave. with the phasing out of the shipyard.

Wise also showed board members drawings of the building which will be constructed adjacent to a motel that backs behind Eddie's Diner. He told the Board there will be landscaping at the lot line.

The four-member board in granting the license request for gasoline storage were unanimous the new structure will be improvement to the area.

Education Over Condominiums

The number of city wide concerned voters in Quincy is growing. More and more people are joining together to save our schools.

Anyone who is remotely connected with the educational system of this city will no longer stand by and let the schools of Quincy deteriorate any further. The people have sent a message to our officials, 'Education over condominiums.'

The School Committee, the superintendent, the parents, the citywide PTO's, the parents task forces, the educators and the students all believe, "to open Wollaston Elementary School is the most educationally sound solution to our overcrowding situation." Sterling Middle School nor any other school should be closed. We must remember, we now have 6th graders attending these middle schools. It seems to me it would be a lot safer for our children to remain in their neighborhood schools than be bussed around our city.

I strongly disagree with Mayor McCauley's statement that, "The neighborhood school concept is becoming a thing of the past." That may be his opinion but it is not the major consensus throughout this stand on the issue to open our schools nor close them. If the mayor just voted "to keep the concept of neighborhood schools alive for at least another year," I do not see how the mayor can ignore such a magnitude of voters who are expressing the same concern. It is time to allocate the needed funds to bring the quality of education back to Quincy.

Many of the people of Quincy stand together on this issue, we can not all be wrong. Although it may be difficult to find the necessary funds to do something you do not believe in, sometimes one must bend to do what is best for all. The city collected over 2 million dollars from the sale of our schools. Only 29 per cent went back into the school system. There is a balance of $372,168 in the sales of schools account as of 2/18/85. Could this fund be used for the renovations of Wollaston School?

The state aid in this city has been increased $3,870,622 over last year. Could this be another source needed for the repairs of our schools? What about the bond issue for capital expenditures? Or the new tax assessments? It can't all be going towards our new 8 million dollar police station or our new $300,000 animal shelter. We need to get our priorities in order. Should we improve the educational system of Quincy by putting more money towards our schools, supplies and needed teachers or should we sell off our land to developers? In my mind the choice is clear. What about yours? Let your mayor and councilors know how you feel about this issue...

Mixed Reaction To Raises

There doesn't seem to be any real big opposition uproar over Mayor Francis McCauley's proposed pay raises for himself and the City Council.

Neither, though, does there seem to be any big groundswell of support.

The reaction seems to be pretty mixed — and pretty even, for and against. At least that is what a sidewalk survey taken by The Quincy Sun's news cable TV Ch. 8 indicates.

Of some 18 Quincy residents selected at random strolling in downtown Quincy, the question of a $10,000 raise for the mayor came out: eight in favor, eight opposed, one undecided and one suggesting a $5,000 compromise.

Eight opposed the $2,500 hike for councilors, 7 were in favor, 2 undecided and one had no response.

Some of the opposition toward a pay raise for councilors was based on the fact that their job is a part-time one.

McCauley proposes that the mayor's salary be increased from $40,000 to $50,000 and the councilor's from $6,500 to $9,000.

Those stopped by Ch. 8 reporter John Noonan and cameraman Bob Gohl were first checked to see if they lived in Quincy and then asked about both pay raises.

Sample reaction:

• "I think it's (mayor's raise) too much. Maybe half — $5,000. The council is certainly entitled to an increase. Absolutely. Should be passed immediately."

• "No way. I don't believe he should get that kind of money. The Council? Not on-part-time. If permanent (full-time), they should get more than that."

• "Considering the size of the city and the responsibility, sure he should get it. The Council — sure."

• "That sounds like a pretty fair price — $50,000. The Council — I don't know about that."

• "I like the mayor's salary. That's right on the button."

• "He's getting enough. The Council? No. I don't feel they deserve it."

• "I think I'm in favor of that. (Both mayor and councilor)."

• "I don't have a feeling on that (mayor's increase) at the moment. The council — I think that's fair."

• "I'm definitely opposed. He knew what the salary was when he ran for office. I think he's adequately paid. The Council? No, I feel the same way."

• "Don't make me laugh! The council? No. How about the working person — increasing them a little bit. Not a 20 cent raise but how about up to $4?"

• "I haven't given it any thought at all."

• "I think it's a good idea. The council, too. It's all right with me and I'm a Quincy taxpayer."

• "I think it should be $75,000. I don't believe any department head should make more than the mayor of any city. The Council — I don't believe they should get a raise because they are part-time and 99 percent of them have other income."

• "Why not! Sounds good to me." (For both).

• "I think they should save the money and reduce taxes and he'll help the people that need help."

• "I guess he gets enough now, doesn't he? The Council? I'd rather not change that."

• "I think it's good. The Council? They should get a raise."

• "That's an awful lot of money for a mayor, isn't it? He should be able to get by on what he gets. Forty thousand is plenty, isn't it? The Council? That's a lot of money. We can't afford that. Much too much."

McGRATH

CITY COUNCIL President Steve McGrath who looks like a future mayoral contender isn't saying much at the moment about Mayor McCauley's proposed pay raises.

"I'll look at it very carefully when we receive the budget," he says. "I will comment on it then but not now."

WHINE AND DINE: The Patriot Ledger's Phil Dine is whining again. This time over the fact that Mayor McCauley held a Tuesday afternoon press conference to announce he was proposing salary increases for himself and the City Council.

And, whined Dine, McCauley was holding up release of the news to coincide with The Quincy Sun's Wednesday publication date.

And, Dine whines on, the story got out on Monday anyway because "some city officials felt residents — who vote, pay taxes and are affected by public policies — deserved the news sooner than later."

Aw, c'mon Phil. What you mean is a city councilor (or would-be city councilor) leaked the story.

The mayor or any city, state or federal official, has the right to call a news conference to get maximum coverage on a subject of interest.

What's wrong with all the media getting the story at the same time?

The City Council wasn't about to sneak into a back room and vote on it before the people even knew there was a proposal.

It wasn't a matter of life or death. Halley's Comet wasn't about to crash in West Quincy. There was no emergency. So why all the whining?

Phil, here's a bulletin for you: The Ledger doesn't own the town.

Now, could that be what all the whining is really about?

WJDA news editor Herb Fontaine is out of the hospital and recuperating at his Merrymount home. And, at the bit to get back behind the microphone.

St. Ann's Students Launch 200 Balloons To Writing Pals

Students at St. Ann's School, Wollaston, recently launched 200 helium filled balloons as part of the nationwide Writing Pals Balloon Contest sponsored by Weekly Reader, the classroom newspaper.

A message attached to each balloon explains the project and asks that the finder return it to the school, according to St. Georgianna Berry, principal.

Weekly Reader will present a $500 prize to the school that gets back the message that has traveled the farthest distance, she said.

In addition, 100 runner-up prizes will be awarded.

Since the annual balloon launch began, Weekly Reader has furnished more than three million free balloons to schools participating in the Weekly Reader Writing Pals program, said Sr. Georgianna.

The pen pal program pairs classes across the country.

The balloon launch was the climax of St. Ann's year long participation in Weekly Reader Writing Pals.

Goal of the program is to motivate children to write to, and to become familiar with, students in other parts of the country, according to Sr.

Georgianna.

This year, the program is also celebrating the centennial of the Statue of Liberty and "the right to write" freedom of expression.

"St. Ann School pupils will write to every person who sends back a message card from our balloons," said Sr. Georgianna.

Daffodil Day Raises $14,550 For Cancer Society

Residents of Quincy and Milton contributed $14,550 to the American Cancer Society's Massachusetts Division from advance sales of daffodils that were distributed recently, Quincy Daffodil chairs Dennis and Pauline Sweeney announced.

"Thanks to the generous support of Quincy and Milton residents, spring arrived early in our community," the Sweeneys said. "The daffodils were flown in from the West Coast and distributed on Daffodil Day to bring a lot of smiles and some of the lightheartedness of spring."

"And the funds raised will bring hope to people who have cancer now and those who will have it in the future."

"Special praise should be given to the school children in Quincy, who donated over $4600 and brought daffodils home. Mrs. Helen O'Rourke of Quincy organized the fund drive in the schools. The Milton schools also raised $3100 under Mrs. Mary Cobb of Milton."

Their efforts helped the Quincy/Milton Unit surpass its 1986 goal by almost doubling the amount raised for Daffodil Day last year, according to the Sweeneys.

Their third year welcomed many new contributors as well as companies and individuals who have ordered daffodils since their first Daffodil Day in 1984.

They include: State Street South, the Nurses and Staff at Quincy City Hospital, South Shore Bank, Quincy and Milton Cablesystems, Hancock Bank, Medical East, Quincy City Hall employees, Quincy Co-Operative Bank, Curry Hardware for QCH patients, Milton Women's PM Club for nursing home patients, O'Connell Management for Granite Place.

ASBESTOS LUNG DISEASE

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS of the 1930's-1970's have lung afflictions because they inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

Squantum Church Holds Easter Sunrise Service

Congregation of the First Church of Squantum celebrated Easter with its annual sunrise service at Moswetuset Hummock, a breakfast at the church and its traditional Easter service later in the morning.

Over 50 people gathered at the Hummock Easter morning to participate in the celebration of Christ's resurrection. Guitarists Steve Williams, Robert Dixey, Mary Ruth Scott, David Williams and Andy Ogilvie accompanied the hymns. Church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin preached on the topic, "Looking for Christ."

Breakfast at the church was supervised by Ellen Ogilvie, Patti Hurd and Hazel Mayne.

Later, the congregation gathered for the traditional Easter service in the sanctuary in which the chancel had been decorated with a variety of flowers. Helen Miller and Janet Sumner handled the arrangements.

Service began in darkness with a re-enactment of the women's early morning visit to Jesus' tomb. Susan Scott, Sarah Mildred, Mindi Hurd, Deborah Stohberg and Karen Reister played the parts of the women; Chris Dixey and Andrew Ogilvie played the parts of the angels.

Then the lights came on and the congregation sang, "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today." Other hymns sung during the service were "Christ Arose," "Jesus Christ Is Risen Today" and "Come, Ye Faithful, Raise the Strain."

There was a special duet on the old hymn, "I love to Tell the Story," by Minci Hurd on the organ and Mary Ruth Scott on the piano.

The Cherub Choir, directed by Susan Scott and Mindi Hurd, sang "We Have A King." The Crusader Choir sang Natalie Sleeth's "This Is The Day" accompanied by Marci Hurd on the xylophone, Kristen Reister on the glockenspiel and Krista Olson on the triangle. The Youth Choir and Chancel Choir combined to sing the anthem, "All Praise, O Risen Lord" by John Dykes as arranged by Richard Smith. Mary Ruth Scott directs all of the choirs except for the Cherub Choir.

Marci Hurd assisted the pastor in explaining the meaning of Easter to the children in a demonstration called, "The Big Breakthrough."

Dr. Langevin preached on the topic, "Convincing Evidence." His text were the words of Thomas, the one disciple who doubted Jesus' resurrection after all of the others were convinced that he had risen: "Unless I see in his hands the prints of the nails, and place my finger in the mark of the nails, and place my hand in his side, I will not believe." (John 20:25d)

Greeters for the morning were Eva Martin and Katie Crossman. Tore Wallin, Stewart Scott, Richard Hendry and Harry Holmes were the ushers. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Barbara Walter and Linda Mooney.

This Sunday, April 6, will be Covenant Sunday at the church. The morning will begin with a breakfast at 9:15 a.m. and will continue with a service in which members may renew their covenant with God and with the local church. Although reservations are suggested, persons without reservations for the breakfast are welcome to come.

Members of the church who would like to renew their covenant but who cannot attend the service are asked to let the pastor know of their intention.

Sunday School will meet at 9:45 a.m. A nursery will also be provided.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Eye on design trends: Skylights open kitchens to the outdoors, add distinctive decorative touch

Homeowners are adding skylights to their recipes for an ideal kitchen.

Skylights can provide a measure of openness and a link to the outdoors, according to remodeling designers. They point out that the kitchen is an active place throughout the day, so why not make it as bright and cheery as possible?

New mothers, especially women who have left the work force to start families, sometimes feel trapped at home. Much of their time is spent in the kitchen.

Skylights extend one's view up and over neighboring houses that might be blocking out the sky. And in townhouses and multi-unit condominiums, a skylight might be the only way to open an inside room to the outdoors.

"When they say Americans are eating lighter nowadays, that means more than just lower calories," says Robert Koeper of Waco Products, a leading maker of premium skylights. "They're adding a larger dash of natural daylight to their kitchens."

Skylights have come a long way from the primitive plastic bubble nailed to the roof, he adds. Low-profile glass skylights in fixed and venting models blend easily with the slope of the roof.

The best of today's skylights are leak-proof and energy-efficient through new concepts in product design and materials.

For instance, some skylights have frameworks made of an exotic new thermoplastic that is said to be more resistant to weather and insect damage than wood or aluminum components.

This type of material lends itself to features like built-in, integral condensation gutters that prevent drips in humid areas like kitchens.

One decision is whether to buy a factory-assembled skylight that comes ready to install or a cheaper one that arrives as a box of parts.

Ready-made skylights make for tighter construction and faster installation, according to one manufacturer, who points out that the sooner you cover the opening in your roof, the better off you'll be.

Free literature with color photos of kitchen skylights and other installations is available by writing to Waco Products Inc., Dept. M., P.O. Box 351, Sanford, ME 04073.

Spring: Perfect for remodeling, refurbishing, redecorating

Joys, responsibilities of home ownership are many and varied

The joys of owning a home are many, but very few homeowners are prepared for the amount of work that presents itself, especially during the first year of ownership.

What's even more shocking to the homeowner is the realization that such jobs as painting, tiling, winterizing and decorating, not to mention remodeling and redesigning, become ongoing projects that constitute a way of life.

Not to despair though! The other shocking realization that most homeowners come to is that they are in fact handier than they ever believed possible.

Many home improvement projects are easier than you think, and can be done quite well with the proper instructions and tools.

Perusing design and decorating magazines, reading how-to manuals, as well as asking a salesperson in your local paint or hardware store for information, can be extremely helpful.

Improving the home, however, has become more than just a necessity or creative pastime; it's become an investment. In the last 10 or 15 years we have experienced a real estate boom that has caused the high price of housing to soar.

Regardless of the motivation, one thing is certain: Home improvement has become a great American pastime for every demographic group from singles to newly married couples and retirees.

It has also become the communal responsibility of the family. Husband, wives and children are sharing household projects more than ever before. It's a great way to involve each family member, and the job gets done that much quicker.

Spring is the perfect time to start your home improvement projects. Now that the cold, heavy days of winter have ended, you can begin brightening your home with some fresh paint or new decorating ideas, and these projects can do wonders for brightening your spirit as well as your home.

A good way to get started is to first organize your ideas and your goals. This can save an abundance of time later on, and make the project much less stressful.

When organizing your projects, it's a good idea to begin first with any major renovations such as structural changes, reroofing, painting, tiling or floor refinishing.

Not only will you feel better, psychologically, because you know that you've tackled the worst of it, but you can begin to view your home in a new way now that the walls are painted and the floors are refinished.

The next step, decorating, is always the most fun. And, of your best ideas can come from just being observant.

While decorating is fun, it doesn't have to be expensive. There are many things you can do on a limited budget to achieve the look you want. Many times, it's the small details that gives a room its unique style.

Colorful pillows, special moldings, an unusual picture or lamp, or pretty knobs and fixtures can be a wonderful, inexpensive way to put your signature on a room.

Wallpaper and paint, both relatively inexpensive materials, can do wonders in brightening up your home. Sheets, too, can be wonderful decorating tools. With the help of a sewing machine you can cover walls, windows and tables.

Improving and keeping up your home entails some work but, more often than not, it provides you with a sense of accomplishment and creative satisfaction.

Window magic

HERE'S AN EASY WAY to make a small, ordinary window interesting: Frame it with mirror tile to increase its apparent size, treat it to a Riviera™ blind to add color — or picking up the dominant tone of the wallcovering around it — and finish the edges with molding.

Make more of your floor: How to select the floorcovering

The kitchen, often considered the heart of the house, is the most popular room for remodeling and renovation. An updated kitchen will add value to your home while providing years of family entertaining and dining pleasure.

Selecting a floorcovering, as part of an overall remodeling plan, can overwhelm even the experienced shopper, especially when you consider the wide variety of sheet vinyl and vinyl floor tile colors and patterns available.

But if you shop wisely, and know what to look for, you can find fashionable, functional flooring that suits your specific needs and stays well within your budget.

According to the experts at Tarkett, makers of quality vinyl floorcoverings, to get what you want, you must ask yourself a series of questions.

First, how much time do you and your family spend in the kitchen? What are the traffic patterns? What style cabinets and color of appliances will be used? How much time can you spare for upkeep? How much can you spend? All of these factors affect your buying decision.

Always the most popular choice for kitchens, vinyl floorcovering is available in two forms — sheet goods and tile. Sheet vinyl comes in standard widths — six, nine and 12 feet to provide a seamless, wall-to-wall effect. Vinyl tiles are available in nine and 12-inch squares.

There is a wide range of vinyl floorcovering products from which to choose, each priced according to the specific features and benefits it provides.

As a general rule, say the Tarkett experts, you should buy the best quality floorcovering you can afford. When you compare prices, remember that the cost of a professional installation is generally the same, regardless of the quality of the product you select.

Premium quality sheet vinyl products are more expensive, but offer top-of-the-line benefits. Deeper cushioning adds comfort underfoot, thicker wearlayers increase durability and ease of maintenance, and extended warranty programs like Tarkett's 10-year warranty, the strongest floorcovering warranty available, protect against wear and manufacturing defects.

An investment in a long-lasting, high-quality product with an extra-durable wearlayer is well worth it, especially if you hope to add to the value of your home or spend a great deal of time in the kitchen.

SHOWN HERE, "Longwood Gardens," from Tarkett's Delight collection, is a do-it-yourself sheet vinyl product with the charm of delicate hand-painted tile. The miniature floral design adds country charm to the kitchen in this renovated brownstone. Photograph courtesy of Tarkett.

If you simply want to brighten up the kitchen in a rented apartment or a weekend house, economize with a lower-priced product that you can install yourself in an afternoon.

Decide how much time and effort you are willing to devote to maintaining your new floor. Tarkett's exclusive Guardian no-wax wearlayer is virtually maintenance-free and provides exceptional durability to the company's more expensive sheet vinyl products, of key importance in a high-traffic kitchen.

All Tarkett sheet vinyls and vinyl floor tiles feature an easy-care wearlayer, so you need not sacrifice quality or no-wax maintenance when you economize with a lower priced product.

For most vinyl floors, both sheet and tile, an occasional damp-mopping will remove ordinary dust and dirt. New specially formulated wearlayers resist scuffs and stains, and will retain their original beauty and shine without waxing.

Many sheet vinyls, like Tarkett's Delight product, are designed specifically for do-it-yourself installation using the loose-lay method. They are easy to handle and install. Simply cut and fit the sheet goods around the room. Replace the molding and you have a new, permanent floor.

Vinyl floor tiles may be installed professionally but are also easy for the do-it-yourselfer. Tarkett offers an exclusive Sure-Stik adhesive backing on all tile products so that even the novice can lay a floor in an afternoon.

Tile also offers maximum design flexibility — with a little imagination, you can combine colors and patterns to create a unique, one-of-a-kind floor.

Before you shop, carefully measure the room or area for the project. Be sure that your measurements are precise, especially if you plan to install the new floor yourself.

A sketch of your floor plan that includes windows, doors, major appliances and other obstructions will assist the floorcovering salesperson in estimating your needs.

State-of-the-art technology allows manufacturers to create a wide range of decorative patterns to suit any budget — bold geometrics, delicate prints and natural-looking designs that realistically simulate brick, wood and ceramic.

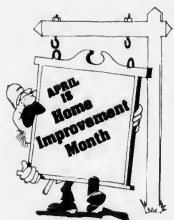

To ensure a fully-coordinated room, collect swatches of your wallcovering, draperies and other furnishings in the room and take them along when you shop.

Select a floorcovering pattern that will enhance your overall decorating scheme, either as a subtle background for other objects or to make a bold statement on its own.

Combine practicality, creativity to revive bathroom decor, increase storage areas

Whether your tastes are traditional or trend-setting, home decorating is an exercise in creativity. Every room presents do-it-yourself decorators with a unique challenge — to assemble a harmonious and aesthetically pleasing environment that reflects individual tastes and preferences, without sacrificing practicality or shattering a tight budget.

Because of its relatively small size and the number of unmovable fixtures it possesses, the bathroom is probably the simplest — and at the same time the most difficult — room in the house to decorate. If you haven't got the budget for a major restructuring, changing a bathroom's look and increasing available storage space — both important goals — become a matter of ingenuity, of making the most out of limited resources and maneuverability, quickly, efficiently and economically.

One simple solution to this decorating dilemma is Skirt-It, an innovative sink skirt which inexpensively transforms an ordinary bathroom sink into a decorative vanity, giving a beautiful new look to a tired bath in a matter of minutes.

From Ex-Cell Home Fashions, Skirt-It creates a roomy area for concealed undersink storage, while at the same time providing an attractive solution to an unattractive problem — unsightly exposed plumbing and pipes.

In addition, Skirt-It is simplicity itself to install, thanks to a specially formulated adhesive on the back of the permanently stitched top ruffle, which adheres to the rim of any sink.

Size is no problem, as Skirt-It is designed to fit most standard sinks, and is easily trimmed to accommodate special sinks.

And, Skirt-It, which is available in both vinyl and water-repellent fabric, has been designed in a myriad of patterns, and colors to suit every taste, with matching shower curtains available to complete the look.

Traditionalists will love classic floral and small scale patterns that add grace and elegance to solid color baths, or can be layered, pattern upon pattern, against floral wallcoverings, in English country style, a timeless look that is a romantic favorite.

A rainbow of solid colors provides other options, with sink skirts and matching shower curtains available in placid, pretty pastels for a soft, soothing look.

Modernists, on the other hand, will favor bold solid colors, such as cardinal red, hot pink, blue plum and sunflower yellow, which add a burst of brightness to today's sparse white baths, and provide a flattering

EASY DOES IT! A simple and inexpensive way to quickly revitalize a tired bath, Skirt-It, an innovative sink skirt from Ex-Cell Home Fashions, adds a decorative note to any bath while providing space for undersink storage and concealing unsightly pipes. Shown here is Jananna, a floral with flair, which is available as a fabric sink skirt with matching shower curtain. There are three colors from which to choose: Red or black flowers on a white background, or brown and rust flowers on a beige ground. Practical as well as pretty, both sink skirt and shower curtain have been treated with Exclon, a water-resistant finish that makes cleanup a breeze.

Also sure to make a hit are the wet-look vinyls, one of the brightest decorating ideas in years, which are available in an array of exciting colors.

And, to make it as easy as possible for do-it-yourself decorators, Ex-Cell offers an expanded line of bath accessories, including tumbler, toothbrush holder, lotion dispenser, soap dish, waste basket and tissue box, in 12 high fashion colors, designed to complement and coordinate with Ex-Cell's shower curtains, and allowing creative decorators to mix and match with flair.

The results will be spectacular, and your own sense of a job well done will be echoed by your appreciative family, who'll never guess how easy it really was!

Sensible suggestions that help keep range of wedding costs under control

Like everything else in these inflationary days, getting married can be expensive. A wedding includes items such as a bridal dress, flowers and a reception, not to mention photography, music and a honeymoon trip. When you add it all up, that one special day can cost a lot.

But does it have to cost more than you can afford? According to Barbara Tober, Editor-in-Chief of BRIDE'S Magazine, it doesn't and it shouldn't. "The wonderful thing about weddings is that they can take so many different forms," she says.

How to do it

Mrs. Tober feels that no couple should miss out on a wedding because they think they can't afford it. Here are some tips for making sure that costs don't get out of hand.

- Set priorities early on. Do this by finding out what a wedding in your area actually costs and then deciding what you must have, and what you can sacrifice or spend less on.

One strategy is to go all out on one or two things that will make your wedding unique and economize on the rest. For example, at your reception you might serve your guests a full sit-down dinner, but limit the music to a single strolling musician and choose only in-season, and therefore less expensive, flowers.

Or, for an afternoon wedding, you could scale down the meal to simple finger sandwiches but splurge on the most memorable wedding cake you can find.

- Try, whenever possible, to get the look you want without full cost. For example, the lushness of a country club garden wedding might be duplicated at much less expense in a city park.

The same basic style wedding dress can cost anywhere from a few hundred to a few thousand dollars depending on the fabric and other fine points of design.

- Start your wedding planning early. This is always a good idea, but doubly so when money is a factor, because you'll have the time to shop around and find the best prices or single package-price.

Comparison shopping tips

Don't be afraid to tell a prospective caterer, florist or whatever, that you're comparison shopping and taking bids. He may try a little harder to get your business.

- Shopping early also helps you avoid the pitfall of paying higher prices by default: You won't have to take a reception hall or a honeymoon suite that's out of your price range because everything else is booked solid.

- Carefully read any contract you sign to avoid budget-draining rip-offs. Watch out for agreements that say they'll take care of everything. Will there really be no extra hidden costs?

Consider contingencies

Find out answers to the "what-ifs" too. What if you want the band to play another hour? A dozen more four-color prints made?

- Finally, consider reducing the burden of wedding costs by redistributing them.

It's traditional in this country for the bride's parents to foot the whole wedding bill but, according to Mrs. Tober, all signs are that this is changing toward a sharing of the expenses by the two families.

The groom's family often offers to cover specific expenses — for example, the flowers, the music and the liquor.

Or, the two families might decide that one will pay for the ceremony (flowers, church rental, limousines), and the other will pick up the reception tab.

Fascinating folklore of jewelry, the universal symbol of love

From the earliest of times through to-day, people have been fascinated by gems and jewelry. In earlier days, wars were fought over gemstones, and legends were invented about them.

Today, we still search for them, study them and collect them. And, according to Jewelers of America, the national association of 12,000 retail jewelers across the United States, although lifestyles, goals and values have changed, the symbol of love attached to a gemstone has never changed.

Say it with jewelry:

Today's couples still express their sentiments with jewelry ... the universal symbol of love.

When did it all begin? Before written history. Yet, some of the traditions and folklore that existed before man could read or write have endured through the centuries. In fact, even today, gemstones are often selected on the basis of long-ago conceived folklore.

In which month were you born? When is your wedding anniversary? How long have you been married? There are legendary colors and gemstones for every month and for every year of marriage. There's added enjoyment by knowing some of the folklore behind your precious choice.

A few examples:

• The green emerald signifies growing love. In addition, it was said to strengthen the memory and to help its owner become an eloquent speaker. It was also thought to give the power to predict the future and to make people more intelligent and honest.

Responsibilities and privileges ...

What's an usher to do?

If you're getting married soon, you can smooth the way for your ushers by making clear plans now:

- Make arrangements for wedding formalwear as soon as possible — to avoid wrong sizes and forgotten accessories. Ushers who live in the area can easily drop by your selected formalwear shop for their fittings. Out-of-town ushers can be measured at a formalwear shop in their respective cities and then send you the measurements.
- Arrange for accommodations for out-of-town. Perhaps a resident usher could offer his home to groomsmen who are coming from far away? Your ushers might also help reserve rooms for out-of-town wedding guests, either in homes or hotels.
- Explain when and where the rehearsal dinner, as well as pre-wedding parties, and the ceremony itself will take place. Set the attendants' parties and other late-night celebrations for the weekend before the ceremony — to prevent morning-after hangovers and bloodshot eyes at the altar.
- Your best man will be responsible for holding the bride's wedding ring. Recommend that he keep the ring in his box — not loose in his pocket (where it may get temporarily lost) — or on his finger (which might swell!).

• Tell your attendants exactly what you want them to do at the wedding: When and where they should dress; when and where they should greet guests; any special seating arrangements; how they can help round up stragglers for the wedding photographer.

• Ushers act as extensions of the host of the wedding. They should keep an eye on the guests — especially those who are elderly. They might drive or direct guests to the reception, get them drinks and food, help guests who have overimbibed, or serve as troubleshooters to quietly resolve a problem.

• Ushers can help smooth your departure from the reception. They can carry gifts to your car, as well as transport the presents to your home; hold the car keys, passports, traveler's checks, plane tickets; pack luggage into the getaway car; drive you to the airport or train station; and return formalwear.

• The ever-popular diamond has a long history of folklore and tradition. It was considered a bearer of victory and an emblem of fearlessness and invincibility; it was said to drive away ghosts if worn on the left arm. It was reputed a protection against poison and a bringer of good fortune. It was even said that it could make the wearer invisible!

There are endless wondrous stones and legends, according to Jewelers of America, and specially designated colors and gems for birthstones and wedding anniversary stones.

JEWELRY ... THE PERFECT GIFT FOR THE WEDDING PARTY — To show love and appreciation to members of your wedding party, jewelry is the ideal choice of "thank-you."

For your wedding day, beautiful hands are the perfect setting for your beautiful rings

"If I were to tell the story of beauty and the bride," says Glenn Roberts, Elizabeth Arden's Director of Creative Beauty, "I'd start by saying 'beautiful rings need beautiful hands.' Then, I'd tell the moral of the story — beautiful hands and nails are an important part of your beauty image on your wedding day."

Nail care for brides means more, of course, than the pretty new shade of polish you select to complement bridal makeup and finery. It means a manicure, in a salon, or one done carefully at home. If you decide to take your nail care into your own hands, following a well-planned regimen will help your hands look their best when they make their wedding debut.

Old lacquer should first be removed thoroughly. To rid nails of every trace of old color, simply use a cotton ball soaked in a good quality remover and gently work around cuticle. Wash your hands in gentle, moisture-rich soap.

For filing nails, select an emery board that is a convenient length for your hand size. Use light strokes in one direction only, from the sides to the center and slightly underneath the nail's edge.

The healthiest nail shape is straight-sided and slightly rounded on top, offering the most support because the nail is not being narrowed. It is also the most flattering, seeming to lengthen your fingers, making them appear shapely and slender as well. This shape also requires less filing because the tip's shape remains constant whether nails are long or short.

Using a nail "bath," such as Elizabeth Arden's Conditioning Nail Soak, immerse fingertips for about three to five minutes. Dry hands well. Massage hands as you dry them for a pleasant, relaxing sensation.

Next, work a non-greasy cuticle softening cream or cuticle and nail oil into cuticles, nails and surrounding skin. Clean and dry your nails and buff them with the heel or palm of your hand in downward motions from base to tip.

"BEAUTIFUL RINGS NEED BEAUTIFUL HANDS," says Glenn Roberts. "Step into your new life with hands that are soft, nails that are shapely, and you will have the perfect setting for your special rings." Photo compliments of the Diamond Information Center.

It may be necessary, with stubborn cuticles, to push them back with the orange stick wrapped in cotton. Wash and dry hands again.

Using nail lacquer not only works beauty wonders, providing a dainty or bright beauty accent, but helps thin or weak nails shape up. Polish adds thickness; two coats plus a top coat will help keep nails strong. In fact, nails can be "sealed" by brushing the final top coat across the tip, reseal every two days or so. For a manicure with extra gloss and color, try applying Elizabeth Arden's Nail Protecta Top Coat to the nail and under its tip.

Between manicures, apply cuticle and nail oil, massaging it in well to keep nails resilient and pliable. Use the oil nightly, in fact, right over already lacquered nails.

Be liberal, too, with hand cream, using it often in dry weather, indoors and out, and whenever the elements are at their most harsh.

Extra do's and don'ts for the bride with beautiful hands

- Always, always wear cotton gloves when doing household chores. Wear rubber gloves for all wet cleaning jobs; household detergents are frequently harsh on the skin. And, when you dry your hands, gently push back the cuticles with a towel.
- Find a convenient size letter and package opener. Don't use your nails! When making a telephone call, pick up a handy pencil and use its eraser to dial. Type with the cushions of the fingers, not with your nails, and use knuckles to work light switches and elevator buttons.

- Cut cuticles grow back thicker and ragged. Use a cuticle softening cream and massage cuticles back into the nail edge. Find a non-greasy moisturizer and use it often, on hands, nails and cuticles. Use it before bed, before leaving the house, during the day and whenever you get the "parchment dry" feeling that signals a too-dry climate.

"Common sense and awareness work wonders in nail and hand care," says Glenn Roberts.

Honeymoon homework memo: Send for a free Alaska vacation planner

Once upon a time, plans for the wedding trip were a bridegroom's prerogative and responsibility. Can you imagine today's bride being packed off to an undisclosed destination at the climax of weeks of wedding preparation and celebration? With a trunkful of smart city clothes to a fishing camp? With a backpack of jeans and boots and sweaters to a glamour resort? No contemporary bridegroom in his right mind would take such a risk!

The honeymoon's a mutual decision these days. Choosing a destination is a time for real up-front honesty about preferences . . . maybe even compromise.

Privacy, romance, glamour, fun are all considerations. Exploring a place that's new to you both has a psychological advantage in getting your marriage off to an even start.

Alaska — America's last frontier — can be an adventure you'll never forget. It's easy to feel you have the world to yourself in Alaska, where the scenery is spectacular, where the opportunity to explore the wilderness is unlimited and where warm hospitality prevails — from cosmopolitan Anchorage to wilderness lodges.

Do your homework early, before pre-wedding stress sets in. The best place to seek advice on travel to Alaska is the state's Division of Tourism. Your 1985 Alaska Vacation Planner, which includes information on travel throughout Canada's Yukon, is free, and can be ordered by writing to the Alaska Division of Tourism, Pouch E-603, Juneau AK 99811.

All the information you need

A wealth of information is crammed into the 100-page book. In addition to facts, figures, maps and detailed information, the Vacation Planner combines practical advice with personal reflections of many who've traveled north to explore America's last frontier.

Pointers on how to develop a good relationship with your mother-in-law

Hear the phrase "mother-in-law" and the word "joke" often springs to mind. Throughout history, the mother by marriage has been a figure of fun in folklore, literature, even botany: The alternate name for the snake plant is "mother-in-law's tongue!"

But, joking aside, is it really impossible to get along with your mother-in-law? A recent book, Between Mothers-in-Law & Daughters-in-Law, by Helen S. Arnstein (Dodd Mead & Company) which was excerpted in a past issue of Bride's magazine, has this advice for young people getting married today:

- Realize that times have changed. Says Arnstein, "The days are long past when a mother-in-law dropped by at her daughter-in-law's home, lifted the lid of the simmering pot to inspect her son's dinner, or commented on the dishes stacked in the sink."

Your mother-in-law, if she's like many women today, holds a job and leads an active life — with little time or energy left over to inspect your home. Her own home may be far from perfect!

- Let go of preconceived notions. "First impressions can set the tone of a relationship," claims Arnstein. Think of your mother-in-law as your spouse's mother, instead of associating her with the stereotype. She is the mother of the person you love, and part of the things you love were fostered by her. Give her every chance to be known as an individual. Isn't that what you want?

- Borrow from her wisdom now and then. Put yourself in your mother-in-law's place and think how an older person would feel if there was nothing she could contribute to the younger generation. So, if she suggests something in good faith, give it a try. After all, under her tutelage, your spouse turned out pretty well!

- Should she nag and complain, realize that this behavior may stem from unhappy experiences in her life and may not necessarily be a reflection on you. The "interfering mother-in-law" often doesn't have any outlets for her abilities. You and your spouse might be able to work on that.

- Check your own behavior. Could you unknowingly be doing or saying something to upset her? Are you as critical of her ways as she is of yours? "Speaking out," regardless of which generation does it, is more likely to be successful if done at the right time and with tact.

- Give it time. With the right attitude, problems often resolve themselves simply through living . . . and learning.

Honeymooners' survival kit

Late in your wedding day you'll both drive off with tin cans clanking, while friends and relatives pelt your car with rice or bird seed for good luck. Alone at last!

Somehow the breakfast you both missed for pre-wedding jitters, and reception dinner missed for all the dancing and excitement of the day, begin to catch up with you. Now that the day's events have come to a close, you find yourselves hungry and relaxed for the first time all day.

Ah, but you find a gaily decorated basket in your getaway car en route to the hotel. A note attached reads: "Food Is Love," and is signed by a thoughtful member of the wedding party who packed the surprise.

The basket is filled with all the essential treats for two famished honeymooners: Fresh French bread, cold lemon chicken, a wedge of cheese and luscious strawberries.

There is sparkling Perrier for pure thirst quenching, and Lindt bittersweet chocolate truffles for pure indulging. The final ambrosia is two slices of wedding cake and a split of champagne.

DIAMOND ENGAGEMENT RING SELECTIONS with matching diamond wedding rings, are featured by Royal and Regal from Keepsake's Designer Collection.

A diamond engagement ring: A commitment to long-lasting quality

Diamonds, like love, are individual and very precious. Since the 15th century, the diamond has been the gemstone symbolizing a commitment of lasting love between two people.

Once a couple makes this commitment, they are faced with selecting a diamond engagement ring that reflects their individual personality and taste.

The more knowledgeably you make this decision, the happier you'll be with your choice. Questions about diamond clarity and styling, as well as guarantees against the loss of the center diamond, future trade-in and resetting privileges, should be answered.

Styling choice remains intensely personal and is complicated by the wide range of styles available.

Reliability and trust are important factors that form the basis of a lasting relationship. In addition, they are essential qualities to consider when choosing a diamond engagement ring.

Today's log home is a dream house for many newlyweds

One "new idea" in housing is actually 300 years old. The log home, that charming symbol of frontier America, now offers all the style and amenities of a conventional house, plus some opportunities to cut costs.

Bride's magazine has chosen a log home as the fourth in an annual series exploring current housing options. A completely furnished home, built in collaboration with New England Log Homes, Inc. (NELHI) of Hamden, Ct. was unveiled by Bride's last year at West Todd Street in Hamden.

The log home, 20th century style, can be at least partly do-it-yourself, and can be erected within a few weeks thanks to computer-engineered, ready-to-assemble kits that sell for an average of $25,000. This can reflect significant savings for young couples about to purchase a first home, since one-third to one-half of the total price of the typical new house goes for construction labor.

A federal study indicates that log home buyers also save on energy costs because the thermal mass of solid walls is especially energy-efficient.

The editors of Bride's chose their log house from over 40 models offered by NELHI, just as any buyer would, by poring over plans and blueprints until they found the one that seemed just right. They picked "The Barrington," a six-room house with two baths, covering 2,500 square feet.

"We looked for a house that was fairly large and had options like a fireplace and a vaulted cathedral ceiling so we could show our readers a full range of design possibilities," explains Alecia Beldegreen, Creative Director. "We've built an 'idea house,' parts of which could be selected to make a perfect starter home."

"Country Contemporary" describes the editors' approach to decorating the New England Log Home. They opened up the interiors with a skylight and a solar porch to create the greatest feeling of light and space, then set a cheerful, contemporary mood with furniture covered in bright tartans, denims and plaids, and country antiques, crafts and accessories from the United States and abroad.

Dyed-to-match shoes complement fashionable bridesmaid ensembles

Bridesmaids always look more polished when their shoes coordinate with the color of their dresses. Finding an exact match is an easy task if you buy white shoes and have them professionally dyed.

Dyeing them yourself may be unwise, especially since certain stores provide the service free of charge. Besides, you'll feel more comfortable having them done by experienced hands.

In coloring, the choices are "limitless," says buyer Bill Wyatt of the Kinney Shoes chain of stores. "There are lots of colors to choose from at no additional cost."

Here's what to do: Bring a swatch of material identical to your dress to the store, select your favorite style, determine the color, and allow the store a couple of weeks to finish the job.

In selecting the shoe, keep in mind that the classic peau de soie is always a lovely choice, but now there are other options, such as satin or lace over satin. All look very feminine, complementing today's fashionable bridesmaids' dresses.

According to Mr. Wyatt, basic pumps, without ornamentation, are the big sellers. Heel heights vary depending on your tastes.

After bringing the shoes home, you might want to try the following hints. About a week before the wedding, wear the shoes indoors about an hour each day to become accustomed to them. Scuff the soles a bit to avoid slipping down the aisle. After all, you'll want to look and walk your best on that special occasion.

STYLISH SHOES FOR THE BRIDE AND HER MAIDS — Lace, satin and peau de soie pumps are favorite wedding day styles, all from Kinney Shoes. Bridesmaids can have shoes dyed to match their dresses.

A long-standing bridal tradition, cultured pearl jewelry enhances the bride's glow

A joyous time of celebration, the wedding day is preceded by months of planning and happy anticipation. Every detail, every contingency, is carefully considered as decisions are being made about the "big day."

From planning the ceremony itself to choosing the ideal setting for the reception, to finding the perfect gown for the bride, attention is given to every aspect of the wedding, right down to the flowers for the centerpieces and the bride's accessories. A natural complement to her special glow, the radiant lustre of cultured pearl jewelry enhances and reflects the bride's beauty as no other type of jewelry can.

For centuries, the pearl has woven its mystical spell as a symbol of love, beauty and romance and, even in early civilizations, pearls were part of the bridal attire.

The first written mention of a bride wearing pearls occurs in ancient Hindu legend, which credits the great god Vishnu with the discovery of the first pearl, which he drew from the sea as a gift for his daughter on her wedding day.

The early Egyptian Queen Nephretete was resplendent in pearls: Mounted on her crown, worked into her collar, draped from her arms, and sewn to the gilded leather of her sandals, they held a special meaning of feminine perfection for the Egyptians.

The early Greeks and Romans also considered pearls to be royal jewels, at times prohibiting their ownership by commoners. However, for the wealthy, pearls were often a large part of the bride's dowry.

There is evidence that Pocahontas, with a "royal diadem" of three strands of pearls decorating her hat, and large oval pearls hanging from her ears, was the first American bride to wear pearls.

By the 1800s pearl jewelry for the bride was common, and Mary Lincoln was one of many women to be presented with an engagement ring of a single pearl, followed by the gift of a pearl necklace to be worn on her wedding day. Both gifts were considered to be symbols of the groom's love for his bride.

With the discovery that pearls could be cultured in live oysters, the custom of brides wearing pearls came into even greater prominence and, today, with a return to the romantic and the traditional in wedding styles, cultured pearls are a favorite bridal accessory.

When selecting a strand of cultured pearls to be worn on the wedding day, consideration should be given to matching an appropriate style with the neckline of the bride's gown.

With high, round necklines, a multiple strand "dog collar" or a classic single strand choker is the most flattering. For a high standing collar or a scooped neckline, a matinee or opera length necklace is preferable.

THE SHIMMERING IRIDESCENCE of a cultured pearl choker and earrings is the perfect complement to the bride's glowing complexion.

With a deeper scooped neckline, a luxurious bib of several strands of cultured pearls falling from the base of the throat is alluring and regal.

Adding a pair of cultured pearl earrings and, if sleeves permit, a single or double strand cultured pearl bracelet, completes a look of delicate elegance.

Now a bridal tradition, cultured pearl jewelry is one of nature's most exquisite creations, able to reflect and intensify the bride's radiant beauty on her special day.

Invited guests are Senators Edward Kennedy and John Kerry, Congressman Brian Donnelly, Gov. Michael Dukakis and all other elected officials in the South Shore area.

D. Scott Deware

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK.

Have you ever stood on a boat dock at a lake and watched the waves go by? Doesn't it seem as if you were moving with them, instead of standing still?... That you were "moving" with the water...

Let's take this thought and think about it in reference to everyday living. Isn't it true that too many times we stand on the side lines and watch other people accomplish things. We feel we are part of it because we are so near, but are we really part of it?

Isn't it true that if you want to have fun in the water, you must go out in the boat? Likewise, if we want to help others, we must get into the front line and do our share, not just think we are aiding them by standing idly by and watching. There are so many places where we all can help.

This is especially true in our fast paced and hectic time we live in today. Each community and church projects needs more earnest, sincere workers. It is up to each one of us to boost the cause nearest to our hearts, by giving generously of our time and talents, "not standing on the dock" and watching others work...

New Dugouts, Light Tower At Adams Field

The 47-year old Adams baseball field on Southern Artery will be sporting two new players' dugouts when the 1986 season opens next month thanks to the generosity of the South Shore Bank and the Sons of Italy.

Each organization donated $4,000 to the Citizens Committee For A Better Adams Field headed by John Ricciuti, Phil Ricciuti, Robert Osborne, Nicholas Malvesti, Lawrence Ready and Sam Mele.

The cement works including walls and floor was installed by J.F.K. Form Company at a cost of $4,000 while Russell Erickson, carpenter, was engaged to provide the roof and support construction, bench installation, painting and finish work at an estimated $3,000 cost. The balance will be used to grade and apply a stone dust walkway around the two structures.

The 70-foot light tower purchased to replace the pole felled during Hurricane Gloria was expected to arrive for erection yesterday (Wednesday) with new fixtures and wiring to be completed immediately following. The light replacement cost is $24,700 with the largest cost the replacement of the 70-foot tower.

Mass. Bay Electrical

Corp., low bidder, is the electrical contractor assigned to the project. The Union Fence Co. of East Bridgewater will rebuild the chainlink backstop at the popular site at a cost of $6830 while Marr Scaffolding Company with a low bid of $5560 will refurbish the damaged bleachers. $4500 will be expended to refurbish and repair the damaged infield area. The $41,590 total has been approved by the federal government as part of the city's hurricane damage reimbursement.

It is hoped that weather conditions permitting all of the repairs will be completed before April 14. The North Quincy High and Quincy High School teams will play six games each under the lights. Athletic Director Martin Finnegan requested and the Park and Recreation Board approved the high school field request.

The lights were installed in 1973 at Adams Field and dedicated to the late Mario L. Carloni at a cost of $80,000 with eight poles and 100 lamps providing the illumination of the regulation baseball field considered one of the finest installations in Eastern Massachusetts.

The original baseball field was constructed during 1937-38 under the Works Progress Administration of the Federal Government and was dedicated on May 6, 1939.

The outfield dimensions at the time were identical to the former Braves Field. The red brick restrooms were constructed in 1968 with Federal Urban Beautification Funds at a cost of $12,000.

Adams Field is part of the 80-acre Merrymount Park tract left to the City of Quincy by Charles Francis Adams in 1885 and the area also includes the Pageant Field area, Collins Rest-A-While, Upper Merrymount Field and the Quincy Recreational Boating Site at Black's Creek. Veterans Memorial Stadium was also constructed during the WPA era while the varsity soccer field was built with Urban Beautification Funds in 1969 by the Park Department.

Others utilizing Adams Field during the baseball season as well as Quincy and North Quincy High Schools are Quincy, Wollaston and Morrisette American Legion teams as their home field, the Quincy entry of the South Shore Coast League and the Babe Ruth League in the early evening games.

Adams Field is the most used facility in the city with approximately 200 games scheduled each year at the Southern Artery recreational location.

Permanent Lighting At Stadium Approved

The Quincy School Committee, by a 7-0 vote, recently accepted the proposal made by The Committee to Light Veterans Memorial Stadium that it be allowed, at its own expense, to install permanent lighting at Veterans Memorial Stadium in time for the 1986 football season.

Presentations were made to the school committee by Bob Meenan, representing the committee and the Quincy Football Parents Association, and William Dolan, representing the North Quincy High Football Boosters.

The Committee to Light Veterans Memorial Stadium will hold a formal meeting Tuesday, April 8, in room 117 at Quincy High School and anyone interested in the project is welcome to attend.

Last fall the Quincy and North Quincy football teams played one night game each at the stadium with much larger crowds than at Saturday afternoon games.

Billy Blanks Seeks 5th Straight Karate N.E. 'Superstar' Title

Billy Blanks, touted as the greatest sport karate point fighter ever, will lay his talents on the line Saturday in the New England Open Karate championships at Shapiro Sports Complex, Brandeis University in Waltham.

As this year's top seed, he is vying for his fifth straight New England Open "Superstar" title. Last year's final match saw Billy emerge victorious over N.E. Patriot Andre Tippitt in an outstanding battle.

At Blanks' Karate Academy in Quincy Center, the martial arts doesn't hurt, it helps.

Blanks, a five time world karate champion, physically proved that statement during an Open House at his 10 Chestnut St., studio by demonstrating true champion prowess in the martial arts before a large audience. He also showed, through deep meditation and concentration, one has the ability to shatter wooden boards and bricks.

Joining him at the event were special guests Rocky DeRico, a Massachusetts karate promoter, and Harry Krebs, the New York manager of the Budweiser national karate team.

Black belt students Lamont Johnson, Shawn Grafton and Matthew Caliri gave an exciting match and Joseph Buzzanco, a student from Erie, Pa., showed the audience self defense movements.

BILLY BLANKS

Following a question and answer session, Blanks said his studio is tuned to building self confidence and self control, physical fitness and character in our students.

The beginners class, offered at a special introductory rate, includes karate, self defense, aerobics, weight training, total physical fitness and diet counseling.

Blanks, of Weymouth, is at the crest of an ambition to make karate recognized as a competitive sport and the acceptance of martial artists as serious athletes.

He made an excellent showing in the qualifying round of the Superstars competition which was shown on NBC's Sportsworld on March 30. He was also featured on the cover of the January issue of "Inside Karate" and will make an appearance in a movie, "Savage Sunday," due for theater release this spring.

Those interested for course instructions can call 773-2028.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

NEARLY IDEAL INVESTMENT

QUESTION: Why has the ownership of real estate been such a good investment over the years?

ANSWER: Historically, real estate has been nearly the ideal investment. During inflation, real estate's value has increased faster than the general price rise. In times of recession, real estate has maintained a higher value than most other assets.

When we combine the growth forces of real estate with the advantages of leverage (using other people's money) and then add the incomparable tax benefits — we can readily understand why more millionaires are made in real estate than in any other endeavor.

HISTORICALLY real estate has always been an excellent investment for many reasons.

WEEK OF: APRIL 3, 1986

AQUARIUS — January 21-February 19

A long-awaited phone call or letter and an overdue check may arrive by Wednesday. In relationships, seek out areas of common interest. Spring cleaning can include a significant discovery.

PISCES — February 20-March 20

Calculated risk may pay off but rely more on logic than intuition. Inventive spirit soars. Brush up your skills in the areas of advertising, salesmanship and public speaking.

ARIES — March 21-April 20

Early April brings showers of announcements regarding celebrations, promotions and unexpected travel. The week also includes some very serious thinking about the direction your career path is taking.

TAURUS — April 21-May 22

Pay attention to details at work and don't ignore your hunches. Healthwise, listen to messages that your body may be conveying. Overdue acknowledgment or promotion may arrive by Wednesday.

GEMINI — May 23-June 21

New styles suit your mood, but avoid any dramatic changes in your appearance. Research pays off - a trip to the library may bring rewards. Youngsters respond positively to your suggestions.

CANCER — June 22-July 22

Bright colors and bright ideas are highlighted through this dynamic period. Be careful when choosing a confidant. Judgment may be hazy here, especially through the weekend.

LEO — July 23-August 22

You find yourself in elegant surroundings and may be rubbing shoulders with a celebrity. Travel opportunities are bright. Extra caution is required in mechanical matters.

VIRGO — August 23-September 22

This is a splendid time for updating your wardrobe and redecorating your environment. In romance, the signs are encouraging, but your sense of perspective is all important.

LIBRA — September 23-October 22

It's important to read all insurance and related policies from cover to cover, and essential to ask all questions, no matter how trivial. It's easier than usual to approach higherups.

SCORPIO — October 23-November 21

Your recommendations are taken seriously by higherups and by relatives, but you may have difficulties conveying expectations to a favorite friend. Actions, however, speak louder than words.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22-December 21

Mechanical abilities may be sharper than usual; this is a good period for developing skills in computer or other technologies. Romancewise, renewed commitment is the present theme.

CAPRICORN — December 22-January 20

Friendship is the focus of the week. A one time admirer may contact you, while a new relationship is launched. If thinking about writing a story, the timing is excellent.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Originality is a well known trait, and in the coming eight months can give you the edge in a career or community project. The key is to keep your impulsive streak - another famous trait - under control. Partnership activities are highlighted toward the end of 1986.

BORN THIS WEEK

April 3rd, actress Doris Day; 4th, actor Anthony Perkins; 5th, actor Gregory Peck; 6th, actress Michelle Phillips; 7th, actor James Garner; 8th, actor John Gavin; 9th, actress Michael Learned.

Mutual Fund Investing Made Easier By Quincy Savings Bank

For the first time, the public can invest in mutual funds at a local savings bank. Quincy Savings Bank at 1200 Hancock St. and its branches in North Quincy, Quincy Center, Quincy Point and South Quincy.

The service comes at the right time for those who are rushing to open or add to IRAs or Qualified Retirement Plans by the April 15 deadline.

Quincy Savings Bank, through its affiliate MAC Financial Services, is one of the first banks in Massachusetts to offer mutual funds.

"No other bank offers a service such as this," according to President Charles R. Simpson, Jr. "It's designed to serve the average consumer and small business person, as well as larger individual and corporate investors."

"Also, we offer one-stop convenience, personal service, and objective advice on the full range of mutual funds. That's a combination you really can't get anywhere else."

Mutual funds are best described as packages of stocks, bonds, and/or money market securities which are managed by professionals. By diversifying or spreading money among dozens of different investments, the fund reduces the investor's risk. Over the past twenty years the average mutual fund has not only outpaced inflation, but earned considerable profits for investors. With over one thousand mutual funds available there is a fund for every type of investor and investment goal—immediate income, steady growth, tax free income, or a place to put IRA or Qualified Plan money.

Customers interested in investing in a mutual fund are able to meet with Quincy Savings Bank's Registered Investment Advisor, Jeanne Neville, who helps them find the fund (or funds) which best suits their needs. Neville notes, "the task of selecting the best fund has become increasingly difficult for the investor as increasing numbers of funds compete for money. By working with an investment advisor who does not work for a commercial brokerage firm, investors aren't limited to advice on a single firm's funds. We offer objective advice on a broad range of funds."

Billions of IRA dollars are currently pouring into mutual funds.

"While bank certificates of deposit have traditionally attracted a large chunk of the IRA and Qualified Plan market, the healthy stock market, declining interest rates, and growing retirement accounts have led many investors to take a more aggressive approach to investing," said Simpson.

"The limited risk, combined with the ability to invest in a mutual fund which meets the goals of the customer, have made mutual funds extremely popular investment vehicles," Simpson continued.

Through its Registered Investment Advisor, Quincy Savings Bank is able to customize a plan and structure a portfolio for the individual investor's or business' needs. For example, says Neville, "deciding where to invest your retirement money depends on many factors, including when you want to retire, what your financial responsibilities will be, and what kind of lifestyle you plan for retirement. Investors nearing retirement age may want to keep their money in no-risk CDs. Younger and more venturesome investors may want to consider more speculative stock funds, or a combination of stocks and bonds which will provide the potential for growth while maintaining a comfortable margin for security."

Simpson says the addition of mutual funds broadens the range of financial services offered by the Quincy Savings Bank, which is the largest savings bank on the South Shore, and enables the bank to serve a broader range of customers.

THOMAS NUTLEY

Councillor Thomas Nutley has written to Quincy's four state legislators offering his assistance to remove Moon Island as the final choice for relocation of the Deer Island Jail.

In letters to Sen. Paul Harold, Reps. Robert Cerasoli, Thomas Brownell and Michael Morrissey, Nutley stated:

"While you, as the State Legislator, will properly lead the battle on the State level to remove Moon Island as the final choice, I would like to offer you my assistance, the assistance of the City Council and the marshalling of community efforts, if necessary. I would also like to point out some details that might aid you:

"First, the other alternative site, the Boston-Southampton Street Old Incinerator Site, is a far better location for the jail than Moon Island for a variety of reasons:

"One, it is just off the Expressway and its convenient entrance and exit ramps would provide quick and virtually invisible access and egress for court officers and other jail personnel. It would also provide far easier and less expensive access for visitors (many of them low-income families) than would a distant island prison (a concept that was humanely ended many years ago by concerned administrators, with the demolition of the infamous Alcatraz Prison on San Francisco Bay.)

"Second, a jail at the Southampton Street site and the route to it from the adjacent Expressway would not impact on a residential area as would the Moon Island route through Atlantic and Squantum. In fact, the Southampton Street - Old Incinerator Site is enclosed in the Industrial-Commercial Newmarket Business area and the building of a prison there would not impact at all on any residential area.

"Further, the business people of that Newmarket Business Area were polled and were evenly divided in their feelings regarding the building of a jail in that exact location. Those opposed vaguely feared the perceived stigma of a prison in the area; those in favor envisioned no such stigma, but saw the construction of the prison as a concurrent opportunity to obtain a physical upgrading of the area via new streets and sidewalks and new street lighting, etc. I feel sure that optimistic opinion would be in the majority now.

"I am concerned also and question why the 180 acres of the former State Hospital grounds in Dorchester-Mattapan have been deleted from final consideration.

Would it be unreasonable to ask that ten acres of that vast area be used for the jail site? I suggest that you explore the possibility of re-adding this site to the list of final alternatives; or failing that, enlist the support of those legislators to help us place the jail at the Newmarket-Southampton Street Business Area.

"Of additional interest is the fact that the Boston Mayor's spokesperson was quoted as preferring to have the jail relocated to the proposed new Charles Street Jail site at Nashua Street.

"I believe that the Mayor of Boston recognizes, as do we, that the opening up of either Lonn Island or Moon Island to construction would signal the end of a wondrous opportunity to use those islands as unoppressive, clean-air recreational vistas for us all now and for future generations of Boston, Quincy and South Shore residents.

"It is imperative that the entire Quincy delegation, city and state, as well as the people demonstrate our combined opposition to the building of a jail on either Long or Moon Island and that we seize this challenge and opportunity to move forward towards saving these islands as exploratory and recreational opportunities for our children, urban and suburban, who will one day weigh and judge the actions and decisions of all of those involved in this important decision."

NATURAL GAS THE MODERN ALTERNATIVE

Take a big load off laundry costs with a new gas dryer.

- Nothing dries clothes more economically than a natural gas dryer. Clean, efficient gas dries more loads than electric dryers do for the same cost.
- Nothing dries clothes faster than a natural gas dryer. It moves more warm air through the drying drum.
- A reliable gas dryer maintains its efficiency year after year. Your dryer lasts longer.

Burning calories before you eat them? Take control with a gas range.

- Professional chefs demand natural gas ranges for the precise temperature control they need.
- Only a clean, gas flame adjusts instantly from high heat to low, low to high and everything in between.
- A gas range's flexible flame hugs every size pot and pan perfectly, for total heat distribution.
- With gas, there's no warm-up or cool-down delay. You start cooking instantly, and have control to stop boiling over, burning and splattering.

'Could Build Ships Next Year' Shipyard Can Be Saved Says Donnelly

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

"We can save the Quincy shipyard," says Cong. Brian Donnelly. "It's not going to happen tomorrow, but I think we're starting to see some light at the end of the tunnel."

During a recent visit to Quincy, Donnelly discussed the future of the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard which is scheduled to close this spring.

The yard's future was also scheduled to be discussed last night (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. at City Hall at a public meeting held by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Special Task Force on General Dynamics.

"For the first time in a long time, the pieces are starting to come together," said Donnelly.

"We could be building ships by this time next year."

"The yards which survive this decade will prosper in the 1990s."

"The time frame is the most difficult thing. We don't want the workforce disbanded."

Some of the pieces which Donnelly referred to involve a state study, work for the yard, buyers, and incentives for shipbuilding.

A state study by Booz, Allen & Hamilton indicates that there should be a dual use of the Quincy shipyard for long term stability of the workforce on the property, according to Donnelly.

A percentage of the pro-

perty should be left for steel and metal industry according to the study, said Donnelly, while keeping the capability to build ships.

Our analysis differs from that of General Dynamics, he noted.

A study done for General Dynamics said the corporation has a good chance of selling the site for reuse as an industrial park or redevelopment as an industrial park or a mixed use complex.

"The fact that General Dynamics owns the property is a fundamental problem," said Donnelly.

"But whoever goes into the site will need the cooperation of the state, city and federal government for such things as permits," explained Donnelly.

He said it is the consensus of those groups that the yard be used for industrial purposes, not for condos, hotels and marinas, he said.

"We'll use all of our combined influence to prevent that from happening."

"We're getting information out to potential buyers interested in dual use that cooperation awaits them," he said.

Donnelly said there has been a lot of interest shown in the shipyard, but a great factor has been the lack of ships to build.

But the Mariner Fund and Capital Cost Construction Fund could provide a market to keep the yard's work force intact.

The Mariner Fund, co-sponsored by Donnelly, could result in the construction of as many as 18 merchant ships in up to five US shipyards with $852 million set aside by Congress.

"While the administration has expressed strong opposition to the Mariner funding, I intend to persevere in my efforts to gain enactment of

Check FHA Insurance Washington Trip For Mayor, QCH Director

Mayor Francis McCauley and Quincy City Hospital director Mark Mundy flew to Washington Tuesday to attempt to resolve some unanswered questions regarding QCH's request for FHA insurance.

Also making the one day trip were Peter Kenney, the mayor's executive secretary; and a representative from the Shawmut Bank.

"I'm hopeful we'll be able to get approval," said McCauley.

Mundy told the City Council in March that he was "guardedly optimistic" the facility would be the first public hospital in the country to receive FHA insurance.

He also said that the hospital filed its application in September, 1984, and could afford to wait another 30 to 60 days before trying to develop an alternative plan for funding sources.

If the FHA insurance is forthcoming, Phase 1 of the hospital's $60 million reconstruction program can begin June 1 with the demolition of Faxon House and the Power Plant, according to Mundy.

Budget Hearings Start Monday

The Finance Committee of the Quincy City Council will begin hearings on the city's $92,017,245 fiscal budget for 1987 Monday, April 14, at 6:30 p.m. in the City Hall Council Chambers.

Hearings on 23 departments are scheduled to take place. The last hearing is set for 8:20 p.m., according to committee chairman Richard Koch, Jr.

Mayor Francis McCauley presented the budget to the City Council Monday night.

The budget reflects an increase of $6,939,069, or 8.16 per cent, over fiscal year 1986 expenditures to date, according to McCauley.

A major portion of the budget increase reflects the impact of three year contracts negotiated during the past year with the city employee unions, he said.

"I believe the amount funded for the various city departments will allow our city government to continue to provide an acceptable level of city services in fiscal year 1987," said McCauley in the appropriations report.

CBS Movie

O'Donnell Family Real 'Deadly Force' Stars

By DAN CONNELLY

A Quincy family of attorneys, father and two sons, are the real life stars of the TV movie "Deadly Force," that was to be aired last night (Wednesday) on Channel 7 and the CBS network.

Lawrence O'Donnell, Sr., of 390 Adams St., Quincy, who practices law with sons, Lawrence, Jr. and Michael at 1147 Hancock St., championed the case of Patricia Bowden of Roxbury, whose husband, James, was fatally shot by two Boston police officers 11 years ago when Boston was in the throes of racial strife in its first year of school desegregation.

Richard Crenna, a TV veteran, plays the role of the senior O'Donnell which is based on a book written by his son, Lawrence O'Donnell Jr. His younger son Michael worked on the case with his father.

On Jan. 29, 1975, Edward Holland and Dennis McKenna, had a car under surveillance in the Mission Hill project of Roxbury. They believed the vehicle had been used in a Cambridge robbery.

During that surveillance Bowden, then age 25, was dropped off near the car and got into it.

The police car pulled up and both officers jumped out, revolvers drawn. Then a succession of gun blasts followed.

Their version of the story is that Bowden tried to run them down and they fired in self-defense. A gun found nearby under the car was used to bolster the story.

Bowden's widow, a mother of two young children, believed her husband innocent and went looking for an attorney who would believe her.

She found the senior O'Donnell, a former Boston police officer-turned lawyer.

O'Donnell, who today serves on the Board of Managers at Quincy City Hospital, knew it was a high-risk case because there were tensions between blacks and police.

He took the case to the federal civil court, pointing out inconsistencies and unanswered questions in the police version.

In 1978 a six-member, all white jury sided with Mrs. Bowden. They awarded her and her children $250,000.

Through appeals and snags, the case dragged on while interest on the award continued to accumulate. In March 1984 Boston Mayor Ray Flynn turned over to the Bowden family $843,000.

O'Donnell's entire family worked on the case. The younger Lawrence wrote a book about it and how it entwined the two families, one white, one black.

The book, published in 1983, was called "Deadly Force: The True Story of How a Badge Can Become a License To Kill."

A New York television company entered into a contract with CBS to make it into a two-hour TV movie. Memories of the shooting

Quincy Savings Bank Plans Conversion to Stock

Charles A. Pearce, Chairman of Quincy Savings Bank, announces that the Board of Trustees has unanimously adopted a proposed Plan of Conversion to convert Quincy Savings Bank from a mutual savings bank to a stock savings bank and in connection therewith to form a holding company.

Pearce noted that in adopting the Plan, it was the desire of the Board of Trustees to attract new capital to the bank in order to increase the availability of funds for lending and investment purposes and, through the formation of a holding company, to facilitate the diversification of financial services and entry into new markets.

The proposed conversion of Quincy Savings Bank will be accomplished pursuant to Massachusetts law and the rules and regulations of the Massachusetts Commissioner of Banks.

The conversion, which is expected to be completed in the summer of 1986, is subject to regulatory approval and the approval of the Bank's Corporators at a special meeting to be called for that purpose.

CHARLES A. PEARCE

Pearce said that the normal business of the bank in accepting deposits and making loans will continue without interruption and that Quincy Savings Bank, after conversion, will continue to offer its wide range of customer services to depositors, borrowers and the general public from its existing offices.

Pearce emphasized that no change will be made in the bank's current policies, management or in the status of any deposit account as a result of the conversion.

Deposits will continue to be insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and Deposit Insurance Fund of Massachusetts after the conversion. In addition, borrowers' loans will be unaffected by the conversion; the contractual terms of such loans will remain the same as they existed prior to the conversion.

Persons having deposits in Quincy Savings Bank as of a selected date, will be able to exercise subscription rights to purchase capital stock in the newly formed holding company under the Plan of Conversion.

The value of the stock offering and the number of shares to be issued will be determined by an independent appraisal of the bank as required under Massachusetts law and the Plan of Conversion. Information relating to the stock offering will be contained in the prospectus which will be furnished to all eligible purchasers.

Quincy Savings Bank, founded in 1845, operates through its headquarters office in Quincy, Massachusetts, and through eight branch offices located in Quincy, Braintree, Norwell and Hanover. The bank had total assets of approximately $443 million at December 31, 1985.

On PUD Zoning

More Questions Than Answers At Shipyard Meeting

More questions were raised than answered during an hour long public hearing Monday night by the City Council and Planning Board on amending the zoning for General Dynamics from Industrial B to Planned Unit Development.

The questions involve whether the rezoning of the shipyard:

- Would hamper efforts by General Dynamics to sell the yard because Industrial B, which allows heavy industry, would not be allowed under PUD designation.

- To what extent the shipyard would have legal nonconforming rights to continue the current use even if it were rezoned.

- Whether the City Council could strike out the Industrial B restriction from the PUD zoning ordinance.

Leading off the proponents of the zoning amendment was Councilor Theodore DeCristofaro who had suggested the change and in whose ward the yard is located.

DeCristofaro said he proposed the amendment so that the City Council and city will have input into what goes into the yard which is scheduled to close this spring.

The PUD designation would mean that the Planning Board would have to give a favorable recommendation and two thirds of the City Council would have to approve plans for the site before a building permit was issued.

"It is my feeling and that of the majority of the councilors, that we convert it to PUD," said DeCristofaro.

When the Council president (Stephen McGrath) met with some members of General Dynamics, there were some questions and one was concerning Industrial B," he said.

DeCristofaro asked Principle Planner Richard Meade if he thought the rezoning to PUD could include Industrial B.

"I think it could be amended," replied Meade.

Another proponent was Councilor Michael Cheney who said, "Quite frankly, we don't trust General Dynamics. We've had a poor relationship."

Also speaking in favor were Joseph Hajjar, a Quincy Point businessman; George O'Kane, president of Shipyard Workers Local 5; and Rep. Robert Cerasoli.

"I'm very concerned about the type of development in the area," said Cerasoli. "I have no problem with putting PUD in the council's hands."

"I'm interested in representing the people in the area, what's the best thing for them, and what will increase the value of the property."

"If it's condos, so be it, I have no problem with that," Cerasoli also said the restriction against Industrial B would not be a problem since the yard would have nonconforming rights.

City Solicitor Jay MacRitchie said later that the yard would have nonconforming rights, but the question would be the extent of the rights.

Atty. James Brown, who represented General Dynamics, objected to the amendment proposal and said a letter to that effect has been filed with the city clerk's office.

"General Dynamics believes this to be a well-intentioned proposal, but one which is inadvertently harmful to the future use of the shipyard and is unnecessary in any case," according to the letter signed by GD general counsel Carter Eltzroth.

"The current P.U.D. proposal would have the following adverse effects:

- The site could only be reused as of right for detached, single-family residence.

- The site has been used as a job-producing, heavy industry facility for more than 100 years. Such continued use would be prohibited by P.U.D.

- The proposed PUD may lower market value of property and tax revenues for Quincy. Employment levels may be depressed.

"The proposed PUD unlawfully discriminates against the property of a single owner."

"General Dynamics suggests that a better solution would be to modify the current PUD proposal to provide for an overlay PUD (similar to the flood plain district in Quincy)."

The overlay concept has been used in Boston, Cambridge and Somerville, according to Brown.

"The overlay concept has some merit," said Councilor James Sheets. "I'd like to see the definition of Industrial B or shipbuilding changed."

"All the councilors would like to see the yard remain."

"We have to protect the people, but we don't want to close the door on shipbuilding."

The hearing was recessed, rather than closed, to allow written comment on the proposal to be submitted.

5 Youths Charged In Fire

Five neighborhood youths have been arrested in connection with the March 17 fire at the Snug Harbor School which caused an estimated $70,000 damage.

The arrests were made April 3, after an intensive investigation by Sgt. Thomas Frane, Det. Thomas Malvesti, Det. William Stenmon and Det. Barbara DiNatale of the juvenile department.

The youths were scheduled to appear at Quincy District Court.

Five were charged with breaking and entering with intent to commit a felony into the school, and four were charged with burning a public building.

Two are 16 years old, two are 15 years old and one is 14, according to police.

Three of the five have a previous history with the juvenile court, and all five reside in the neighborhood surrounding the school, police said.

There is no connection between the Snug Harbor incident, the fire in North Quincy which are attributed to an arsonist, said Lt. Neil MacDonald of the Detective Bureau. There is also no connection with the fire at Tobin Towers, he said.

The investigation showed that four of the five juveniles broke into the school by removing a metal grating from the window and kicking out a plexiglass window, according to police.

After participating in the break, one of the juveniles went on the roof of the school and acted as a look-out, police said. The other four ransacked the room looking for money and threw desks and chairs around.

Cans and bottles were piled on the floor and an accelerator from a supply closet in the room was used to ignite the material, said police.

The youths then fled, according to police.

None of them could give a reason for what happened, police said.

Council Seeks Funds To Reopen Wollaston School

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The City Council adopted a resolve Monday night to request the mayor to review the budget figures for the purpose of reallocating funds to reopen the Wollaston School.

The resolve, introduced by Councillor Patricia Toland, followed a discussion of the issue by councillors and Mayor Francis McCauley, who was at the meeting to introduce the city budget.

McCauley told the council that the city would probably end 1986 with a modest surplus.

Councillor John Lydon asked if the surplus might be used to reopen the Wollaston School.

The School Committee voted 5 to 2 recently to reopen the school to ease overcrowding at the elementary level.

McCauley, who voted against the reopening as did School Committee member Mary Collins, said he would not allocate the $300,000 to $600,000 to renovate and reopen the school.

He said Monday night it would be in the best interest of the city to move the boundary lines for the schools, and to take care of the needs of the existing school buildings.

Lydon said that reopening the Wollaston School is becoming a larger issue in the Wollaston area.

"Maybe down the line, we might get the money out of you," Lydon told McCauley.

In response to a question by Councillor Joseph LaRaia, McCauley said he did not intend to dispose of the school.

"We'll retain it for a few years, and see where the numbers (of students) go."

McCauley also said he might consider turning over the school on short leases to community groups, as was done with the former Beechwood Knoll School in Wollaston.

Mrs. Toland said that 60 per cent of the cost of reopening the school would be reimbursable, and there would be a reduction in bus-ing costs.

She also said that if the school isn't reopened there may be problems with vandalism.

"I support the reopening," said Council president Stephen McGrath. "We ought to have a neighborhood school (in Wollaston).

"The Education Committee has looked at this closely, and is urging the mayor to make the money available."

Council Adopts Resolve On Health Coordinator's Pension

The City Council adopted a resolve Monday night asking that the retirement board consider funding former acting health coordinator Richard Stuart's disability pension beginning the fiscal year 1985-1986.

Councillor Michael Cheney, who introduced the resolve, explained to the board that Stuart, who suffered a heart attack on the job, will not be returning to his job.

Stuart has eight years service with the city, but 10 years are required for a full pension, according to Cheney.

"He did an outstanding job," said Cheney. "I feel very deeply that it is the least we can do to look into the situation so that he might enjoy some kind of retirement."

Councillor James Sheets agreed. "He was very responsive to us, we should be responsive to him."

"It's time we showed some compassion towards him," said Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro.

Stuart became acting health coordinator after the death of Health Commissioner Dr. M. Grace Hussey.

City Council Opposes Moon Island Jail

The City Council adopted a resolve Monday night to offer its support to the Quincy legislative delegation in its efforts to have Moon Island removed from final consideration as the site for relocation of the Deer Island Jail.

The resolve was introduced by Councillor Thomas Nutley who last week wrote to Quincy's four state legislators offering his assistance in the effort.

He sent a similar letter to the governor this week.

"It would be a tragic sin if they put a prison on Moon Island," said Nutley Monday night.

Councillor Michael Cheney said, "We have to send a message to the governor that this is a decision we ought to be in on."

"We have to nip this in the bud," agreed Councillor Patricia Toland. "We have to raise public awareness, and set a date for a public hearing."

In his letter to the governor, Nutley stated in part, "I suggest that building the prison on a relatively untouched Moon Island with the concomitant traffic, congestion and loss of potential recreational opportunities would be to commit a sin against current and future residents of Boston, Quincy and the South Shore who would all, I am sure, judge harshly those decision-makers of the Eighties."

Pay Equity/Comparable Worth To Be Discussed At City Hall

The Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women is sponsoring a meeting on pay equity/comparable worth issues in the work place.

The meeting will be held at 7:15, Thursday, April 10, in the Quincy City Hall Council Chambers.

The commission task force will make public their findings on the pay equity study that took place during Fall, 1985 through Winter, 1986.

In addition, a panel discussion will be held to address the issues of the monetary value of women's jobs.

The panelists include: Jackie Cooke, Legislative Agent for The American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees; Susan Ann Horwitz, Attorney for Sandulli & Grace; and Elizabeth Rodgers, attorney for Kehoe, Doyle, Playter & Novick.

The public is invited to attend. Admission is free.

Armed Robbery Nets $275

About $275 in cash was reported stolen during an armed robbery at Energy Retailers, 665 Quincy Shore Drive.

The weekend manager reported to police that a man in a running jacket entered the station with a screw driver in his hand and demanded money.

The man then told the manager, as well as the manager's wife and son who had come to drive him home, to get in the back room and lie down on the floor.

He fled north on the boulevard, according to police.

Says Natsios Should Step Down As GOP Chairman

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As a Republican activist, I respectfully urge GOP state chairman Andrew Natsios to reconsider his decision to maintain his position as state chairman while being a candidate for State Auditor.

The chairmanship position should be a full-time one and Natsios will be spreading himself so thin holding down three roles (state chairman, statewide candidate and current state representative) that he will do none any real justice.

There are any number of capable men and women within the ranks of the state Republican Party to draw a new chairman from and the decision to resign would, also, remove any appearance of conflict of interest on the part of Chairman Natsios. One has to be concerned about a state chairman supervising the election of Republican candidates while he, himself, is a candidate for Auditor.

It is good to see a Republican with good name-recognition running for a statewide office since the last Republican elected statewide was US Senator Edward Brooke in 1972 but the negative publicity already generated by Natsios' decision not to resign his GOP post is impairing his ability to win in November.

For the sake of the party and of his own political goals, Natsios should step down and turn the party leadership over to a new chairman.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Steve Downing, Manager
WHOLESALE VS RETAIL LAND

QUESTION: I have the opportunity to purchase a large tract of land in a good location. My Realtor tells me that if I subdivide it, the total value of all the lots will be worth far more than the value of the entire tract as is. Is this true?

ANSWER: In the normal marketplace, there are two price levels — wholesale and retail. The purchase and sale of raw land is no different. A review of the sales price history of any large parcel of land will show abrupt jumps as the acreage is subdivided and sold off in smaller lots.

Therefore, consider bulk buying of land at a wholesale level a good way to buy. It costs less to buy and will sell for more at "retail".

NORMALLY, the larger the tract of land you buy, the less it will cost per acre.

LaRaia Warming To Mayor Run

Joseph LaRaia is warming up to another run for mayor.

"I'm thinking about it," he frankly admits.

How serious?

"I have been seriously thinking about it for the past couple of months."

If he were to run, when: next year or 1989?

"I think I would be inclined to go next year, but I really don't know. It's too soon. It would depend on what the situation was then."

LAIRAIA

McCAULEY

LaRaia says he is more serious about running for mayor now than he has ever been since he ran and won in 1975.

That was the bitter campaign in which incumbent Walter Hannon seemed to have turned back LaRaia's challenge by 134 votes.

Then, after charges and counter charges LaRaia was declared the winner on a recount by 483 votes.

After a two-year stormy administration, LaRaia was ousted by Arthur Tobin.

Most of the experts said he was finished politically. But he came bouncing back in 1979 to win a City Council at-large seat.

LaRaia who was first elected to the Council in 1959 from Ward 2, is still a young 53.

Observers think he has mellowed considerably since his politically brawls with Hannon and Tobin. He has also been mending a few political fences.

LaRaia and the late Mayor-Senator James R. McIntyre were once good friends and then became political enemies.

But they seemed to be in the process of patching things up a bit when McIntyre suddenly died after surgery in 1984.

Since then, LaRaia has extended the olive branch to a number of followers from the old McIntyre camp.

Not too long ago you wouldn't catch them talking to one another. A few of the McIntyre die-hards have not given in and probably won't. Never, they still insist.

But a good number of them — probably mellowing too — seem to be willing to let bygones be bygones. At least they can be seen chatting with LaRaia at functions or on the street. And there's more and more handshaking.

LaRaia was one of the former mayors who backed the re-naming of old City Hall as the James R. McIntyre Government Center. It didn't hurt his present relationship with McIntyre followers.

Some observers have long felt LaRaia someday would run for mayor again to vindicate his stormy 1976-77 administration.

Ask him now why he would want to be mayor again and he will tell you:

"I would like to do something for the city. To accomplish something good for the city."

But would he really take on McCauley next year?

He thinks he sees signs of McCauley's popularity slipping a bit and the headaches of being mayor getting to him a little.

Especially in his other role as chairman of the School Committee by virtue of his office as mayor.

He disagrees with McCauley wanting to keep the Wollaston School closed and to closed the Sterling Middle School.

"I think," LaRaia says "that we have closed enough schools in the city. If we close any more we'll one day find ourselves turning around and having to build some to replace them."

He also disagrees with McCauley on the latter's comment that neighborhood schools "are a thing of the past" and "were only for convenience."

LaRaia says people he is hearing from agree with him and not with McCauley.

"Some of them are asking me to run for mayor," he says.

LaRaia says he thinks McCauley is getting a little edgy with people who don't agree with him about the schools and other matters.

"He seems to be making up his mind before a matter is fully discussed and then is short with people who disagree with him."

LaRaia says he is hearing from other people who are encouraging him to run for mayor.

Some are old followers. Some are new faces.

"It's a mixture," he says.

If he were to run, he would have to be reckoned with.

He topped the City Council at-large field last year, so his career right now is definitely on the up-swing.

It may be only coincidental, but a fundraiser for LaRaia is set for Sunday, April 20 at the Grille 29 Restaurant at Quincy Bay Inn. Tickets are $50 per person.

Seems to be an early event for a city council candidate for re-election. But not so early for a city councillor planning to run for mayor.

One more thing: he still has some LaRaia For Mayor signs left over from 1975.

IF MAYOR McCAULEY is getting a little edgy it certainly didn't show during his recent appearance on "For The Record" on Quincy Community Television Ch. 3, hosted by John King.

McCauley announced he was "resigning as mayor to accept a lucrative offer from the private sector."

But he quickly added, before City Council President Stephen McGrath is sworn in as mayor, the show was being videotaped on April 1, April Fool's Day.

And, in case anyone thought he might not be kidding, he assured all he would fill out his term.

OOPS DEPT.: In last week's column we reported that Tim Cahill might be a candidate if Richard Koch vacates his City Council at-large seat this year.

In doing so we referred to Cahill as coach of the Quincy High School wrestling team. Actually, Cahill is former coach. He was succeeded by Richard Schiarizzi. Sorry about that.

stirred police union members who refused to provide protection when the show was filmed in the city two months ago. Subsequently Police Commissioner Francis "Mickey" Roache ordered men there as part of their regular duties.

Author O'Donnell believed the producers cut important sections of the film. He said it is a "police story, a law story, a family story." It's about two families, one white, one black in a difficult period of the city's history, especially regarding race relations.

During the civil court's finding, no criminal charges have ever been brought against the officers. Holland later retired from the force on a disability pension. McKenna is still with the department.

Selected From 300,000 Letter Carriers Carl Soderstrom Named 'Humanitarian Of Year'

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

When one of Carl Soderstrom's daughters was younger, she used to call him "Father Go" because he was always going out the door to help with one activity or another.

On May 6, the National Association of Letter Carriers will refer to the Quincy man by another title, "National Humanitarian of the Year," at ceremonies at NALC headquarters in Washington, D.C.

The award is for Soderstrom's "numerous actions demonstrating care for needy members of the Greater Boston community symbolizing the dedication of letter carriers across America and serving as an inspiration to all NALC members."

"I'm proud to be recognized," said Soderstrom, 46. "But I really find it hard to believe that they're recognizing me out of all the 300,000 letter carriers."

Soderstrom's background makes it easy to believe.

"I've done volunteer work since I was 19," said the gregarious man who stands 6 feet tall.

"Except for the three years that I was in the service, I've always been involved in something."

His activities have ranged from coaching basketball to becoming active in social issues.

"I was involved in the fight to save the Pollard School, and was a member of the Citywide Parents Council," he said.

"But I had to let some things go," said Soderstrom, a 20-year employee of the Postal Service.

He and his wife, Elizabeth, also operate a cleaning agency, Visby Cleaning Service.

A postal union official

CARL SODERSTROM

and co-chairman of the Letter Carriers Muscular Dystrophy Fund, he is chairman of the board of trustees at Quincy Point Congregational Church as well.

Before being assigned to a postal task force in Boston last December, Soderstrom had been a letter carrier in Braintree since 1969.

A few years ago, the Braintree Post Office began offering coffee and donuts to customers at Christmas at the suggestion of Soderstrom and fellow postal worker Tim O'Leary.

Soderstrom also became active in a Thanksgiving dinner given by the Braintree Post Office for senior citizens and held at Monaquot Village.

"The majority of the people who attend are from the Franklin Nursing Home," said Soderstrom.

"It's a great time, a warm time, of the best times," he smiled.

His main interest, however, is Survival, a non-profit, community based agency with offices in Quincy. It has offered a range of services to troubled adolescents and their families, and to people with drug problems, since 1970.

A member of Survival's board of directors, he became interested in drug programs about 1970.

Soderstrom delivered some mail on Hingham's Project Turnabout to the home of Quincy Sun photographer Charles Flogg and his wife, Marge, in Braintree.

After speaking to Mrs. Flogg about the organization, in which she and her husband were active, Soderstrom attended a meeting.

He was with Project Turnabout for five years.

He became involved with Survival in 1976 because it is less of a commute to his Quincy Point home.

"My main love is Survival," he said. "I devote most of my time to it."

"I have a bachelor's degree in sociology, but I learned more with Survival."

The agency has grown a great deal since it began in 1970, according to Soderstrom.

"We now have over $1 million in grants, and employ 45 people," he said.

Soderstrom also said the agency, for those 19 and under, has a home in South Quincy for those with drug problems, and an emergency shelter for abused children in South Weymouth.

His role with the agency is mostly administrative, he explained.

"I'm not anywhere near being a drug counselor," Soderstrom said.

"Survival is part of me in a way. Seeing it grow has been very good."

"I get tired sometimes," said Soderstrom, who puts in 12 to 13 hour days. "But I can't picture myself not associated with Survival."

Soderstrom said he would like to see a home started in Quincy for unwed mothers.

"There's a definite need," he said. "Teenage pregnancy is a crisis."

Soderstrom would also like to finish a book he has started.

"Maybe when I'm 80," he smiled, "when I'm done doing what I'm doing."

For now, he plans to divide his time between Survival, the Postal Union, the church, his wife of 20 years, and four daughters, Debbie, 19; Robin, 13; Holly, 12; and Amy, 11.

"My wife is the one who should be getting this award," he said. "She's put up with me."

"I couldn't have done all this without her."

ST. JOHN'S HONORS MSGR. OWENS

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Owens was honored by parishioners of St. John's Church with a gigantic reception at the armory. The occasion was his elevation by Pope Pius XII to the position of Domestic Prelate.

Some 2,000 attended the event. A special telephone hook-up was built between the armory and the church convent since the sisters were unable to attend the event because of the rules of their order.

PLANS FOR NEW CITY HALL UNVEILED

A solution to the problem of a new City Hall was unveiled. It was proposed that the new building be erected as part of a national shrine for John and John Quincy Adams. In that way, it was thought that the federal and state governments would help pay for the cost of construction.

The plans called for the city hall to be built on the edge of the square, on Washington St. between Coddington St. and Faxon Ave., noting that the area "was not occupied by buildings of great value or significance."

The design was Georgian Colonial with a steeple similar to that of Independence Hall in Philadelphia. The design also showed a memorial wing, with a civic auditorium.

FOR THE BRIDE • FOR THE GROOM

Unexpected origins of wedding customs

It happens in every wedding: The bride and groom exchange rings. They share cake. The bride throws her bouquet. But do you know how these customs began? THE BRIDE: A Celebration (Harry N. Abrams, Inc.), a book by Barbara Tober, Editor-in-Chief of Bride's magazine, reveals their sometimes surprising origins.

The bride throws her bouquet so an unmarried friend can "catch" some luck in romance, goes the modern explanation. But the custom actually started as a form of self-defense.

In times past, belief in the mystical value of a bride's adornments prompted friends and strangers alike to try to grab a piece of her outfit. Eventually, some clever bride found that by flinging her flowers away from herself, the crowd would have something to fight over — and she would escape intact!

The wedding party originally served the serious purpose of protecting the bride and groom from the curses of evil-wishers. They dressed in clothes exactly like those of the bride and groom, so the identity of the happy couple was kept secret on the way to the church and until they were safely married.

The first piece of wedding cake is cut and eaten by the bride and groom as a carry-over from the time when the sharing of food or wine often was the marriage.

The aisle runner protected the bride from evil spirits who, it was thought, lived below the ground. These demons were also feared to lurk around doorways, hence the bride is carried over the threshold of her new home.

Rice symbolizes the age-old hope that the couple will be as fruitful as the earth.

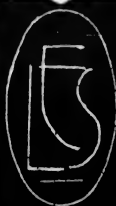

We clink glasses when we toast the bride and groom in order to produce a bell-like sound (bells were believed to be repellent to the devil).

"The kiss," as a significant moment in the wedding, dates from the Roman Empire. At that time, the betrothal ceremony consisted of a kiss and the exchange of rings, with the kiss being the actual legal bond.

The trousseau, or dowry, was actually an early form of life insurance since it was meant to ensure that the bride could survive without her husband if the need arose.

We wear the wedding ring on the third finger of the left hand because the pharaohs of Egypt believed a vein, the "vena amoris," ran from that finger directly to the heart.

The honeymoon began, when, in ancient marriages by capture, the groom kept his bride in hiding to prevent searching relatives from finding her.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Isn't it true that many of us are in such a hurry that we don't stop to enjoy the sweet fragrance of the flowers we encounter as we pass them by? We see their beauty at a glance, but we don't give them a chance to reveal their true worth... Let us compare this thought to the way we sometimes overlook the little things of life, which are largely responsible for many of our enjoyments... the kind deeds... the kind acts...

There are many people who spend their lives doing little things which, unfortunately, go unnoticed by most of us. Still, the flowers they plant along the way help make many enjoyable moments for us.

Many people say, "Give me flowers while I live." But do they stop and take the time to smell them as they pass by? Do they even recognize them? And how often do they give flowers to brighten the lives of others?

Throughout our lives we all have received many bouquets from our family, our friends and our acquaintances. Bouquets of love and thoughtfulness and, yes, bouquets of flowers.

Perhaps today would be a good time to stop and take time to smell the flowers as we pass them by... recognize them. Perhaps today would be a good time to give some flowers... Give a bouquet, whether it be real flowers or a bouquet of kindness with words or actions... The smell is very sweet!

There are many misconceptions about funeral costs. That's not surprising, really, as there are other charges involved in a funeral, then those of the funeral director... cemetery or cremation charge... monuments or markers... newspaper death notices and flowers. Many also believe that funeral directors will not discuss funeral or burial costs frankly and specifically. Nothing could be further from the truth. Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., adjacent to the Quincy Historical Society Home, stands ready to give you whatever cost information you desire at any time. Roger Hamel, Donald McCarthy and Joseph Thompson are thoroughly trained in the profession they have chosen and ready to discuss frankly, funeral cost information. Call the pre-need specialists of Quincy and the South Shore, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home at 472-5888. That's 472-5888.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Range of essentially maintenance-free, permanent building products now includes roofing materials

There has been a trend for many years toward permanent and maintenance-free building products that homeowners do not have to worry about. This trend has included windows, siding and even driveways. With Classic Products' Rustic Shingles, the trend now includes roofing materials.

Rustic Shingles are manufactured of high-quality aluminum and carry a 40-year pro-rated warranty to not rust, peel, flake, chip or split. The special two-coat baked acrylic enamel finish is continually tested to withstand the worst weather conditions.

In addition to long-life durability, Rustic Shingles also provide the distinctive look of hand-split wood shakes. Homeowners choose from among eight colors including an exclusive Weathered Wood Series. With colors ranging from Antique Brown to Weathered Cedar, every architectural style can be enhanced.

Rustic Shingles install directly over existing asphalt, fiberglass and some wood roofs to decrease installation costs and to provide long-lasting, watertight protection. Homeowners need no longer worry about replacing their roof every 10 years or so.

The aluminum shingles also provide energy savings. An independent solar research team received an award from the U.S. Department of Energy for its work in determining that aluminum is an effective barrier for reducing heat infiltration through roofs. This process keeps homes naturally cooler in summer and warmer in winter.

Cooling load reductions of up to 40 percent are achieved with Rustic Shingles. A Victoria, Texas, homeowner had a 20 percent reduction on his total electric bill between June and July after having the product installed.

Even though the weather got hotter over that period, he maintained his home at 76 degrees with substantially less air conditioning.

Rustic Shingles' advantages do not stop with permanence and energy savings, though. They also include fire protection, as aluminum will not ignite.

Rustic Shingles have been the choice roof for over 25 years in areas prone to brush and other outdoor fires. The product carries a Class A U.L. rating and is recommended by fire safety officials and insurance underwriters.

Moderate hail will not damage Rustic Shingles because of their deep texture. The texture, combined with felt underlayment, prevents rain and hail from causing a noise problem.

Long-life durability, energy savings, distinctive looks and fire protection. It's easy to tell why Rustic Shingles protect tens of thousands of homes across the country. The proven product is available internationally.

For a free booklet containing more information on Rustic Shingles, write to Dept. M-7, Classic Products, Inc., P.O. Box 701, Piqua, OH 45356.

THIS 576-SQUARE FOOT GARAGE also stores boats or makes an ideal home shop or garden tool center. Choose contemporary clapboard look or classic round log style. Your DIY package includes timbers, doors, windows, prefabricated roof system. You stack timber on timber—similar to building you once did with toy logs.

Get clean, pool water with proper filtration, chemical use

Proper filtration and chemical use play important roles in providing clean and clear pool water, a major concern of all home swimming pool owners.

As a matter of fact, they complement each other, according to Manville, producer of AquaCel® diatomite filter powder in pre-measured 1-lb. plastic pouches. Effective filtration normally reduces the amount of chemicals required for a sanitary pool.

The filter's main job, says Manville, is to remove dirt and other matter from the water to clarify it.

Complete, or nearly so, removal of particulates from the water by filtration permits the chlorine to effectively destroy bacteria, viruses and soluble organic matter.

The two most commonly used home pool filters employ either diatomite or sand. Diatomite filters require a "precoat" of diatomite filter aid on the filter screen. Actual filtration takes place through this precoat.

When the proper amount of precoat is used, the precoat will be about 1/8 inch thick.

Care should be taken to follow the recommendations of the filter manufacturer or the information on the back of an AquaCel pouch regarding the proper amount of filter powder to use.

New AquaCel packaging, incidentally, makes it easier than ever to have a clean, clear pool. A carton containing 10 sturdy easy-to-pour, easy-to-store 1-lb. plastic pouches saves the trouble and mess of coffee cans, and the pre-measured portions help you pour an accurate dose.

The diatomite precoat, in addition to removing unwanted dirt particles, also prevents these same particles from plugging up the filter element cloth or wire cover, thus reducing filter element cleaning operations.

If the filter elements become plugged or clogged, follow the cleaning directions supplied by your filter manufacturer or consult with your pool water chemical supplier.

Under typical operating conditions, the filtration cycle is over and it's time to clean the filter when the filter pressure gauge reaches the manufacturer's maximum recommended level. Thorough cleanings will extend the time between cleanings.

The other major types of home filters use beds of sand, or sand and gravel, through which the water flows, leaving dirt particles trapped within the sand.

Pool owners should clean them when the dirt accumulated in the sand bed slows down the flow of water through the filter.

EASY TO USE Manville AquaCel diatomite filter powder in pre-measured 1-lb. pouches eliminates the need for messy dispensing with coffee cans, as this pool owner demonstrates.

Sand filters are cleaned by backwashing. That is, pool water is forced through the filter in the direction opposite from normal filtration.

At times of heavy use — when all the friends come to swim — owners of diatomite-filtered pools will hardly notice a change in water clarity, says Manville, but pool owners with sand filters might.

(One way to check your pool water clarity is to drop a "clarity test disc," available from Manville, to the bottom at the deepest point. If the black and red color markings printed on the disc are clearly defined, your pool filtration system is working well.)

A good solution may be to give the sand-filtered pool a rest from swimmers to let the filter catch up with the increased dirt load in the pool. Or, use alum to improve filter efficiency.

Alum forms a spongy mass called "floc" over the top of the filter bed. The floc screens out particles that would otherwise pass through the sand.

For all pool owners, the additional crowd means the possibility of additional bacteria in the water. And, that could lower the chlorine residual as greater amounts of the disinfectant will be used to combat the bacteria.

Use a test kit, available from your pool supply dealer, to determine chlorine residual. If it is below .03-.07 parts per million (ppm), you may wish to add more chlorine, though pools with diatomite filters may not require as much chlorine as other pools to attain the desired residual.

This is because the bacteria and other solid organic matter are removed by the diatomite filter cake (precoat).

If your diatomite-filtered pool is subject to variable bath loads, Manville advises that 24-hour-a-day filter use with a weekly filter cleaning and change of filter and may be the most economical.

When pool filters are used sporadically, algae growth can be a problem, particularly in outdoor pools. In such cases, supplemental filtration and chlorination with a good algicide.

For more information on Manville AquaCel filter powder in 1-lb. pouches, write for Brochure FA-378 to: Manville Service Center, 1601 23rd Street, Denver, CO 80216. Also write Manville for a clarity test disc (FA-89B).

PERFECT IN THE KITCHEN! Village Plank by Bruce Hardwood Floors, a beautifully pegged floor with traditional charm yet contemporary versatility. Of random width planks 3", 5" and 7" with slightly beveled edges and ends, it's available in a variety of beautiful shades.

What's cooking with kitchens?

Looking for a way to spark up your kitchen? One of the latest decorating ideas is adding a hardwood floor. Wood flooring is the perfect "canvas" for any decorating theme ranging from rustic to contemporary.

It is no wonder that in this urban age of ribbon development, burgeoning cities and mushrooming housing, quality has become precious and rare. Wood flooring is a quality investment that will last a lifetime with proper care.

Europeans have always favored wood in their kitchens. What is surprising is the extent to which the urbanites of the United States have foregone plastic and metal to emulate the sophisticated warmth of a kitchen with a wood floor.

Wood floors require only regular sweeping or vacuuming, and waxing once or twice a year. Spills should be wiped up immediately and dried spills removed with a slightly damp cloth.

Bruce Hardwood Floors utilizes an exclusive 13-step finishing process to assure a durable, easy-care floor, a floor that will take years of abuse, stand up to heavy traffic and keep coming back beautifully.

In fact, the Bruce baked-in finish allows you to care for high traffic areas independently of the remaining areas.

Bruce Hardwood Floors offers over 70 different types of plank and parquet floors, including solid or laminated products, smooth or textured surfaces, a variety of colors and floors made of oak, walnut and teak. With so many choices, there is a wood floor to suit any taste or decorating theme.

Wallcoverings diversify

In the old days, people who wanted to decorate their walls were, for the most part, limited to two choices — paint or wallpaper.

Paint is still paint. But wallpaper has undergone tremendous change. Now, it is just one category in a cornucopia of materials, styles, finishes, patterns, colors and textures known as wallcoverings.

Other developments have made decorating with wallcoverings much easier. Pre-trimmed and pre-pasted wallcoverings, for example, make it possible for a do-it-yourselfer to decorate an entire room in an afternoon. Just be sure to follow the manufacturer's instructions, says the Wallcovering Information Bureau.

Another feature of today's wallcoverings is their durability and economy.

Designed to last many years, wallcoverings are an extremely cost-efficient decorating tool because they last so long and are so easy to care for. Many are scrubable and stain resistant.

Wallcoverings are available at decorating stores, home centers, paint and wallpaper stores or department stores. There you can find the tools you'll need as well as expert advice on patterns, styles and colors and the amount of wallcovering you'll need. Bring along the dimensions of the room you want to decorate, along with your ideas about how you want the room to look.

For more information on wallcoverings, write for a free copy of "The Wallcovering How-to Handbook" to WIB, Dept. HP 66 Morris Ave., Springfield, NJ 07081.

HERE'S AN EXAMPLE of the kind of diversity that's possible with today's wallcoverings. The floral patterns in the wallcoverings blend with the companion fabrics in the sofa, chairs and curtains to give the room a look of elegance.

North Quincy: A Vibrant

Corbin's Shoppers Feel At Home Among Latest Styles

By DAN CONNELLY

Back on April 1, 1980 it was no April Fool's joke when Carmela and Dick Corbin of Beach St., Wollaston, signed the papers and became owners of a women's apparel store at 68 Billings Rd., North Quincy.

Today, Corbin's is proof-positive their decision to venture into what they term a 'mom and pop' business has been, and is, rewarding in all kinds of ways.

For 42 years the store's location had been a shop for women. It originally was owned by Dotten and Thomas. Later, jeweler Kuentin McCaffrey continued the tradition. Six years ago, upon his retirement, it paved the way for Carmela to have something she has always wanted: a dress shop.

Mrs. Corbin, former speed typist for the Boston-based Bankers and Tradesman newspaper and Teresa Manning, her assistant, also of Wollaston, and who has worked at Bonwit Teller and Saks 5th Avenue, make their customers, whether age 24 or 84, feel at home as they shop.

Corbin, employed by the computer supply firm of Serene & Foley of Quincy, handles the company books "and is fantastic when he adds his personal touch to the store with the vacuum cleaner," his wife said.

The store has a full inventory of junior misses and half sizes and customers come from all over in their quest for new styles in wearing apparel. The store is now featuring the Graff mix-and-match sport line.

Carmela and Dick also hold spring and fall fashion shows for organizations, churches, clubs and schools.

Credit for the store's success also goes to daughter Geraldine. She will graduate soon from college and nurse at Quincy City Hospital.

Mrs. Corbin, president of the North Quincy Business and Professional Association, describes that organization as a "dynamic group of people who are always looking for ways to improve and bring new business into the area. It's super having your own business in an atmosphere made up of small businesses."

Six years ago Carmela and Dick's decision to provide quality merchandise, newest in women's fashion lines and personal customer satisfaction will never go out of style at Corbin's.

At Craftique: Figurines From Michael Jackson To Gumball Machines

How would you like to take up a hobby that will not empty the pocketbook, is guaranteed to be creative and features look-alike plasterware figurines like rock star Michael Jackson, the nativity scene, or a gumball machine?

Craftique, 434 Hancock St., North Quincy, provides such a craft service, thanks to talented Mrs. Louise McDonald of North Quincy and her sister, Mrs. Claire Cavanaugh of Holbrook, who realized a dream come true last year and opened their shop.

Today, Craftique is headquarters for molded plasterware (or whiteware) products in all sizes and shapes of the imagination.

The shop hosts a long work bench where students come in at varied hours and are instructed in how to paint their purchased figurine there or at home. No special talents are needed.

"Plasterware has it head-and-shoulders over ceramics," Louise said, "because it has a low tolerance of breakage." She added their business boasts the largest inventory of figurine molds (10,000) in New England. These include rock star Michael Jackson (with sunglasses) gumball machines, nautical attractions, the nativity scene (their biggest seller), Easter baskets, banks, lamps, plaques. The list is endless. Louise's husband Ken handles the mold preparations.

The sisters earned their credentials after 10 years of laboring in a craft they both love and the dream to run their own business became a reality when the former Carol's Crafts location became available. The venture is family supportive.

Louise is the mother of five children. Claire has six children.

Craftique also restores damaged statues. The head of a three-foot Infant of Prague fell and broke into 15 pieces. They tackled the repair with true professionalism and restored it to newness.

The shop also has a good track record in supplying the basics for organizations and civic groups who are looking for an inexpensive craft to program. Among their clients are the Boy Scouts of America, recreational and senior citizen centers and schools.

So if you want to mold your talents into an inexpensive but creative hobby then drop by Craftique where Louise and Claire will cast you in this interesting and exciting craft.

1986 Budget

On Monday April 7, 1986 the House of Representatives began what is expected to be a lengthy debate on the Fiscal Year 87 budget for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The $9.7 billion budget that the House Committee on Ways and Means has submitted for approval illustrated the House of Representatives responsiveness to fiscal stability, efficiency and human needs. It is a document which looks to ensure continued economic growth by planning against future downturns and federal cuts.

The House budget recommends establishing a stabilization fund in order to provide a buffer against future tax increases or spending cuts if the economy starts to wind down. By reducing its vulnerability to economic fluctuations, the Commonwealth will improve its general fiscal profile.

The F.Y. 87 budget recommendation supports pending legislation for the 30-year "payback" of the outstanding pension liability currently totalling over $6 billion. The House budget recommends that $88 million more than the Governor's budget, be assigned to pension liability. The House budget also recommends that a significant portion of the current surplus be transferred into the pension fund. These recommendations reflect the House of Representatives' attempt to improve the Commonwealth's bond positions which has been affected by the large deficit.

The House budget also recommends an increase in AFDC benefits. AFDC recipients will be offered a package of benefits that should allow improvements in their standard of living and raise the average monthly income for a family of three in non-subsidized housing to $530 per month.

There are also increases in the Human Services department that will be destined for citizens who are foster parents, welfare recipients, elderly, homeless, mentally retarded and persons on Medicaid.

The House has also increased the cost of living for state and other governmental employees who are retired. The House has recommended a four per cent increase on the first $9,000.

Several pieces of legislation passed in the 1985 session will have an impact on this year's budget, the first being the phase in of the surtax relief. The legislature by increasing the estate tax limit from $60,000 to $200,000 is expected to impact state coffers to the tune of $30-$40 million. Also the legislature has, by its actions, increased the number of people eligible for a no tax status.

The House will be debating a number of important issues in the next four days. If you have any questions please do not hesitate to call me.

YMCA Specialists To Present Women's Exercise Program

Fitness includes knowing how to keep your head from falling on the desk mid-afternoon, replacing flabby fat with firm muscles, improving your golf, tennis, jogging, or dancing, according to Wayne L. Westcott, Ph.D., South Shore YMCA Director in Quincy and National YMCA fitness advisor.

"People would be just amazed if they knew how simple it is to attain and maintain good physical and cardiovascular fitness, if they would only stop wasting time, money and effort on doing the latest fads and consider exercise as exercise, and seek recreation elsewhere," said Westcott.

Westcott is author of three books, as well as many professional articles, and currently writes a fitness newspaper column.

Westcott and two exercise science specialists from the South Shore YMCA staff, Cynthia Wentworth-Murphy, and John Benkis, will present a program titled Entrefit at Changes A Women's Expo '86, a day-long event to be held at Massachusetts Bay Community College, Wellesley Hills from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

House To House Cancer Crusade April 29

When an American Cancer Society volunteer from your neighborhood knocks on your door Tuesday, April 29, he or she will be distributing potentially lifesaving information about how a healthy diet can lower your risk of developing several kinds of cancer, and offering an opportunity to send for a recipe that incorporates these dietary recommendations.

Thomas P. Koch, Cancer Crusade chairman in Quincy said that volunteers will distribute a pamphlet entitled "Eating to Live" to each neighbor they visit, outlining the American Cancer Society's recommendations for lowering the risk for many cancers, including breast, colon, prostate, and uterine.

The Cancer Society recommends cutting down on dietary fat and alcohol consumption, and eating more fiber, vitamin A-rich foods, and vegetables from the cabbage family such as broccoli, cauliflower, and Brussels sprouts.

To give Quincy residents a way to put these guidelines into practice, House to House Crusaders will also let their neighbors know how they can send for a recipe that uses these healthy foods, according to Koch. The recipe will be offering can serve as a starting point for people who want to eat a whole diet that's lower in fat and includes more of the foods that may protect them against cancer, he said.

Koch said that up to 60 percent of all cancers might be prevented through eating a healthy diet, maintaining an ideal weight, not smoking or using chewing tobacco, and avoiding overexposure to the sun.

"I encourage all Quincy area residents to ask Cancer Crusade volunteers about the nutrition and cancer leaflet, and to give generously to the American Cancer Society's programs of research, education, and service to cancer patients," Koch said.

GEORGIA TRAFICANTE

Traficante, Roche Help Pace UMass To Women's Track Title

Although they used different routes of travel, Quincy's Georgia Traficante and Maureen Roche have arrived on the New England collegiate track scene helping UMass/Boston to its second straight NCAA Division III Women's indoor track crown.

Georgia, a freshman psychology major from North Quincy, has excelled in all levels of competition, having won state medals all four years at North Quincy High School, helping Lou Tozzi's Raiderettes to five indoor and outdoor championships.

She capped off her high school career with a state championship in the javelin while being selected to the Boston Globe All-Scholastic team.

While a member of the UMass/Boston squad, Georgia, a high jumper and pentathlon athlete, placed among the top three in most major meets she participated in and topped off her season by setting an ECAC record in the pentathlon with 3207 points, including a personal record of 5-7 3/4 in the high jump and taking fourth in the high jump at the NCAA's to reach All-American status. She was one of the many contributors that helped the Beacon's rack up 47 points to win their second consecutive championship.

Meanwhile Maureen Roche, a sophomore transfer from Northeastern, started her track involvement at Archbishop Williams in Braintree where in her senior year she was named to the Globe scholastic team in the shotput in both the indoor and outdoor track season.

While at UMass/Boston this year, Maureen's season was highlighted by her win in the ECAC Championships at Colby College leading UMB to a record 145 points and its second team title in as many years. Although she failed to place in the top six at the NCAA meet, she is optimistically looking forward to the outdoor season where she will compete in the discus and hammer throw as well as the shotput.

UMB field event Coach Jeff Hennessy, a Quincy resident and former North Quincy head coach and assistant as well as the present director of the Quincy Track Club, is no stranger to both these two young ladies, having watched them progress from his track club to top division III competitors at UMass/Boston.

"Both started back in 1978," said Hennessy. They've traveled a lot together to various youth meets such as the Youth Games and Junior Olympics. They've been a big boost to the program and it's nice to see that they're still improving their performances."

Both Georgia and Maureen are currently getting ready for the outdoor season as they try to help UMass/Boston become the first women's team in any division to win both indoor and outdoor championships in one season.

Only One Returnee

Many New Faces In Quincy Girls Softball

By TOM SULLIVAN

If Quincy softball coach Barbara Webster hopes to approach last season's excellent record and again qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament, she will have to depend upon graduates of Hank Conroy's junior varsity squad.

Last spring the First Ladies finished 12-6 during the regular season and went on to win three games in the tournament before being edged by Dedham, 2-1, in the Div. 1 South semifinals.

The Quincy girls had defeated Silver Lake, Weymouth South and Brockton before losing to Dedham.

From that outstanding squad Coach Webster has just one returnee, center fielder Terry Duggan. Duggan had a fine season as a sophomore and will be a key performer this season.

"With the exception of Terry, all my starters played with the jayvees last year," Webster said. "They are really working hard and are eager to learn. Between jobs and other commitments, we have trouble getting everybody to practice. It should be a very interesting year."

Among the biggest losses to graduation were Kathy Thornton, a workhorse on the mound, who won all but one game, finishing at 14-6 and pitching every tournament game; Chris Cuccinattia, a steady third baseman and one of the Suburban League's top hitters with a .356 average, 22 runs batted in, was an excellent defensive player with a .958 fielding percentage and one of the top base stealers with 10, and catcher Andrea Griffin, who batted .442, drove in 12 runs and threw out six runners.

Other big losses are Beth Veneto, who played excellent shortstop and stole 16 bases, left fielder Debbie Herron, second baseman Colleen Phillips and outfielder Patty Leonard.

This year's pitching hopes rest on the arms of Nancy Suizero, who also will play left field, and Marion Miller, who will play left when Suizero pitches.

Christine Menz and Carnie Levangie will be the first basemen, Dianne Henney and Tina Calabro will be at second, Michelle Bevilacqua will be the shortstop and Kristin Curtin will be at third base.

Duggan, Tracy Chaupetta and either Suizero or Miller will be the outfielders and Sue Cullen will be the catcher.

Bevilacqua is the only senior on the squad.

Conroy's junior varsity squad will include Marie King, Beth Vacca, Brenda Ryan, Anne Marie McAffrey, Diane Martel, Lisa Perfetto, Marjorie Swanton, Stacey Freel, Kim Parker and Calabro, who also will split the second base chores for the varsity.

The First Ladies, who will play five non-league games before opening their Suburban League schedule, will open Friday at Weymouth South and will host Malden Tuesday at 3:30 at Faxon Field.

Morrisette Legion Baseball Reunion May 2

Morrisette Legion post will host its third reunion for all players on the post teams since 1945 Friday night, May 2, at the post home.

There will be a social hour from 6 to 7 p.m. followed by a catered dinner.

The first two reunions attracted many former players including several from the post's first team in 1945.

Tickets are $8 and those planning to attend should send a check made payable to Morrisette Legion Baseball Reunion to Frank Osborne, 98 Gilbert Street, Quincy 02169. Reservations will close April 25 and no tickets will be sold at the door.

Anyone knowing former Morrisette players or anyone associated with Morrisette baseball is asked to call Osborne at 773-5436 with names and addresses if possible.

Squantum, Beechwood In Title Showdown

Squantum and Beechwood Knoll will tap off in the championship game of the Quincy Recreation Department senior basketball league.

Both teams earned their way to the championship after playing in the single elimination tournament this week.

In game one, Beechwood defeated Point, 58-43. Kevin Duffy had 12 points for Beechwood followed closely by Eddie Herman with 10 and Steve Morad with eight. Joe Mulvey was top rebounder, while Jackie Green handled the ball well. Jim Rice and Bill Ryan each had eight for the hustling Janice Sullivan-coached Point team. Steve Sullivan added six more. Jay McLaren and Nick Drogone played solid defense.

Frank Calabro had 12 points to lead all scorers, but it was not enough as Atherton Hough dropped a hard fought battle to Montclair, 35-32. Gary McNamara and Mike Kubera were the big guns for Montclair, each with 11 points.

Chris Gray had five mosty second half points. The Fran Donovan-coached Atherton team showed great poise as Steve Gardner had nine and Ernie Light chipped in five. Donovan praised the hustle of Marc Farrand and the rebounding of Steve Pierski. Jerry Pratt, the veteran of many recreation tournaments, was quick to point out the key roles of Chris Higgins who controlled the offense and the rebounding of Mike Dwyer.

In semi-final action number one seed Central was defeated by Beechwood Knoll, 50-43. Larry Taglieri was high for Central with 10 of his 12 points in the second half. Ted McCarthy had six of his 10 in the second half and Kevin Nichols chipped in seven points. Van Leister was praised by Coach Brian Buckley for his outstanding hustle. Dan McLaughlin for his running of the offense, and Kevin Nichols for his defense. Beechwood advanced to the finals behind Steve Morad's 14. Joe Nelson's 10, while Kevin Duffy and Eddie Herman each tossed in nine in a balanced attack for the fourth-seeded team.

In one of the best comebacks in the long history of the Recreation Department tournaments, Pat Harrington had all eight of his points in the fourth quarter to spark a run that brought Squantum over Montclair, 43-41, after trailing by 15 points with 3:40 left to play.

Squantum had only scored three third quarter points, but answered with 26 fourth quarter points to stop the hustling, upset-minded Montclair team. Gary McNamara led all scorers with 17 points while Mike Kubera had 11. Chris Higgins four. Joe Callanan had 15, Chris Myer 10, and Peter Schofield and Ted Shonis each had four. The well-schooled Dean Zoia-coached Montclair also had key rebounding by Chris Gray and floor leadership from Steve Happa.

Squantum is defending champion and freshman coach John Roney will be looking for his first all city championship. Beechwood coach Rick Radzik is a tournament veteran and hopes his club can continue to beat the high ranked teams.

YMCA Strypers Complete Successful Season

The South Shore YMCA Strypers swim team recently completed a successful second season.

With over 40 swimmers from all age groups, the team, coached by Janet Keyes, was paced by the girls' B team (13-14), the boys' C team (11-12) and boys' B team (13-14), all of which were undefeated during the dual meet season.

"These kids have worked hard all year and continue to improve weekly," said Keyes.

"If we could get a few new swimmers to complement our present squad, we would have a decent shot at the Eastern District YMCA championship. Whatever happens, though, it has been a fun year and we are looking forward to another successful Stryper season next year."

The Strypers teams include a large number of swimmers from Quincy and Hingham as well as several other South Shore towns.

Middle League Central, Beechwood Advance To Finals

Action continued in the Quincy Recreation All-City Basketball Tournament with two games Saturday.

Beechwood Knoll defeated Point, 49-41. Central defeated Montclair, 48-36, to advance to the city championship game in the single elimination tournament.

Beechwood was led by a tournament-high 31 points from Jamie Green, whose performance held off a much bigger Point club. Mike Doherty chipped in nine and Ed Welby eight for Beechwood. Jim Glynn drew the praise of Jack "King" Kelly for his fine rebounding at both ends of the floor.

Joey Russell led the tough Point five with 23 points. Mike Scolaro had 10 and Sean Sugrue six for the John Kilrain-coached team. Brendan Farrell and Paul White showed fine floor leadership and excellent hustle.

In the Central - Montclair matchup, Central's Peter McLoughlin and Montclair's Kevin McDougall offset each other offensively with 16 points each. Matt Geise's 15 for Central proved to be the difference, while Dave Cawthorne had eight, mostly first half points. Barry Glynn had eight and brother Gary six for the Gerry Pratt-coached Montclair. Central coach Brian Buckley was pleased with the rebounding of Scott Marino and the floor play of Chris Ciavarro.

Participants in the middle school tournament are from the eleven neighborhood gyms that make up the 23-week winter afterschool and Saturday recreation programs.

Shipyard Can Be Saved Says Donnelly

initiative." Donnelly said the shipyard is like an entrepreneur, according to a congressional report. The money is spent on repairs in the U.S., and that must take place within 10 years, he said.

"There's a strong incentive for shipowners to put money in the CCCF," said Donnelly.

"The shipyards which survive this depression will be very profitable in the future," said Donnelly who noted that the oil glut is also having an impact.

"But this won't last forever, and the yards which survive will have a lock on government work."

Until the shipbuilding depression subsides, the yard could build the proposed third harbor tunnel for Boston, said Donnelly, as part of a $1.1 billion project expected to take two to three years.

The tunnel would be made of prefabricated steel tubes which could be made at the yard, according to Donnelly.

The yard could also do the work for suppression of the Central Artery, a $1.6 billion project, he said.

The harbor tunnel has not yet been approved, said Donnelly, but if it is, Gov. Michael Dukakis has committed himself to do as much work as possible at the Quincy site.

"I can't say enough about what the Dukakis administration has done," said Donnelly.

ly, who noted that the state has said it will help put together a financial package for a shipyard buyer.

Donnelly said he has talked to shipyard workers union Local 5 president George O'Kane and "we're all on the same track."

A purchase and sale agreement could be reached within six to eight months, according to Donnelly, but some major players have to be on the scene.

After that, it will depend on the Mariner Program, nationwide market, and the price of oil, he said.

"The only way to save the place is change there with the times," reiterated Donnelly.

"The yards that survive are going to prosper."

"And the Quincy yard could be back to being a shipbuilding facility."

The following statement by Cong. Brian Donnelly was scheduled to be submitted last night (Wednesday) at a public hearing by the Commonwealth on Massachusetts Special Task Force on General Dynamics.

The meeting was scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers at City Hall.

The Quincy shipyard is one of America's largest and most capable shipbuilding facilities. Her workers are dedicated men and women who have proven time and time again that they can build some of the world's most advanced-technology ships for the commercial marketplace and for America's defense.

Facilities can be rebuilt, but a cohesive and experienced shipbuilding team like the workers at Quincy are a vital, national human resource: a resource that cannot easily be reformed; skills that cannot be learned in a classroom; experience that comes only with many years of hands-on work.

It is appropriate that the Commonwealth Task Force meets tonight in the City of Quincy. Quincy has been home to shipbuilding and shipbuilder families for more than a century. The Quincy shipyard is more than an industrial facility, it has been an integral component of our community and of our way of life. It has meant decent-paying jobs for thousands of our hardest working citizens. We have seen previous downturns at the yard before. What we face is the wake of General Dynamics announcement of last July to end operations at the yard is more than a corporate pull-out. The last of five mammoth Prepositioning Ships for the Navy will be delivered soon, leaving no further construction projects to provide continued employment.

To keep Quincy in shipbuilding, and to keep her people working, we need a new owner/operator of the facility, and we need nearterm work orders. The workers and their unions have clearly expressed a willingness to work cooperatively with a new, enlightened owner and manager of the yard, if one can be found. It will require a new owner who recognizes the realities of the current Navy and commercial marketplace, and who can compete in an effective and innovative way with any shipyard in the country for work orders.

The Booz, Allen & Hamilton research study on the Reuse of the Quincy Shipyard has told us that there can be a prosperous future for shipbuilding at Quincy again, but not immediately, and not without some restructuring of the facility. The entire US and the world shipping and shipbuilding industries are in a deep slump.

There is, however, a positive development in Washington that I am involved in that holds promise for a resurgence of commercial shipbuilding orders in the nearterm. 852 million dollars has been set aside by Congress for a federal program to build and charter militarily-useful merchant ships. I am an original cosponsor of legislation moving through Congress to authorize this so-called Mariner Fund, which could result in the construction of as many as eighteen merchant ships in up to five US shipyards. While the Administration has expressed strong opposition to the Mariner funding, I intend to persevere in my efforts to gain enactment of this critical initiative.

A program of this type was instituted in the 1950s, providing for the construction in seven shipyards of thirty-five ships for the US merchant fleet.

In the last five years alone, four American shipyards designated by the navy as critical components of the nation's active shipbuilding base have closed. It is time to reverse the decline in America's vital, geographically-dispersed shipbuilding base. Only our adversaries will benefit from further deterioration of this key national asset.

Other nations have recognized the importance of maintaining a national flag fleet and shipyards. The Soviets certainly have, as their expanding merchant fleet and ship construction facilities attest.

Enactment of the Mariner build and charter program can insure that a new order at Quincy will have an excellent opportunity to construct a series of merchant vessels. There are also several nearterm Navy auxiliary and amphibious ship programs that Quincy has already proven itself capable of constructing on time, on cost, and with dependable quality.

There is much to be done. I pledge to continue to work with the yard union leaders, our communities, the state, and industry in the weeks ahead to preserve a future for shipbuilding, and a return to sustained employment, at Quincy. Together, we can maintain this vital and irreplaceable native industry.

New Owner For Burger King

The License Board granted a request Tuesday from Edward Bailey of 84 Randall St., North Easton, for a common victual license after he announced to the board his purchase of the Burger King restaurant at 505 Quincy Ave.

Bailey, a 20-year employee for Burger King, told the Board his long experience as a fast food restaurateur will assure a satisfactory business operation there.

He added: "I own the business and Burger King owns the real estate."

Budget Cuts In Vets Programs Issue At Human Services Rally

Budget cuts in federal funding of veteran service programs will be one of the major issues targeted for discussion at a Coalition for Saving Human Services 'giant rally' April 15 at Quincy High School.

The rally is being held at 7:30 p.m. in the Method Center to let all citizens know how the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act will affect them now and later this year with budget cuts.

According to rally chairman Leo J. Kelley of Quincy, the Act slashed $39.4 million from the veterans educational program and nearly $140 million from direct and general medical care as well as medical research.

Kelley said that other programs affected by the budget cuts, which took effect this past March 1, are those under the G.I. Bill who now receive smaller monthly checks; disabled American veterans training checks, trimmed 13 per cent; reduction in veteran burial benefits.

In veterans hospitals there has been a reduction of 15,000 beds. At the VA Hospital in Jamaica Plain alone, beds were ordered reduced from 680 to 460 said Kelley.

According to Kelley, other community programs in jeopardy are:

Chapter One, Headstart and handicapped programs, higher education, Pell grants and student loans. Also budget slashes in water pollution and the clean air acts, public library assistance, senior transportation, elder and child nutrition, community development block grant programs which include the neighborhood centers that service low and moderate income groups in various Quincy locations.

Invited guests to the rally are Senators Edward Kennedy and John Kerry, Cong. Brian Donnelly, Gov. Michael Dukakis and all other elected officials in the South Shore area.

According to Kelley the rally will give taxpayers, service recipients, providers, and elected officials a chance to voice their concerns. The coalition intends to alert local, state and federal representatives of the impact of these social programs.

May Meeting On Mayor, Council Raises

The proposed pay raises for the mayor and City Council will likely be scheduled for an early May Finance Committee meeting, according to chairman Richard Koch, Jr.

The proposals, submitted by Mayor Francis McCauley, involve a raise from $40,000 to $50,000, in two steps, for the position of mayor, and an increase from $6,500 to $9,000 a year for City Councillors.

According to Koch, there hasn't been much discussion about the matter by City Councillors.

"A number of the councillors are still undecided," said Koch, who is scheduling the hearing on those matters in a few weeks to allow members of the council to give the issue more thought.

Koch said that he is comfortable with the mayor's salary increase.

"I like the fact that it is in two steps," said Koch.

However, he said he is skeptical about the increase for City Councillors.

McCauley said that he has no plans to speak to the City Councillors about the raises before the hearing.

He said he has forwarded that information comparing the mayor's salary with that of department heads, as well as that of mayors in other cities.

"The evidence speaks for itself," McCauley said.

Mayor To Request Funds For Playground Work

Mayor Francis McCauley said that he will submit appropriation requests to the City Council April 22, to upgrade two neighborhood playgrounds.

An appropriation of $50,000 will be requested to refurbish and upgrade Perkins Field in Merrymount, according to McCauley.

The mayor said that work would be done on the baseball field, tennis and basketball courts, and chain link fence.

"The work is long overdue," said McCauley, who noted that Merrymount is not a target area and has not received the benefit of Community Development Block Grant Money as have some other sections.

McCauley said that Councillor Michael Cheney spoke to him about the matter.

An appropriation of $7,497 will be requested for refurbishing the Stoney Brae Playground, South Central Ave., Wollaston.

The mayor said he received requests from parents in the district for work on the playground.

Councillors Stephen McGrath and John Lydon also spoke to him about it, he said.

Wollaston School Reopening Topic April 22

Councillor Patricia M. Toland announces that the City Council Education Committee will meet Tuesday, April 22, at 6:30 p.m. in the City Hall Council Chambers to discuss the possible reopening of the Wollaston School.

Councillor Toland, Education Committee Chairman, urges all those who are interested in the matter to attend the meeting.

Union, City Reaction:

Anger, Surprise Over GD Sub Work Rejection

By DAN CONNELLY

A decision by General Dynamics not to convert the Quincy shipbuilding yard for Navy nuclear submarine repair work drew sharp criticism from union members and disappointment from city leaders.

According to a report, General Dynamics Chairman Stanley Pace, in a letter to top Navy officials, rejected the proposal, saying the project would not be profitable because the investment required to qualify the yard for nuclear submarine overhaul work could not be recouped until the late 1990s.

General Dynamics plans to close the Quincy yard this summer, when it completes the last of five cargo ships it is building for the Navy.

George O'Kane, president of the Local 5 Shipbuilders Union said he and his union membership are "shocked" over General Dynamic's latest decision.

"It is just something they would do. They refuse to accept any proposal consideration that would keep the yard open here in Quincy," he said.

"This new Navy contract proposal is news to us. We're kept in the dark, or out in the cold so to speak about any plans that are presented to that corporation."

"Heck, building nuclear submarines or repairing them is nothing new for the workers here in Quincy."

"Back in 1964 when the corporation bought out Bethlehem Steel there were two nuclear submarines under construction. Later two more were contracted and completed here in Quincy. And many of those who worked that contract are still here."

"Certainly this yard can be retooled to handle this type of work today. But we're back again to the bottom line that General Dynamics just wants out of shipbuilding in Quincy."

"The idea of an employee buy-out of the yard is a good feasible program which has strong support from the state but is greeted with silence by General Dynamics."

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro, in whose ward the shipyard is located said, "It's apparent that they definitely want to close the yard and not listen to any proposals that would keep them in the shipyard business in Quincy. Otherwise, they would have given the proposal more consideration."

"Of course there would be no problem as far as converting because that yard did handle submarine work. Apparently they just want out of the ship building industry

McGrath Names Task Force To Review Zoning Ordinances

Quincy has changed since it was rezoned in the early 1970s, said City Council president Stephen McGrath.

And it is debatable whether the zoning ordinances are adequate for the city in 1986, he said.

To address that and related issues, McGrath has formed a special City Council Task Force for Review of the Zoning Ordinances.

Task force members will be City Councillors Patricia Toland, Michael Cheney and Thomas Nutley, Principal Planner Richard Meade and Planning Board member Gregory Galvin, announced McGrath at a Tuesday news conference.

"In many ways, the zoning ordinances are deficient," said McGrath.

"The city has changed since the 1970s. There has been more building."

"Quincy is attractive to developers."

"We have to be very, very careful as far as the market is concerned."

"Zoning is the planning

STEPHEN McGRATH

tool for that."

McGrath said, "The purpose of the Task Force will be to conduct a comprehensive review of the zoning ordinances of the city, in light of the recent development activity in the city, and also in light of the many proposals that have been made for altering the existing zoning laws."

"My concern is that up until this point, various proposals have been reviewed and, in some cases, acted upon by the council, without a real sense of how each proposal may interrelate with other aspects of the zoning ordinances."

"I would like to see the zoning ordinances reviewed in their entirety so that when changes are proposed, we do not act upon them in a vacuum, but in relation to other changes and existing ordinances as well."

"Recently, for example, we have changed the density requirements in Residence B, changes were proposed in Residence C, and, currently before the council, are changes proposed in Planned Unit Development areas."

"I am concerned that such a piecemeal approach is not the best way to proceed on such an important issue."

"The zoning laws have not been reviewed in their entirety since 1971, and I feel they should be reviewed now."

"While I do not necessarily favor the concept of the so-called 'Master Plan,' I believe that this overall review of the zoning laws will

Nut Island Pier Proposal To Be Discussed Thursday

Two representatives of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority will discuss a proposal to erect a pier at Nut Island during a meeting of the Citizens Advisory Committee tonight (Thursday).

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Community Center.

According to Councillor Michael Cheney, in whose ward Nut Island is located, the pier is being proposed for barging facilities for the removal of sludge, the solid byproduct of sewerage.

Two options to be discussed are for a 690 foot pier and for a 225 foot pier, both on the east side of the island, Cheney said.

The shorter pier would require dredging, while the longer pier would not, he said.

"The MWRA filed an environmental notification form and a tentative decision was reached last week to allow the pier to be built," said Cheney.

"Construction is due to commence in August of 1988 and to be completed in September, 1989," he said.

"Also under consideration is to allow use of conveyors, crane and handling equipment," Cheney said.

"The MWRA also cited that the pier may be used for barging of grit, screenings as well as sludge.

"In the future, Nut Island will be turned into a headworks.

"It is necessary to consider a pier facility for not only the purposes the MWRA outlined, but also transportation of workers and materials during the construction phase, of the pipe link from Nut Island to Deer Island," said Cheney.

"In the event that the pier facility is approved, my hope is to be able to utilize the facility for transportation of chlorine or sodium hypochlorite.

"Recently, Nut Island lost its incinerators and it has become necessary to truck the grits and screening off site to a landfill area.

"In addition to this new plan for trucking, we expect some time in the future as many as 10 to 12 trucks a day to be transporting various materials to and from Nut Island.

"I support the concept of building a pier at Nut Island because I believe this will alleviate many of the construction and operation related problems that the community will have to deal with in the future.

"However, I am deeply concerned with the location of the pier and the length of the first option.

"The 690 foot pier stretching eastward from Nut Island could have some affects on recreational boat traffic as well as some affects on the residents of the Great Hill area.

"I would encourage all residents to attend this very important public meeting," said Cheney, who noted that the two MWRA members will answer questions.

There will be a 20 day response period after the meeting, Cheney noted.

McCauley Hopes To Wrap-up Hospital FHA Insurance

Mayor Francis McCauley said he hopes Quincy City Hospital's application for FHA Insurance will be wrapped up in the next few weeks.

McCauley's remarks followed a trip to Washington last week by the mayor, QCH director Mark Mundy, Peter Kenney, the mayor's executive secretary; and a representative from the Shawmut Bank.

The FHA insurance is needed before Phase I of the hospital's $60 million reconstruction can begin.

struction can begin.

"Basically, we discussed some of the covenants which have to be included in QCH's application," said McCauley.

"We ironed out some of the questions raised, but we're not finished completely."

"There are other items on the application which we may have to deal with."

"Hopefully, we'll have everything completed shortly."

McCauley said the group went to Rockville, Md., to clear up some questions with Health and Human Services.

HUD is working on the application now, said McCauley.

"This is the first application by a public hospital for FHA insurance in the country," noted McCauley. "The governmental agencies are naturally going slowly."

The hospital is aiming for a late spring/early summer groundbreaking, McCauley said.

It filed its application for FHA Insurance in September, 1984.

Police Try Tracking Device In Stolen Car Crackdown

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The Quincy Police Department has installed a Lo-Jack tracking device in one of its cruisers in an attempt to crack down on the stolen car trade which claims about 10 vehicles a week in Quincy.

According to Quincy Police Crime Prevention Officer Robert Hanna, the Lo-Jack system, given on a trial basis to the department, is used for tracking stolen cars.

When a car equipped with a Lo-Jack transceiver is reported stolen, police can activate that transceiver through five antennas located state wide, said Hanna.

The transceiver then sets off an inaudible signal that police, within two miles, can pick up through the Lo-Jack tracking device mounted on their dashboards, he said.

When contact is made between the tracking device and the transceiver in the stolen car, a code flashes in the police vehicle, Hanna said.

The tracking device will indicate the direction of the stolen car and its proximity.

Once the tracking device locks onto the transceiver's signal, the stolen car is located within 11 minutes, he said.

The device, which will be available to consumers in mid-May, will cost $495 installed, according to Peter Conner, Lo-Jack vice president.

The cost to police departments will be $2500 per cruiser, according to William Murray, also of Lo-Jack.

Police Chief Francis Finn said that if the Lo-Jack Tracking Device proves successful, several more police vehicles will be equipped with them before the year's end.

"Tests have shown the device to be very, very successful," said Hanna.

"An alleged stolen vehicle was put in a steel and brick building in South Quincy and the doors were closed to simulate a chop shop situation."

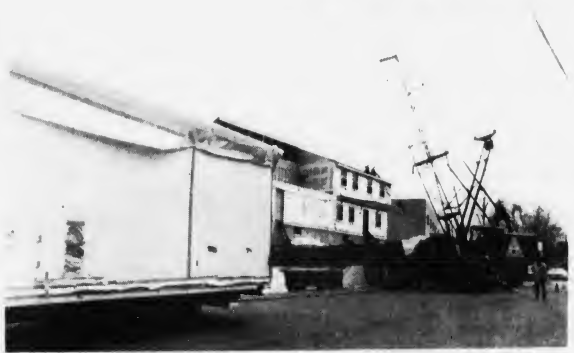

"We were able to find the car within 15 to 20 minutes."

Other tests resulted in a car in a Quincy Center parking lot being located in seven minutes, and in a residential area in five to seven minutes, according to Hanna.

"The main body of the computer is out of state police headquarters," said Hanna. "Lo-Jack has gone through quite a bit. They had to get clearance for a channel to receive their frequency over."

Tracking down stolen cars does take a certain amount of police man hours, said Hanna.

"This should really make a difference in stolen cars," said Hanna. "It's quite a system."

A PREFABRICATED addition this week was added on to the Islamic Center of New England, 470 South St., Quincy Point.

Fire Hydrant Testing Starts April 21

Fire Chief Carl V. Valenti announces the Quincy Fire Department will start its annual hydrant testing program, April 21 under the direction of the Training Division.

The hours of testing will take place from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. Hydrant testing will take place in all sections of the city at the same time.

During the testing of hydrants, residents may experience some discoloration in water. The water is not harmful to drink or use, but should be checked before using washing machines. Persons experiencing discoloration of water are requested to flush the water systems by opening the cold water faucet for a few minutes, then wait approximately one hour. If the water does not clear up, repeat the flushing procedure.

Chief Valenti estimates the hydrant testing will take approximately four weeks to complete.

$1200 Break

More than $1200 in property was reported missing after a break at the home of Zita Russell, West Elm Ave., Wollaston.

Reported stolen were a JVC VCR worth $800, a 19-inch color Toshiba TV worth $400 and assorted jewelry, according to police.

Council Reviews 23 Department Budgets

The Finance Committee of the City Council met for almost two hours Monday night to review the budgets of 23 city departments.

Two of the hearings, involving the library and public buildings departments, will be rescheduled.

All but one section of the other department's budgets were accepted.

That section involves an increase from $150,000 to $200,000 in judgements, losses and claims in the law department.

Councillor John Lydon noted that the city is self-insured and pays such things as law suits out of its own pocket.

But Lydon felt that that item should be level funded, and not increased.

If the need arises, the law department can appear before the council for an additional appropriation, said Lydon.

Councillor Michael Cheney agreed.

Because Lydon had to leave the meeting before City Solicitor Jay MacRitchie could address the council about the item, the matter was placed on hold.

MacRitchie later told the other council members that he requested the increase because more cases are being brought against the city all the time.

However, MacRitchie said that he could live with level funding.

The only other item which generated much discussion at the informal meeting chaired by Councillor Richard Koch, Jr. was the acceptance of $20,000 in the Park and Forestry Dept. for summer help.

Richard Koch, Sr., head of that department, said that the additional help has long been needed, especially since cutbacks due to Proposition 2½.

Koch said that 12 to 15 boys and girls will be hired for $4.50 an hour during the summer.

The budget hearings will continue Monday, April 28, at 6:30 p.m. with such departments as Data Processing and the School Department.

Mayor Francis McCauley submitted a $92,017,245 fiscal budget for 1987 to the City Council April 7.

The Council has 45 days to act on the budget. It can subtract from items, but not add to them.

MAGIC FORMULA

QUESTION: Money is expensive and it looks like loans may even go higher.
Do you consider this a good time to invest in property?

ANSWER: The secret to success for investing in anything is — buy low and sell high! The trick is to buy property at a lower price than it would normally sell for. How?

The real estate market has its peaks and valleys. If there is any chance of buying right, it is during an ebb in the market. Tight money and high interest rates normally create such lulls (or opportunities). This is a good time to buy, because after the ebb, competition increases and so do real estate prices.

BUY LOW-SELL HIGH.
The best buys are available during ebbs in the market.

Lydon Calls Report Premature

A report making the rounds and beginning to pick up speed, has Councillor John Lydon giving up his Ward 3 seat after he completes his present term.

Premature, says Lydon, of the report.

"I have not made any decision like that. It's much too soon to do that."

Lydon says he thinks the report got started because his funeral home business has been keeping him busy, so much so, that he is thinking of building an addition to the structure.

"I guess," he says, "I have probably mentioned that sometimes it is difficult to get to council meetings and someone read into it that I would not run again."

Lydon, who is now in his seventh term, doesn't say he definitely will seek an eighth term. So-o-o-o!

He does hint, though, that he may run for another — maybe county — office.

LYDON

LOCAL CONSENSUS is that Richard Crenna turned in a nice portrayal of Quincy Atty. Lawrence O'Donnell, Sr. in the CBS movie "A Case of Deadly Force."

O'Donnell himself was pleased with the presentation.

"I liked it," he said. "Richard Crenna did a nice job."

O'Donnell found the movie true to the book written by his son, Lawrence, Jr. "It wasn't as comprehensive as the book but there wasn't enough time to put everything into the movie."

O'Donnell, who is on the Quincy City Hospital Board of Managers and was one of the defense attorneys in the Brink's trial, has never met Crenna but did talk to him once on the telephone.

But O'Donnell made no attempt to coach Crenna in how to play O'Donnell.

Crenna, who based his portrayal on the script, noted that if "they wanted someone to mimic Larry O'Donnell they could have gotten Rich Little."

O'Donnell reveals that Kirk Douglas originally was considered for the O'Donnell role and wanted his son, Michael, to play the role of O'Donnell's son, Michael.

The younger O'Donnell was his father's right arm in their investigation into the death of James Bowden, an innocent black robbery suspect, who was fatally shot by two white Boston police officers in 1975.

But Douglas's son was unavailable at the time.
O'Donnell says Douglas also wanted to make a change in the script.

In the movie, O'Donnell's son, Lawrence, Jr., who later wrote the book on which the film is based, was beaten by two police officers at a Boston parking lot where he was working.

Crenna, as O'Donnell, Sr., marches into old Police Station One in the North End, confronts the officers and warns them and everyone else present never again to harm anyone in his family.

Douglas wanted to do the scene with him as the senior O'Donnell storming into the station and hitting the two police officers in retaliation.

"But," says O'Donnell, "it didn't happen that way, so how could you show it that way?"

Bowden's widow, Patricia, and family won a $600,000 to $700,000 judgement against the city of Boston thanks to O'Donnell and his family's help. The court set O'Donnell's fee separate of that.

In addition, young Michael O'Donnell gave a percentage of his royalties from the book and movie rights to Bowden's widow.

STATION WJDA has two new announcers, one of them following in familiar footsteps. He's Bill Coleman, son of Ken Coleman, radio voice of the Boston Red Sox, who got his start at WJDA back in the mid 1940's.

Young Coleman's uncle, the late Bill Coleman after whom he is named, was also an announcer at WJDA and later did gasoline commercials on television for the Red Sox telecasts.

Young Bill's brother, Casey, now has a sports show on Ch. 8 in Cleveland. His father did the Cleveland Browns and Cleveland Indians games there before coming back to Boston.

Bill, who will be doing general assignments, comes to WJDA from WPLM in Plymouth where he lives with his wife, Debbie.

The other new announcer is Matt Pinto who comes to Quincy all the way from a radio station in Hawaii after a stint with a Los Angeles station. He sort of has come full cycle, having formerly lived in Canton.

MEANWHILE, WJDA news editor Herb Fontaine is still recuperating at home after surgery and hopes to return to the microphone soon.

CONGRESSMAN Brian Donnelly attended retiring House Speaker Thomas (Tip) O'Neill's testimonial dinner in his "Quincy tuxedo."

"Before I was elected," Donnelly explained, "I promised Bernie
Reisberg of Bernie's Modern Formal, that if I were elected, I would get my tuxedos from him. And, I've kept my promise."

Seated at the dinner with Donnelly were Boston
Mayor Ray Flynn and John Driscoll of the Turnpike Authority.

"We had a nice time," said Donnelly of the $1,000 per ticket dinner. "But the food was better at Lantana's."

He was referring to the night he was recently honored by the Red Cross at the Lantana.

ALTHOUGH DONNELLY has kept his promise to Reisberg, he has fallen down on his vow to quit cigarettes.

"I don't know," he said exhaling a cloud of smoke at The Sun office. "I tried."

He says he will give it another shot "one of these days."

NORTH QUINCY'S Joseph
Gildea spent a month at Winter
Haven, Fla. looking over the Red Sox.

"They looked pretty good to me," he says. "I think they'll finish third — maybe better."

Look out, Joe. Someone is apt to clip this and post it at the Montclair Men's Club to see how right or wrong you are in October.

DAN CUPID DEPT.: A young couple went to a bloodmobile drive in North Quincy to give from the heart and ended up capturing each other.

Romance was in the air when Judy McNeil of Quincy was donating blood during a recent Red Cross drive at the Stop & Shop Companies office. John Foley of Braintree, proposed marriage by presenting her with a beautiful diamond and a bouquet of red roses.
Afterwards John also donated. Both were first time donors.

Yes, Judy accepted John's proposal of marriage and a Sept. 13 wedding is planned.

As they departed a Stop & Shop spokesman echoed this comment: "A real live bloodmobile romance."

With Shipyard Closing

Home Style Restaurant Faces Uncertain Future

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Her name is Zaida, but a number of her customers call her "Ma."

And like her mother before her, she serves home cooked meals with a generous dash of love.

Zaida Shaw is the manager of Ma's Lunch in Quincy Point, a family-owned business which has served generations of workers at the nearby General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard.

But as the workforce dwindles as the yard's spring closing draws near, the future of the restaurant becomes more uncertain.

"This is really hard to talk about," said Mrs. Shaw as she worked in the kitchen of the unassuming restaurant, which has about 100 seats.

"It's devastating - like a family splitting up."

"So many good people have come here over the years. We've treated our customers like family."

"Ma's Lunch" opened at 64 Winter St. in 1952.

"My brother, Sam Hassan, was a draftsman at Bethlehem Steel (prior to General Dynamics taking over the yard).

"He used to bring men home for lunch, and my mother used to feed them. That's how the idea for the restaurant began," said Mrs. Shaw.

Her mother, Agnes Hassan, did all the cooking, with help from her 11 children. Her husband, Samuel, was injured at the shipyard and was unable to work.

"Her name was Najia in Arabic, but somehow they came up with Agnes when she came through Ellis Island from Lebanon," smiled Mrs. Shaw.

"She was quite a gal," said Mrs. Shaw. "Everybody loved her and she loved them just as much."

"No one ever came in the door, and went away hungry, even if they didn't have any money."

"Today, everyone is afraid to show a little compassion for their fellow man."

ZAIDA SHAW works in her kitchen at Ma's Lunch, Winter St., Quincy Point.

"She was a good, good person, and everyone called her 'Ma'."

In 1972, Mrs. Shaw returned with her two sons from California where she had lived for seven years.

"California was nice, but not like home," said Mrs. Shaw, whose family immigrated to this country from Lebanon in the early 1900s.

"My father and his three brothers built the foundation of this house out of granite blocks."

"The house itself was moved from where the main gate of the shipyard is today," she said. "It was before the yard was set up as it is now."

Mrs. Shaw helped out at the restaurant until her mother died in 1978 at the age of 77.

"I miss her so much," said Mrs. Shaw, who has been carrying on her mother's tradition serving meals Monday to Friday, 4 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Her sister and brother live in the apartment above the restaurant, and she and her two sons live on the top floor. Mrs. Joan LaFleur helps out in the restaurant during the afternoons.

The menu features a variety of reasonably priced items. Beer and wine are also served.

"We really try to make as many homemade things as we can," said Mrs. Shaw as she stirred some turkey soup with fresh carrots and celery.

The most expensive items on the menu are meals such as stuffed shells with homemade sauce priced at $3.25.

"We've always tried to keep the prices in line for working people," she said. The fish dinner on Friday is a popular dish, she noted.

"It's good and fresh," she explained.

But where she used to order 100 pounds of fish a week, much less now suffices.

"There used to be lines of people outside waiting to get in," said Mrs. Shaw.

"Now we say there's no waiting," she smiled, pointing out that the number of shipyard workers has decreased from 6,300 to 1,200 or 1,000.

"We're not going to close," said Mrs. Shaw, a determined woman of four feet, 11 inches with brown eyes and a ready smile.

"I hope we can hang in and do the best we can."

"I hope people will come down and see what we have, know that we're here."

"It's really hard to explain how we feel."

"Men (from the shipyard) that we've known for 30 years come in and say goodbye."

"We want to work. We want to stay here."

"It's a beautiful city and we don't want to leave."

"I feel in my heart that something might happen (with the shipyard). I can't believe they'll let it all go."

Does she think of trading the long hours for the ease of retirement? Mrs. Shaw shakes her head.

"I like people and I love to cook."

"When you cook with love, it comes from the heart and it's not hard work."

Mayor Burgin Eyes Bid For Lt. Governor

Mayor Thomas Burgin was mentioned this week as a possible candidate for the post of Lieutenant Governor on the Republican ticket.

Burgin said that there was support for South Shore representation on the state ticket. It was noted that in the past the South Shore had furnished few candidates for top-of-the-ticket positions.

If Burgin did decide to run for the Lieutenant Governorship, it was speculated that his running mate for Governor would most likely be ex-Lieutenant Governor Arthur Coolidge or former Dist. Atty. Clarence Barnes.

'Infant Saver' Program At Quincy Hospital

Quincy City Hospital will offer a new session of the "Infant Saver/Child Saver" Program Tuesday, April 22, and Thursday, April 24.

Registrations are now being accepted for the program, designed to save the lives of infants and children.

According to the hospital, the response to the previous sessions, which began in October, 1985, has demonstrated the need in the South Shore area, for life-saving instruction for youngsters.

The hospital's new program is designed to educate parents and persons working with children in techniques of Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR), recognition and treatment of common childhood injuries, general first aid preventative measures.

The Executive Office of Human Services of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts has recently notified the hospital that the "Infant Saver/Child Saver" Program has been approved as a first aid course for Day Care Center workers, having met the guidelines and regulations of the state of Massachusetts.

Participants are taught CPR techniques on child-size mannequins, by a certified instructor in BCLS (Basic Cardiac Life Support), accredited by the American Heart Association.

According to QCH, statistics indicate that most people, including parents, would not know how to help an infant or child who had stopped breathing, or who had a serious injury.

Accidental injuries claim the lives of four times as many infants and children as do medical illnesses, the hospital said.

Classes will be held April 22 and 24, from 7 to 10 p.m. at the hospital. Class size is limited to assure individual instruction.

In response to demonstrated interest, the workshop will be repeated on a continuing basis.

For a brochure, or to register for the April 22 session, call 773-6100, ext. 3017.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK.

Some of the world's most talented people have never been paid a cent. They are called volunteers. They take time from their work, their leisure, their home-life to volunteer their talents and their energies. Volunteerism is in the spotlight this week. It is the time to publicly thank them for their work and let them know that their service is important to us. This week is the time to make an effort to look around and see who is doing what to help out. . . . Look at the nursing homes and hospitals and you'll see men and women finding time to visit with the residents and help the staff. . . . Look at the schools and you'll see people who serve on committees, who donate materials, who help raise funds all for the love of doing. . . . Look at the churches and you'll see people who give their time to sing in the choir, and work on committees. . . . You'll see people who deeply care about their community and want to work to make it better, honor it and tell others about it.

When asked why they volunteer, the most popular reason heard will be, "Because I care, I want to help." . . . We ask that our readers join us in saluting the volunteers in our community. . . . Let us show them that because they care, we care about them! . . .

Mayor's Commission Study Reveals Plight Of Homeless

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

During 1985, at least 45 families were on the streets of Quincy without homes.

Uncounted others sought temporary shelter with relatives and friends.

To focus attention on these and other facts, the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women has completed a study on the seriousness of the problems faced by Quincy's homeless.

"Housing and Homelessness: A Report on Housing Issues Confronting Quincy's Homeless" focuses on:

- Strains on existing shelters to house the homeless;
- Lack of affordable permanent housing;
- Identifying the homeless and the causes of homelessness;

Increased emphasis on support services.

"In Quincy, where economic growth and development have produced a lack of affordable housing, the number of people traditionally seeking shelter has swelled," according to the 123-page study prepared by Patricia Lovell, commissioner, and Linda Perry, co-chairwoman.

Members of eleven groups ranging from Quincy Community Action Organization to the Department of Public Welfare were consulted on the topic.

"Offices replaced residential rooms in downtown Quincy buildings.

"Once replaced, residential facilities were not made available elsewhere within the city, thereby reducing the number of affordable single rooms," the study states.

"These numbers have put strains on the existing shelters now located in Quincy."

For example, cited the study, from July, 1984 to January, 1986, 96 people were served by the Salvation Army Basement, a five-bed shelter. Only eight people went on to permanent housing.

In addition to other local shelters, many others have been placed in motels by the Department of Social Services on a temporary basis.

"A family's length of stay in a motel can average from one day to over a year," according to the study.

"This is a particularly difficult situation in which to live, especially for families.

"Motel rooms offer cramped living quarters which offer little in terms of home environment."

Many people in temporary shelters are awaiting affordable permanent housing, but the wait may be long.

During 1985, the Quincy Housing Authority had 768 applicants on its waiting list, but only 60 openings became available during the year, according to the study.

Fifty of the openings went to top priority cases, such as those burned out of their homes.

People seeking shelter for other reasons will have up to a five year wait, the study states.

The Mayor's Commission feels it is important to properly identify the homeless in order to meet their housing requirement.

Some of the homeless need family units while others need single units, the study explained.

Close to half of the Quincy Housing Authority's homeless applicants are women and their children, according to the Mayor's Commission. Many of the women are referred from DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended), the shelter for battered women.

"The women at DOVE have limited choices available to them in trying to alleviate their shelter situation."

"They can seek permanent housing by returning to their abuser, or they can seek new housing."

"Most of these women have trouble with the latter choice because of a lack of financial resources," according to the study.

"Another group often affected by homelessness is divorced women who must go on welfare to survive. Statistics indicate that it takes about two years for a woman to get back on her feet and overcome the trauma."

Homelessness also takes its toll on children and adolescents, the Mayor's Commission found.

"The effects of homelessness on children are equally disturbing as the effects on their mothers. Depression is common among this group," the study states.

"Many of these children do not get the adequate attention and care they so desperately need during this time of uprootedness."

"Unfortunately, their parents are caught up with housing problems and are too stressed to deal with their children," according to the study.

Nutritional difficulties with children often arise during homelessness, the Mayor's Commission noted.

"At a time in their lives when good nutrition and medical care is important, children run the risk of being overlooked in these areas."

"One example of this is the increase in the number of failure to thrive babies, those whose growth has been retarded due to lack of nutrition."

Many mentally ill people are on the street due to a lack of supervised facilities or because their families could no longer deal with them, according to the study.

"Many of these people have been deinstitutionalized by the state, but have been found to be unable to cope on their own without guidance," the study states.

Another percentage of the homeless is comprised of people without hard core problems other than homelessness, the Mayor's Commission said.

"For these people, circumstances beyond their control have forced them into their current plight," stated the study.

The study cited as an example people with no skills or money who came to Quincy from other states when General Dynamics Quincy Shipbuilding Division advertised for help in late 1984 and early 1985.

Those who didn't qualify for a job faced expensive housing costs they were unable to afford, the study stated.

"Through efforts of the Quincy Community Action Organization, General Dynamics was forced to hire a housing coordinator to help alleviate the situation," according to the study.

"The company was also forced to change its recruiting technique."

According to the Mayor's Commission, the increase in homelessness has put an additional burden on already existing services.

The Quincy Crisis Center distributed from its van 70 to 100 meals a day during the winter months of 1985 and as high as 150 a day during the summer of 1985, the study stated.

"Many of Quincy's shelters and anti-poverty organizations have responded to the added demand on existing rehabilitation programs by increasing personnel and creating new services to deal with the crisis," according to the study.

The Mayor's Commission concluded with five recommendations:

- Develop affordable housing through new building construction (state or federal mixed income units).
- Create new ways of utilizing vacant housing or partially occupied buildings.
- Encourage the emotionally and physically healthy homeless to share a housing unit for purposes of cutting costs.

- Provide counseling services to those willing to share housing units.
- Increase AFDC subsidies.
- Increase the budgets of organizations with programs that deal with the homeless.

Yule Parade Theme Deadline April 23

Deadline for the public to mail in their theme suggestions for this year's annual City of Quincy Christmas Parade is April 23.

The 28-member parade committee said all contest suggestions should be addressed to Mrs. Frances Flynn, 79 Freeman St., North Quincy, 02170. The committee will select the winner Wednesday, April 30.

The individual whose entry is selected will be invited to participate in the parade and will be presented with a gift at the parade awards ceremony.

In the past some of the suggestions received were from organizations who build the floats. This gives them a chance to submit their input on the theme based upon their personal involvement, said George White, general chairman.

White added the theme should be concise and appropriate for float builders to work within. "Remember, it is a season of happiness and the theme should create an environment in keeping with the spirit of Christmas.

"The theme should easily bring to mind 15 to 20 different ways to prepare a float since that is about how many non-commercial floats will be in the parade and also no two floats can be designed on the same idea," said White.

The non-commercial organization that builds the float is awarded $1000, second place is $500, third place, $300 and fourth prize $200.

Floats are judged on the areas of originality, use of materials, use of color, overall appearance and adherence to theme.

Past themes have included "Children's Stories," "Christmas in Toyland," "Christmas Around the World," "The Music of Christmas," "Traditions of Christmas" and last year's winning theme "Visions of Christmas." Last year's winning organization was the Catholic Daughters of the Americas, Houghs Neck, Quincy.

President

Eastern Nazarene College is proud to be a part of the Quincy/South Shore community. On the occasion of this our third annual Community Week celebration at Eastern Nazarene College, we thank you for being our home and neighbors for almost 70 years. During that time, thousands of young men and women have passed through the halls of ENC and graduated to take places of leadership, responsibility, and service in the Quincy/South Shore area. (See partial list below). Perhaps our thanks to our community is best expressed in the accomplishments of our ENC Alumni as they have lived in the Quincy/South Shore area, and worked for its betterment.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Decorating expertise creates a light, airy bedroom

A young couple moved into their first home, only to find the master bedroom cold and wintry. They lightened the room with decorating expertise, to make it light and airy for a springtime feeling all year round.

The key to the decorating is the Primavera pillow and comforter ensemble by Countess York. Four different types of red and white summer roses are framed in deep leaf green and set against a background of widely spaced springtime rosebuds. The companion background fabric is used for the dust ruffle, pillow shams and tailored draperies.

"Dressing" the bed

The bed is dressed with pillows aplenty, for luxurious lounging or weekend breakfasts in bed. The sleeping pillows are Du Pont "Quallofil" with Stayfresh.

These soft-as-down pillows are filled with fibers which have been specially engineered for lasting freshness, even in the hottest of summers. The pillows are machine washable and dryable, non-allergenic and refluflable. The comforter is insulated with Du Pont "Quallofil" for year round sleeping comfort.

Additional comforter fabric is used to cover the accent pillows; individual rose motifs are framed and hung over the bed. Pampering neck rolls are a finishing touch.

Wall and ceiling coverings

Walls and ceilings are covered in the light, airy background material. A hand-me-down chair and ottoman were re-upholstered with soft, resilient "Quallofil" cushioning, and slipcovered in the matching background fabric.

Dark leaf green is used throughout the room as an accent color — on the ceiling CLEVER DECORATING and lots of "Quallofil" turn a dark master bedroom into a luxurious springtime delight.

molding, on the painted floor, in springtime plants and throw pillows, and in crisp green piping on the cushioned pieces.

The final result? A light and airy room that's fresher than springtime, comfortable and inviting.

Wallcoverings diversify

HERE'S AN EXAMPLE of the kind of diversity that's possible with today's wallcoverings. The floral patterns in the wallcoverings blend with the companion fabrics in the sofa, chairs and curtains to give the room a look of elegance.

In the old days, people who wanted to decorate their walls were, for the most part, limited to two choices—paint or wallpaper.

Paint is still paint. But wallpaper has undergone tremendous change. Now, it is just one category in a cornucopia of materials, styles, finishes, patterns, colors and textures known as wallcoverings.

Other developments have made decorating with wallcoverings much easier. Pre-trimmed and pre-pasted wallcoverings, for example, make it possible for a do-it-yourselfer to decorate an entire room in an afternoon. Just be sure to follow the manufacturer's instructions, says the Wallcovering Information Bureau.

Another feature of today's wallcoverings is their durability and economy. Designed to last many years, wallcoverings are an extremely cost-efficient decorating tool because they last so long and are so easy to care for. Many are scrubbable and stain resistant.

Wallcoverings are available at decorating stores, home centers, paint and wallpaper stores or department stores. There you can find the tools you'll need as well as expert advice on patterns, styles and colors and the amount of wallcovering you'll need.

For more information on wallcoverings, write for a free copy of "The Wallcovering How-to Handbook" to WIB, Dept. HP-66 Morris Ave., Springfield, NJ 07081.

REDECORATE WITH WALLCOVERINGS

If you're one of the millions of consumers interested in redecorating with wallcoverings, the Wallcovering Information Bureau says you can purchase them through decorating centers, department stores, furniture outlets, home centers, specialty stores or interior designers.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Which is the better decision: Moving or remodeling?

① Dissatisfied with your home... Thinking of moving? Before you put up that "For Sale" sign — wait. You may be better off remodeling your home to meet your present needs.

In the 1970s, buying and selling — or "trading in" — homes made financial sense. Sales commission, closing costs and moving expenses were easily offset by the home's 12 to 14 percent annual appreciation. If you lived in your home for three years, you could anticipate a healthy 20 percent profit on the sale.

Today, interest rates are in the double digits and house appreciation has plummeted to three to four percent. Today, just to cover buying and selling costs — with no profit — you have to reside in your home for at least three years.

Since it doesn't always pay to move, more and more homeowners are electing to stay in their existing homes and improve them to meet new needs.

In fact, rehab projects are becoming recognized more and more as a dependable way to create real estate value in a low-inflation economy. Currently the remodeling market is estimated at nearly $60 billion a year, and it's growing annually.

Assessing remodeling costs

Naturally, remodeling is not the answer for everyone, especially if you're tired of the maintenance responsibilities of an older home, or you want to live in a different neighborhood. Obviously, too, all remodeling projects do not pay.

According to the CertainTeed Home Institute, however, there are three ways to assess the cost of any major remodeling project: 1) The cost of turning the entire job over to a professional, 2) the cost of doing the work yourself, and 3) the cost in terms of inconvenience during remodeling.

As a guide, most professional remodeling projects will cost between $60-$100 per square foot. Therefore, prior to remodeling, it pays to assess how much value the project will add to your home's resale value.

You can cut remodeling costs in half by doing some — or all — of the project yourself, but naturally you will have to expend many of your own hours.

And don't forget to plan for the inconvenience of some remodeling projects. A room addition or adding extra insulation may not disrupt daily life too much, but bathroom or kitchen improvements may.

Which projects offer best payback?

Naturally, if you're going to remodel, you'll want to get the maximum real-capital effect. As a guide, the CertainTeed Home Institute recommends that you (1) keep your project in scale with your neighborhood's real estate norms, (2) invest in types of improvements that will have the most practical, immediate use to the category of households moving into your neighborhood and (3) acquaint yourself with recent material trends in capital paybacks for different types of improvements.

Generally, home improvement projects offering the most value to your home are: Energy-saving upgrades, kitchen modernizations, existing space redesign and bathroom additions.

Installing energy-savings materials such as insulation is easy to do. The time and costs involved are reasonable and almost any home can be upgraded to the energy efficiency of the majority of new homes.

Adding insulation such as CertainTeed's fiber glass batts or rolls yourself to an entire house will cost roughly $1,200, but will add approximately $1,000 (83 percent of cost) to its equity financing value in the eyes of a mortgage lender.

If you prefer to hire a contractor to install Insul-Safe IIT™ a blown-in fiber glass insulation from CertainTeed, with outstanding thermal properties, you'll still add to your home's equity financing value. Caulking, weatherstripping around windows and doors, and insulating a water heater and pipes, will also keep your home more comfortable and increase its resale value.

Remember lending institutions are offering breaks to buyers of energy-efficient homes. The rationale is that these homeowners will have more income available due to smaller energy bills.

Modernizing a kitchen is one of the smartest projects a homeowner can undertake. For example, a kitchen and dining area can be combined into one large eat-in kitchen.

Smaller projects will cost about $4-6,000; a complete overhaul $10,000 and up — but you'll get an excellent return on your money if you eventually sell.

According to a survey in New Shelter magazine, smaller projects will produce resale and mortgage financing returns of 86 percent and 83 percent respectively.

Redesigning existing space into more economical space can be very rewarding while living in a home and very eye-catching to future buyers.

Turning a screened-in porch into a den, or a pantry into a home office, can turn once unused space into highly desirable rooms. When adding additions, however, try not to raise the value of your home more than 20 percent over the others in your neighborhood.

Adding a new bathroom is one of the best investments a homeowner can make. A new bathroom will cost about $4,900, but it will yield an average 103 percent return on resale.

Remodeling or improving a home is dependable way to create real estate value in this low-inflation economy. And, remember, after upgrading your home you will not only increase its resale value but you'll be eligible for greater refinancing and second mortgages.

For more information on insulation home improvements, write to the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

HINTS FOR GARDENERS

Winning The War On Weeds

All gardeners, amateur and professional, dislike weeding. However, for years professionals have been able to avoid this chore by preventing rather than removing weeds around perennials, shrubs, rose bushes and trees.

Now there's a product available for the home gardener that contains the secret weapon of the experts...an ingredient called trifluralin. It's guaranteed to prevent new weeds from growing.

The product, called Preen™ is safe, easy to use, and biodegradable. If you apply it early in the growing season, you'll have season-long weed control. But you can also use the product during the growing season.

You do have to remove existing weeds, and it's not intended for lawns or annuals started with seeds. Preen can be used under pebbles, bark or other mulch. For established plants, it can be sprinkled on the soil like salt.

For a free, informative Q&A booklet, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Preen, Box 317, Lebanon, PA 17042.

The cars are parked in rows, with some spaces occupied by larger vehicles like trucks. In the background, a city skyline is visible, including a prominent tall building. To the left of the parking lot, there is a long, low building with a sign that appears to say "Garage". The parking lot is bordered by a low concrete wall in the foreground. The overall scene depicts a busy urban parking area.

Marie Sullivan Semi-Finalist In Nurse Mates Heart Of Gold Award

Marie T. Sullivan of Quincy, has been chosen as one of 25 semi-finalists nationwide for the 1985-1986 Nurse Mates Heart of Gold Award.

The program is the first such corporate-sponsored effort to recognize individuals who have demonstrated personal professionalism and excellence or have made significant contributions to the advancement of nursing.

Mrs. Sullivan's job involves the promotion of safety on the job site. As the second woman appointed to the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration, she takes issue with non-compliant industry executives.

Much of her free time is spent teaching the importance of safety both at home and at the work site. She has also served on the First Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women.

Mrs. Sullivan, a graduate of St. Margaret's Hospital School of Nursing, began her nursing career on the St. Margaret's staff. Her three daughters will follow in their mother's footsteps, having chosen nursing as their profession.

Mrs. Sullivan was selected by the Massachusetts Nurse's Association from hundreds of nominations, based on her dedication to the field, outstanding achievements, leadership, and other criteria.

As a semifinalist, she will be awarded a Heart of Gold pendant and a pair of Nurse Mates duty shoes. In addition, her name has been forwarded to the finalist judging committee which will choose five finalists, one from each of five regions: northeast, southeast, midwest, southwest and west. Each finalist will receive a $2,000 grant, as well as a $1,000 grant to be directed to the charity/research/educational foundation of her choice. The 1985-1986 Nurse Mates Heart of Gold winner will receive an additional $5,000, and $1,000 more to the foundation of her choice.

The Heart of Gold Award is an annual program sponsored by Nurse Mates, manufacturer of duty footwear and a brand of Lowell Shoe, Hudson, N.H. Nursing colleagues, their families, patients, doctors and administrators all may nominate nurses for this prestigious award, with no purchase required. All judges are affiliated with the nursing profession.

Details on the 1986-1987 program will be available in spring 1986.

ASBESTOS LUNG DISEASE

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS of the 1930's-1970's have lung afflictions because they inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

Pee Wee B's Complete Successful Season

Quincy's Pee Wee B team, sponsored by A&T Movers, completed a highly successful season, playing in the Division 2 national championships at Pembroke.

The B's won the state title and represented Massachusetts in the nationals. Unfortunately, Quincy and host Pembroke were the only B teams in the tournament. Teams from Illinois, Michigan, California, Ohio, New York and Rhode Island were all classified as A or AA teams.

Quincy played Illinois in its opener and lost, 6-1, with Greg Hohmann scoring the goal and Mark Kelleher and Jeremy Burm assisted.

Quincy dominated the first 10 minutes of the game but Illinois took over and out-shot Quincy, 34-14.

Michigan walloped Quincy, 11-0, outshooting Quincy by an amazing 58-8 count. Michigan scored five goals in the final five minutes.

Despite the losses Quincy had an outstanding season.

At the tournament banquet the boys were impressed with the remarks of Harvard's Scott Fusco, the outstanding NCAA player in the nation and winner of the Hoby Baker Award.

Rich Brooks, Kelleher, Bill Lydon, John Bertrand, Danny Savage, Matt Swierk, John Witham and Mike Wood will return to the Pee Wee B's next year, while Burm, Jeff Freeman, Hohmann, Mike Hughes, Duane Keegan, Armando Mancini, Dave Mellyn, Dave Santosuosso, Bob Scott, Jamie Tapper and Pat O'Donoghue will graduate to the Bantam level.

much for the Raider football program and the school's other programs through the years.

He was the inspiration for the North Quincy mascot, "Yakoo," the Indian.

A friend of his was a member of the Student Council and had an assignment to come up with a picture of an Indian. He asked Dr. Yacubian to take off his glasses and pose, which he did.

Yakoo was the result and has remained a symbol of North Quincy High School. Dr. Yacubian was presented with a plaque from the North Football Boosters Club.

Malloy Receives Mass. Coaches Award

Chris Malloy, a two-way tackle for the North Quincy football team, was one of eight schoolboy players recently honored with a Coaches Award given by the Massachusetts High School Football Coaches Association.

The award goes annually to varsity football players from the state who "played physically challenged, endured a hardship or served as an inspiration to a team. The player must have demonstrated teamwork, spirit and sportsmanship."

Malloy suffered nerve damage that severely impaired the use of his right arm when he fell from a moving car while in junior high school.

He was not a starter or a Raider star, but he never missed a practice, never complained and never quit. In the words of coach Ken McPhee, "he was an inspiration to all of us."

"I was worried when he first came out as a freshman due to his disability," said McPhee. "I was concerned about his playing, but he insisted and took care of his disability with a special brace to keep his arm in."

"He never let it hold him back and never made a big deal out of it. He is the type of kid that any program would benefit from by having him on the team. He worked to his full capacity at all times."

Malloy received a rousing ovation when he was presented the annual Robert F.X. Schaezel Award at the North Quincy football banquet.

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney said, "Regarding their refusal to bid on this program means that General Dynamics is not willing to look at any reasonable proposal that would include shipbuilding here in Quincy."

"What I would recommend is that the state become the broker of the yard to insure that the Quincy facility remain a shipyard."

"It would cost the state several hundreds of thousands of dollars on employment compensation and retraining of the laid off workers in the event they could find no jobs after being let go. So it makes sense that the state be interested in order that 101 years of tradition-building quality ships in Quincy—be continued."

Cheney also noted that at a meeting last week in which 150 city and state officials, shipyard workers, union leaders and residents jammed City Hall, a formal presentation was made of a report on the potential reuse of the yard. The report was prepared by the consulting firm of Booz, Allen & Hamilton. "The findings in this report lend credibility that shipbuilding is feasible," said Cheney.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said, "I haven't been in contact with General Dynamics, but they would have to retool the yard, and probably don't feel the amount of money invested would produce the desired results."

"It's still good that this type of thing is coming to the fore. It shows that the Navy is interested in the shipyard. "Hopefully, something else might come along so that General Dynamics might feel comfortable changing their decision."

City Council President Stephen McGrath said, "I'm somewhat surprised that General Dynamics is taking that attitude."

"Maybe what it points out is that the Navy is looking at alternatives for General Dynamics."

"Maybe it points to the possibility of having alternative work there."

According to reports there is only one private facility, Newport News, that is currently qualified to repair nuclear submarines. The Navy, which operates two of its own facilities, has been attempting to increase the number of private yards to stimulate competitive bidding and lower the estimated $120 million price tag per ship.

Other sources said the repair and overhaul of ships is a growing business as the Navy meets its numerical fleet goals of 100 deployable attack submarines and 43 ballistic submarines and the emphasis shifts from new construction to upkeep.

General Dynamics already has a sophisticated nuclear submarine facility at Groton, Conn., where its Electric Boat division is under contract to build four Los Angeles-class fast-attack submarines.

Pace also said in his letter to the Navy the company has serious reservations about its ability to win the necessary permits to do nuclear work at Quincy because of the public process combined with anti-nuclear sentiments that are likely to be raised at Nuclear Regulatory commission hearings.

Cancer Society Cautions About 'Look-Alike' Groups

Quincy area residents who want to be sure the money they give to cancer research is used in the most effective manner should be aware that "look-alike" cancer organizations often make appeals for funds through the mail during the American Cancer Society's April Cancer Crusade, cautions Thomas P. Koch, House to House Chairman, for the Cancer Society's Quincy Unit.

"The term 'look-alike' is used because these organizations often include words like 'National,' 'Society,' 'Research,' or 'Foundation' in their names in an attempt to confuse themselves with the American Cancer Society and ride on its good reputation,"

Koch said. "This can deceive potential contributors into believing that these charities are reputable and established."

While "look-alike" organizations tend to spend an overwhelming proportion of the donations they receive on staff and administrative expenses, organizations like the American Cancer Society rely heavily on volunteers to raise money cost-effectively. In Massachusetts, the Cancer Society channels approximately 83 per cent of the contributions received to cancer control programs.

The American Cancer Society can be identified by its copyrighted Sword of Hope symbol. The Society operates 13 offices throughout Massachusetts and works with more than 100,000 volunteers in the state and 2.3 million volunteers nationwide.

"Citizens should be wary of any solicitation for a charitable contribution via direct mail, especially if it contains a survey or other gimmick," Koch said.

"If you receive a direct mail solicitation from any organization purporting to support cancer research, contact the local Better Business Bureau or American Cancer Society Office before you send a check. Either organization will be glad to provide detailed information about where your cancer dollars go."

'The Growing Child' Boutique Opens Saturday

A Quincy woman will open something new to the retail scene Saturday, April 19, The Growing Child, a resale boutique at 93 South St., Hingham.

Marion Tobin has stocked shelves with prestigious brand name used children's clothing and toys and a line of brand new baby equipment.

Local officials will be on hand for the grand opening at 10 a.m. Colleen the Clown, and Raggedy Ann and Andy will give away balloons and raffle off a brand new double seat tandem bicycle.

"Buying previously used clothes is the only way to go for children up to the age of seven," says Tobin, who is leaving a career as a collector at the State Street Bank to start her own business.

She said being the mother of two children she knows how expensive it is to keep a growing child outfitted fashionably. This first hand knowledge prompted her interest in obtaining a franchise in The Growing Child.

"I'll be offering good clothing at affordable prices, and I think the store will be a real asset to Hingham," says Tobin, who, with her husband Paul, a carpenter and builder, renovated the new store in primary colors and well designed signs.

"It looks like an expensive boutique, but my prices will range from $1.25 up, with no clothing priced at more than $15," added Tobin.

"I buy clean clothing in excellent condition and I've acquired a great supply of top brands in sizes 0 to 8. I also plan to sell some new clothing, but they will be moderately priced too," she said.

In addition to used baby furniture and children's toys, The Growing Child will stock a line of brand new equipment.

The store is the latest franchise of The Growing Child, a nationwide corporation based in Newburyport. President Karen Lynch launched the business with one store selling top drawer children's clothing at bargain basement prices in 1980.

Man Stabbed To Death In Fracas

A 20-year-old Weymouth man was fatally stabbed early Sunday during an argument involving a car blocking a street in Quincy Point, according to police.

James Quinn of Webb St., Weymouth, was pronounced dead Sunday at 2:58 a.m. at Quincy City Hospital.

Keith M. Beaudoin, 27, of 58 Winter St., Quincy Point, a self employed laborer, was charged with Quinn's murder.

Kevin P. Beliveau, 24, of 94 Broadway St., Quincy Point, an electronics technician with Raytheon, was charged with being an accessory after the fact of murder.

Both appeared before Judge Darrell Outlaw at Quincy District Court Monday and pleaded innocent.

Their cases were continued to April 23, at 9 a.m. for a probable cause hearing.

Beaudoin was released on $5,000 cash bail.

Beliveau was released on $1,000 cash bail.

According to police, the incident occurred at 1:35 a.m. Sunday on Harrison St., by the Fore River Field.

The car in which Quinn was a passenger was parked across Harrison St. while a meeting of young people took place, police said.

When Beaudoin and Beliveau drove up in another car and couldn't get past the first vehicle, an argument followed.

Quinn was allegedly stabbed by Beaudoin, according to police.

He received a puncture wound to the chest area over the heart, according to Dr. Thomas Fitzgerald, an attending physician at OCH.

Beaudoin and Beliveau were arrested on Des Moines Rd. by Quincy Police at 5 a.m.

Beaudoin's lawyer, Kevin J. Reddington of Brockton, said that evidence indicates his client acted in self defense.

Helicopter At Vo-Tech School

The Massachusetts Army National Guard will land a helicopter adjacent to the rear side of the Quincy Vocational-Technical School May 2, at approximately 9:30 a.m. Students will be able to talk with the aircrew, examine the aircraft, and view other exhibits provided by the Army National Guard.

Purpose of the visitation is to draw attention to the financial aid made available to high school students through a variety of scholarship options that provide the opportunity to students who would not otherwise be financially able to attend a college or university for post-secondary education.

They Gave Him Money And Trust And Got Nothing

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
"Mary," a divorced woman in her 30s with two young children, was evicted from her Quincy apartment when the building was sold.

A working mother, she had barely been able to meet expenses with the rent she had been paying.

She grew more and more discouraged as she tried to find another apartment in the price range she could afford.

Then she saw an ad in a local newspaper regarding apartments for tenants. With renewed hope, she called the phone number in the ad.

But instead of finding an apartment, "Mary" ended up losing an $85 entrance fee she could ill afford to do without.

She and her children are sharing her mother's small apartment in Dorchester while she continues her search for her own home.

"Mary" is one of seven known people who have lost a total of nearly $1,700 after responding to similar ads and being promised apartments or mortgages which they did not receive.

"What bothers me most is that he's taking money from the people who can least afford it, and he's doing nothing in return," said Jane Reikard, executive secretary of the Quincy Rent Grievance Board.

Mrs. Reikard has received a number of calls about this firm and other businesses operated by the same man.

He operates four other firms, according to certificates of business at City Hall.

Mrs. Reikard said she has heard of only one satisfied client.

Mrs. Reikard hopes to collect enough complaints so that the Attorney General's Office can take out a class action suit. She has seven, and at least 12 would be needed, she said.

"Mary" went to see the man at his 37 Washington St., Quincy Center office, according to Mrs. Reikard, and described him as a "smooth, fast talker."

She paid an $85 entrance fee and was told an apartment would be procured for her, according to Mrs. Reikard.

"Like many people who are desperate, she read the contract after she had

Quincy Patients Rally In Support Of Braintree Doctor

By DAN CONNELLY

Quincy patients and friends are joining a grassroots groundswell of support for Dr. Archie Keigan of Braintree, whose medical license has been suspended by the state.

The Board of Registration in Medicine suspended his license for one year for "improperly prescribing drugs to 13 people addicted to narcotics in 1980 and for not filing required reports and records on cases."

Keigan, a former Norfolk County medical examiner, said he prescribed the drugs to help the people rid themselves of their addiction.

Joining in the support in Quincy for Keigan is Mrs. Richard Thomas of 123 Elm St., who is working with others in a city-wide petition drive to obtain signatures.

"We are attempting to secure as many signatures as possible. Our petition will then be included with petitions from other communities and presented as a supportive act at an appeal hearing on a motion to reinstate his medical license," she said.

Mrs. Thomas added that "I believe it is morally wrong to do this to this man. A lot of people he was seeing have little or no insurance and can't afford a doctor. Despite their circumstances, they're never turned away. What are all those people going to do now?"

She also said Dr. Keigan provides low cost medical care to so many people. Mrs. Thomas is irate that the state board would punish a person

Collection Day May 17 For Hazardous Waste

The Quincy League of Women Voters urges Quincy residents to save their left-over household toxics for the city-sponsored Household Hazardous Waste Collection Day Saturday, May 17.

On that day, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., residents will be asked to bring such products as left-over paint, paint-thinner, pest killers, wood preservatives, drain cleaner, motor oil, oven cleaner, to the Department of Public Works yard at 55 Sea St.

A chemical disposal company will collect these household wastes in a safe manner and transport them to a licensed hazardous facility. These substances should never be disposed of in the trash or in the sewer system because of their harmful effects on the environment, as well as the danger they pose to trans collections or other people who may come in contact with them, according to the LWV.

$1.1 Million Loan Fund For City Businesses

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Local businesses can now apply for loans of up to $100,000 as part of a $1.1 million Commercial Development Loan Fund newly established by the city.

At a Tuesday morning press conference, Mayor Francis McCauley said the fund will fill in the gap between Store Front Loans and Industrial Revenue Bonds.

Maximum Store Front Loans are for $5,000 he said, and the minimum loan for an Industrial Revenue Bond is $250,000.

The fund will be administered by the city's Planning Department in conjunction with the First National Bank of Boston, according to McCauley.

"The city will capitalize the loan fund with the initial amount of $280,000 that will leverage some $1 million in private funds to be administered by the Bank of Boston," McCauley said.

The program will provide business owners with financing at three quarters of the prevailing prime rate at the Bank of Boston for terms generally of up to five years, according to Frances McCormack, regional president, Bank of Boston. Loans of a size and nature which require repayment terms longer than five years will be reviewed on a case by case basis.

There will be a five per cent cap on the interest rate of the loan which will be adjusted annually, McCormack said.

McCauley said that Principal Planner Kevin Shea has been working on the fund since December.

The loan fund may be used to acquire commercial property for exterior and/or rehabilitation and/or expansion of the building, according to Shea.

The loans may also be used to purchase machinery and equipment as well as leasehold improvements, he said.

Eligible projects include commercial, industrial and mixed-use properties, according to Shea.

The loan fund can not be used to finance new construction, housing, site improvements, vehicles, working capital, inventory and

4 Cars Vandalized

Four cars were reported vandalized April 20, at 133 Commander Shea Blvd., Quincy.

Cars owned by Brian Waliski and Mort Teheranian each had their passenger window broken and a stereo stolen, according to police.

The dashboard and seats were slashed, and the damaged, of a car owned by Thomas Lipton.

James Murray told police the driver's window and door were damaged in his car.

SPRING TIME--Brettany Towers, 9, and Christopher Igo, 4, both of Quincy, makes good use of a spare tire, fashioned into a swing at Caddy Park in Wollaston. Warming temperatures and spring school break makes the park an ideal place to play.

Real Life Drugs Drama At QHS April 28

By DAN CONNELLY

Eddie LaRiviere of Narragansett, R.I., was 16 when he died in 1977, the victim of a drug and alcohol overdose.

In an effort to dramatize his story, his brother Keven will present his play, "Eddie Was Here," at Quincy Voc-Tech High School Monday, April 28. Students will comprise the cast.

The play, a disturbing, poignant and provocative one, will be staged for students at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. Parents can attend the evening performance at 7:30.

NEWSCARRIERS WANTED

Here's a chance to earn extra money by building a Quincy Sun home delivery route.
Telephone: 471-3100

Four years ago, LaRiviere says he finished "Eddie Was Here, 1961-1977," and hit the road with it. Now, several nights a week, LaRiviere is in high school auditoriums, helping teens act out the scenes of his younger brother's life and death. Presently over 80,000 teenagers and parents have experienced Eddie's life through this play.

LaRiviere says it portrays both teens and adults as well-meaning decent people, bewildered by the situations they are in and caught up by their emotions.

"What is happening is the true-life story of a family coming apart and a youngster wasting away his life," he added.

He said the play recreates Eddie's life events so that others may learn from his experience. There is no written script, no professional actors. All who are involved are asked to improvise and act their feelings as they would if this were their experience.

"Eddie Was Here," was staged recently at North Quincy High School.

LaRiviere says the Edward Joseph LaRiviere Memorial Foundation has been formed to promote excellence in education, community understanding and direct financial aid to families in need of substance abuse treatment. Donations and/or information may be directed to Kevin LaRiviere, foundation director at (401)-253-6988 or Nancy Monday, program coordinator at (401)-245-7886.

The play's fame is spreading, Massachusetts schools ask for it; especially at this time of year, the prom, end-of-school season.

YMCA Seeks Land For Branch Facility

The Board of Directors of the South Shore Y.M.C.A. has formed a Future Facility Planning Committee for the purpose of constructing a Y.M.C.A. Branch Building south of its Quincy headquarters.

W. Gordon Clark, Chairman of the Planning Committee, said that the first assignment is to locate possible available land in the towns of Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate, Norwell or Braintree. He has appointed a site selection sub-committee comprised of William Smith, Jr., Umberto Motroni, Paul Hurley, Jr., and George Atkinson. Their work is to begin immediately and report back to the total committee.

The building expansion program is by agreement between the South Shore Y.M.C.A., the former Weymouth Y.M.C.A. and the Davis Bates Clapp Memorial

Trust. A Y.M.C.A. Community Service Division was formed in 1981 at the closing of the Weymouth Y.M.C.A. to provide outreach services to the South Shore area in preparation for building expansion. The Community Service Division is presently providing limited programs in the areas of Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree and Scituate. Programs include:

After School Child Care programs, youth sports programs (T-Ball, YBA), Water Babies/Young Tot Swim programs, Cardiovascular Fitness Classes, Aerobic Dance Programs, Y's Way to a Healthy Back Programs, Learn to Swim Campaign and Church School Basketball League.

Charles A. Pearce, President of the Y.M.C.A. said now is the time to earnestly begin studying the possibilities of a new building south of Quincy, Northeastern University under the leadership of Professor George Atkinson, has completed a Feasibility Study of the area and this report is being used to assist in the selection of the proper location.

Clark said there is a great deal of work ahead for the Committee, but he is pleased that the project has begun since there is great need for Y facilities and programs in our South Shore communities.

Planning Committee members in addition to Clark, are James Asher, Jr., George Atkinson, Paul Hurley, Jr., William Kelley, Paul MacElhiney, Umberto Motroni, Lloyd Smith, and William Smith, Jr.

Between five and eight acres will be needed and anyone having a knowledge of available sites is asked to contact committee members or the Community Service Division of the Y.M.C.A. at 479-8500.

QHA Awarded $2M For Modernizing Housing Units

The Quincy Housing Authority has been awarded state grants totalling $2 million for modernization of both family and elderly housing units, State Senator Paul D. Harold announces.

The funds, awarded from the largest housing bill approved by the legislature in the state's history, will finance the second phase of an ongoing three-phase program to modernize public housing facilities.

The first phase of the program began with awards of $3.2 million to the QHA in October of 1984.

In Quincy, $1,657,000 in Phase II money will modernize kitchens and gas boiler service in the family units at the Snug Harbor housing complex.

Harold said the first phase of the project at Snug Harbor involved $1.4 million for residing, bathroom improvements, pest control, heating work and a maintenance addition.

The second Phase II grant is $192,000 to improve paving, walkways, lighting and fencing at elderly complexes at Snug Harbor Court, Martensen St. and Clav St.

The first phase at these complexes involved $180,000 for smoke detectors, walkways and various repairs, Harold said.

The third Phase II grant will provide kitchen improvements and wooden handrails at the West Acres project. The first phase at West Acres included $175,000 for bathrooms, walkways and chimney repairs.

Harold said funding for the third phase of the modernization program, which will include further modernization, painting and lighting, is planned for 1987.

According to police, the girl was walking on the dike heading towards Houghs Neck April 15, about 12:45 p.m. when the men called her obscene names.

One of the men pulled her into the marsh and raped her, police said.

He was described as about 5-foot, 10-inches tall, with a medium build, medium length dark brown hair, parted in the middle, clean shaven and with a long nose, according to police.

He was wearing black corduroy pants and orange work boots, police said.

The other man was said to have black straight hair of medium length and was wearing green camouflage pants, police said.

$60,000 For Quarries Recreation

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey, (D - Quincy), announces that the FY 87 House Budget includes $60,000 for management and maintenance of the Quincy quarries by the Appalachian Mountain Club.

Earlier this year, the Metropolitan District Commission purchased the quarry land creating a park which the club has agreed to manage and develop.

"This is just the start of what we hope will be a recreation area to be enjoyed by citizens of all ages," said Morrissey.

"In the past the quarries have been an attractive nuisance, inviting trespassers, that has resulted in countless injuries and fatalities," Morrissey continued.

"The Appalachian Club has consistently proven its dedication to the restoration of natural resources and recreational safety and we are confident that they will continue to do so," Morrissey said.

Definition Of Development

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

DEVELOPMENT - Webster's Dictionary defines the word DEVELOP - "to cause to grow and mature, to put to use, to progress."

The City of Quincy is a wonderful place to live, work, play, raise a family and retire. The quotes of residents at a recent public hearing held at Quincy City Hall regarding some proposed zoning amendments stated that there was no concern by developers for the environmental impact, traffic, public safety and quality of life - only concern for profits. This Is Not True.

Some people spoke negatively about Quincy, "It's becoming another Boston." "Developers want to build Columbia Point housing." "The builders in this city are like gypsies, they build and leave." The implications being that developers do not care about Quincy as a community and leave behind undesirable development. This Is Not True.

Let us look at the other side of the coin!!! Develop - "To cause to grow and mature."

The City of Quincy has experienced a growth and maturity over the past twenty years because of its geographical location; i.e., waterfront, proximity to Boston, public transportation and the overall quality of life. Our elected officials have represented the views of neighborhoods and their input into development, not which has occurred in Quincy as part of its growth and maturity.

Develop - "To put to use."

The City of Quincy has put to better use land that was either undeveloped or improperly developed; i.e., Boston Harbor Marina, an area that is now available to residents of Quincy to live, work and play. Prior to its being redeveloped, it consisted of broken down buildings and an antiquated airplane hanger. Boston Harbor Marina has contributed in its development in a positive way to the "quality of life" in Quincy.

cy. There is enough tax revenue derived from Boston Harbor Marina to provide not only services to their own development, but help to provide services to neighboring areas as well.

Develop - "To progress."

Quincy has progressed and must continue to progress to keep up with the needs of the residents and the quality of life in the community. Development in our downtown area will allow merchants the opportunity to stay in business, provide a service and continue to be an integral part of the community. Progress means taking an area such as Duane's Lumber Yard, a beautiful waterfront property presently filled with junk and making it a housing development where people can live and residents can enjoy the natural resources that are inaccessible now. This is certainly a better use of an existing improperly developed property. Progress!!!

The other side of the coin is really a very shiny side!

Developers in this city have contributed in many ways to enhancing the quality of life. The examples of how beautiful waterfront properties that were not available for residents to enjoy, and now are, show a wisdom and concern for the proper use of these prime areas in our city.

Traffic and public safety are major concerns of developers and they take into consideration the views of the neighborhoods and work very closely with the city to improve situations and not create them. Many of the major developers live in the City of Quincy and have a concern just as the residents do. They are also residents and want the best for their families.

Develop - "To Cause To Grow And Mature, To Put To Use, To Progress." Webster's Dictionary seems to have had the City of Quincy in mind in its definition of the word "develop" - "... the shiny side of the coin."

The Political Answer Man

City Solicitor Joseph (Jay) MacRitchie may find himself in the role of the "Political Answer Man" if Councillor Richard Koch, Jr. leaves Quincy this year.

For openers, if Koch moved to Cape Cod where he owns a house to take a new job with Kemper Insurance, could he stay on as a city councillor in Quincy?

And, if he could, for how long?

If he couldn't—or didn't—stay on for the rest of this year, a special election would be called to fill the vacancy.

KOCH

If there is a special election the field of candidates could include City Council President Steve McGrath, Ron Iacobucci, who has run the past two elections as the only council-at-large challenger, School Committee-woman Mary Collins, former Ward 6 Councillor Joanne Condon, Tim Cahill and possibly — just possibly — former Councillor John Quinn.

Condon probably would not run if McGrath did. They have been close politically.

McGrath is almost sure to run because he could better launch a future mayoral run as an at-large councillor than a ward councillor. He can't stay on more than two years as council president so he can't count on being president at the time he decides to make his run for mayor.

MACRITCHIE

Next question for MacRitchie: If McGrath does run for at-large, will he have to vacate his Ward 5 seat to do so?

And if he does, could the city have two special elections at the same time — one for the at-large council seat and one for the Ward 5 seat?

Or, could McGrath keep the Ward 5 seat until after the special at-large election.

If he runs at-large, can he run with "Candidate For Re-election" under his name even though he is a ward councillor and not an at-large councillor?

If McGrath won the at-large seat, would there legally be enough time left to hold another special election in Ward 5? Or, would there have to be an appointment there?

Now, if Koch is able to stay in the City Council for the rest of this year — either as or not a resident of Quincy — the vacancy early next year would be filled by a vote of the remaining eight councillors.

The Commissions Corner

It's here! Woman to Woman Day, Saturday, April 26th at North Quincy High School.

Coffee and Registration - 8:30-9. The welcome will be given by Carolann Speranzo, Chair; the opening address will be given by Mayor Francis X. McCauley. There will be two seminars to choose from in the morning and two in the afternoon. The morning sessions will be from 9:15 a.m. to 11 a.m. They are:

Career Paths: Alternative Counseling

Ann Binder, President, Ambassador Personnel; Wendy Lee, Regional Manager, CDI Temporaries; Diane Von Roesgen, Career Counsellor, Women's Educational and Industrial Union.

Day Care: The Reality

Susan Caldwell, Forbes Hill Day Care; Theresa Gibbons, Intake Coordinator, South Shore Day Care; Ann Vincola, Corporate Child Care Committee.

Lunch break will be from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. This will give you time to browse through the many exhibits set up for your information and education. At 12:30, our keynote speaker will be Brenda Reed, Former Mayor of Attleboro.

The afternoon seminars, from 1:30 p.m. to 3 p.m., will be:

Financial Planning: The How's and Why's

Lynn Kaplan, President, the Horizon Group Insurance Agency; Lillian Neville, Asst. Treasurer, Quincy Savings Bank; Margaret O. Ranger, CFP, Broker, Kidder, Peabody & Co.

At 3 p.m. the closing remarks will be made by Alleyne Peevich, Governor's Advisory Committee on Women's Issues.

Admission is free and open to the public. Come for part of the day or stay all day.

Who would win?

Iacobucci seems to be sure he has sufficient votes among the remaining councillors to win the nod.

He feels he deserves it as the only non-incumbent council at-large candidate in the last two elections.

But there's all kinds of speculation support lineups:

Iacobucci could probably be sure of Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney and Ward 2's Ted DeCristofaro and probably has other ward councillors committed to him. The question: how strongly committed?

If Condon decided she would like to come back as a councillor at-large, she probably could count on the votes of John Lydon, Thomas Nutley and McGrath — all of whom are close to her politically.

Collins could count on Patricia Toland and probably Joseph LaRaia.

If Collins wasn't interested, Iacobucci might be able to pick up the Toland and LaRaia votes. Iacobucci has been closing the vote gap between him and Toland in the last two elections. If Iacobucci got the appointment, he would be out of her hair in 1987. And he wouldn't be any problem to LaRaia if the latter seeks re-election to the council instead of running for mayor.

But Condon might be able to win Toland and LaRaia over to her and win it.

But another possible and interesting question for MacRitchie to wrestle with: Could McGrath, a ward Councillor, be appointed by his colleagues, as a councillor at-large?

Ah, politics. Never a dull moment.

TWO LONG-TIME writers, Marie D'Olimpio and Esther Cullen have left the Patriot Ledger.

Marie was there almost 19 years, starting out as a Quincy correspondent and moving up to news writer. She covered meetings, wrote the "Looking Backward" and "People" columns and Italian food recipes.

Esther, with the Ledger 13½ years, did the "People In Business" column, real estate and obits.

The Ledger gave the pair a farewell party and gifts. Marie and Esther have no immediate plans.

HOSPITAL IN PLEA FOR MALE VOLUNTEERS

The overworked hospital staff made a plea this week for 100 male volunteers to assist at Quincy City Hospital.

The depleted and overworked staff of nurses, doctors and orderlies had been doing double duty during the critical shortage of workers, caused by the war effort.

Miss Ruth Horrigan, director of volunteers noted that only 35 men remained from an original volunteer force of 150. During the same period, the number of patients had increased.

According to Miss Horrigan, the "male angels of mercy" volunteers would be asked to work one three hour session per week and at least one Saturday and Sunday a month.

40th Annual Men's Prayer Breakfast May 4

The 40th annual Men's Prayer Breakfast to benefit the Protestant Social Service Bureau's Chaplaincy Program will be held Sunday, May 4th at 7 a.m. at Freeport Hall, Dorchester.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Edward Mann, President Emeritus of Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston. His topic will be "What Men Live By." Although associated with these breakfasts since their inception this will mark the first time that Dr. Mann has been the featured speaker.

The guest soloist will be Guy Rotondo, well-known New England entertainer who has been featured at Quincy's Summerfest series the past two summers.

The first breakfast was held at Bethany Congregational Church Nov. 2, 1947. Thereafter the breakfasts were held at the Quincy Armory, Masonic Temple in Quincy, the Ridge Arena in Braintree, Vallee's in Braintree and for the second year now at Freeport Hall, 256 Freeport St. in Dorchester.

GUY ROTONDO

Many changes have taken place since the breakfasts began. Originally they were sponsored by the Quincy Council of Churches, then the South Shore Council of Churches and since 1982 the proceeds have gone to help support the Chaplaincy Program of the Protestant Social Service Bureau.

The speakers have come from all walks of life: sports personalities, clergymen, denomination leaders, businessmen and then Governor Jimmy Carter of Georgia.

Originally a Communion Service preceded the breakfasts, but by 1964 the communion part of the service was dropped and the meeting became a Prayer Breakfast.

James Eddy of the Parkway Community Methodist Church, Milton is the general chairman assisted by Russell Johnson, special arrangement chairman. Several Milton clergymen will participate in the prayer service.

Deadline for tickets is Sunday, April 27. None will be sold at the door.

Two Worship Services At Bethany

There will be two worship services Sunday, at Bethany Congregational Church, Coddingtown and Spear Sts., Quincy Center, at 9 a.m. in the chapel and 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

The sermon is titled "Hearing God's Voice" and is based on the texts John 10:22-30 and Acts 14:8-15.

Scripture readers will be William F. Greene in the chapel and Bruce Byorkman in the sanctuary. During the sanctuary service the choir will sing "The Strife Is O'er" by B. Helder and "Praise To

The Lord" by Distler under the direction of Peter E. Krassinski, organist and choir director.

The worship service is broadcast live over WJDA, 1300kc at 10 a.m.

Sunday School will be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes from pre-school through eighth grade. Nursery care for babies will be provided, as well as a Toddler class for young children. In Sun Spotlight Quint's House Of Flowers A Family Tradition

By DAN CONNELLY

"The beauty of our business is flowers," is an old cliché in the florist business Ira Quint uses to describe an 86-year-old family tradition called Quint's House of Flowers at 761 Southern Artery, Quincy.

This family business was seeded in 1900 when Ira's grandfather trekked through Boston with pushcart and horse-n-wagon, coated with flowering colors.

In 1919, the business grew when dad Samuel opened a greenhouse in Quincy Square.

Today, the business is in full bloom thanks to the hard work and long hours Ira and his wife, Phyllis, have put into it since 1948.

Ira's day begins at 5 a.m. with a trip to the Boston Flower Mart. Later, Phyllis goes to the office to provide the expertise needed to help run the business smoothly. During the early years of marriage, she raised two children, Scott and Donna.

"It wasn't too long ago," said Ira, "that after the long, barren month of January, there would be nothing more exhilarating than having our shop alive with fluttering and dancing flowers."

"Now, thanks to the beauties from Holland and South American fields, we are able to prepare professional color-balance bouquets for any occasion at any time of the year."

"Because flowers are intoxicating in color and fragrance, we have customers who come in every week to select a joyful decoration for the home or just a simple bouquet to delight the one

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Have you ever heard the expression, "Never envy a man unless you are willing to swap identities with him?"

This human trait, envy, is an emotion all of us have experienced at one time or another. It can be an ugly, invisible emotion and very distorting. Yet this emotion can be minimized. It need not be a corroding vice.

Probably if the truth were known, those who we envy have problems more serious than our own. Nobody in the world is without flaws that we would be reluctant to take along with the quality we may admire and envy... Too many times we tend to forget one of the most important truths... that nobody really knows anybody else's problems.

If, when the human mood of envy occurs, would it not be sensible to ponder about the problems of those we envy?

"If all the world's secret troubles were put in one pile," Socrates said, "and each person asked to take an equal share... we would surely prefer to keep those we already have."

Over 800 Volunteers In Cancer Crusade April 29

More than 800 volunteers will visit their neighbors Tuesday (April 29) evening for the annual Cancer Crusade to deliver life saving information and seek funds for research and education programs.

Thomas P. Koch, chairman of the House to House Campaign, is seeking additional volunteers and persons wishing to participate in the program as crusaders may contact Koch at 241 Newbury Ave., North Quincy.

Others directing the House to House Campaign in Quincy include:

Ward 1 - Russell Patten.
Ward 2 - Mrs. Maureen Brillo.

Ward 3 - Paul Schachtel.
Ward 4 - Raymond C. Cataneo.

Ward 5 - John Keenan.
Ward 6 - William S. Phelan.

The American Cancer Society is not government funded. The Society depends upon voluntary contributions to support its cancer control program.

When an American Cancer Society volunteer from your neighborhood knocks on your door next Tuesday, he or she will be distributing potentially lifesaving information about how a healthy diet can lower your risk for developing several kinds of cancer, and offering an opportunity to send for a recipe that incorporates these dietary recommendations.

Koch said that volunteers will distribute a pamphlet entitled "Eating to Live" to each neighbor they visit, outlining the American Cancer Society's recommendations for lowering the risk for many cancers including breast, colon, prostate, and uterine. The Cancer Society recommends cutting down on dietary fat and alcohol consumption, and eating more fiber, vitamin A-rich foods, and vegetables from the cabbage family such as broccoli, cauliflower, and Brussels sprouts.

To give Quincy area residents a way to put these guidelines into practice, House-to-House Crusaders will also let their neighbors know how they can send for a recipe that uses these healthy foods, according to Thomas Koch. The recipe we'll be offering can serve as a starting point for people who want to eat a whole diet that's lower in fat and includes more of the foods that may protect them against cancer, he said.

Koch said that up to 60 percent of all cancers might be prevented through eating a healthy diet, maintaining an ideal weight, not smoking or using chewing tobacco, and avoiding overexposure to the sun.

"I encourage all Quincy area residents to ask Cancer Crusade volunteers about the nutrition and cancer leaflet, and to give generously to the American Cancer Society's programs of research, education, and service to cancer patients," Koch said.

What's A Funeral For, Anyway?

Occasionally we're asked such questions as, "Why do we have funerals?" "What purpose do they serve?"

More than anything else, the funeral is for the living. It's our way of saying goodbye, giving recognition to a life that was important to us.

Saying goodbye is very difficult. However, it's the first important step in accepting the reality of death, and recognizing that life still has meaning for those who remain.

If you would like more information on funerals and their value to the living, please call or write for our informative brochure

Passover-Pesach Holidays For Jewish Faithful

By LESTER H. GLASSER

Passover-Pesach Holidays will be ushered in by the Jewish people of Quincy Wednesday evening, April 23 and Thursday evening, April 24 at Congregation Adas Shalom, 435 Adams St. Rabbi Allan Press at the services at Congregation Adas Shalom, Co-Presidents Leo Lofchie and Abe Greenspan announce there will be a Family Seder on the second night following the early evening services.

Sabbath services will be held Saturday morning, April 26 at 9:30. Passover services on the concluding days will be held Wednesday morning, April 30 and Thursday morning, May 1 at 9. Memorial prayers will be recited during the Thursday morning services. All are welcome. Rabbi Press will conduct all the holiday services.

There will also be Passover services at Temple Beth El, Hancock St., conducted by Rabbi David Jacobs and Cantor Morris Semigran Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Most members of Temple Beth El have the first Seder in their own home. On the second night they attend Seder at a friend's home or in another synagogue. Closing day services are held April 30 and May 1. Yizkor memorial prayers are held on May 1.

George Golstein, president invites all in the area to the Sabbath morning services.

Rabbi Jacob Mann will conduct all the services at the Beth Israel Synagogue, 31 Grafton St., Quincy Point. Passover services will be held Wednesday and Thursday evenings. After services, members return to their homes for the Seder.

Jack Klaver, president announces that services will be held every morning during the holiday week. Services on the concluding days will be held April 30 and May 1. Yizkor (memorial prayers) will be recited May 1.

Passover comes in the early spring and lasts for eight days. The Orthodox and Conservative Jews observe eight days, Reform Jews celebrate seven days, in the same manner the Jews in Israel celebrate Passover.

Great preparations are made in almost every home. Every home receives a thorough cleaning from the basement to the attic. It has been a custom to buy new clothes for the holidays.

The Festival of Passover is marked in Jewish homes by the observance of a family home service or Seder. The text of this service is included in a book called the Hag-adah which is recited in both English and Hebrew. The Seder is the joyful family dinner and worship service held in Jewish homes on the first two nights of the Holiday.

It is a time when all members of the family gather together. Most of the time some guests are invited for this Festival of Freedom. In many synagogues a community Seder is conducted on one of the first two holiday nights. Seder means "order."

Seder consists of a number of ceremonies and symbols. The Haggadah which tells the story (haggadah means telling) is an ancient text.

The whole service is based upon one single Biblical injunction in connection with the observance of Passover: "And thou shalt tell thy son on that day saying it is because of that which the Lord did for me when I came forth out of Egypt."

The Seder service is marked with special concern for children. A striking contrast is offered between the ceremonies of this service of Passover Eve and the conduct of the usual meal, so that the child is sure to ask for an explanation.

It is an opportunity to tell the story of Israel's deliverance and to impress the lesson of faith in God. The children question and the father answers. In order to maintain the interest of young children and to excite their imagination, the devotional Seder service is mingled with bursts of good humor, serious observations of Jewish life and comments in a lighter vein, lofty poetry and playful ditties.

At the beginning of the Seder, everyone sits down to a beautifully set table, bedecked with flowers and candles and at the head of which is a special platter. On the platter in specified order are:

Three Matzos, in memory of the unleavened bread which the Jews ate when they were freed from Egypt. Bitter Herbs, for the bitterness of slavery. The Shank of a Lamb, as a reminder of the Paschal lamb. A roasted egg, symbolic of the free will festival offering which accompanied the sacrifice of the Paschal lamb in the Temple.

Haroseth, a food made of apples, nuts, cinnamon and wine, mixed together to look like the mortar which the Hebrew slaves used in their servitude. Parsley or Watercress, suggestive of the ancient customary hors d'oeuvres. It is now used as a token of gratitude to God for the products of the earth. A cup of wine is set at the place-setting of each celebrant. As in all Jewish ceremonies of rejoicing, wine is used as a token of festivity.

If desired unfermented raisin wine may be substituted. Each participant in the service is expected to partake of four cups of wine. This number was selected as symbolic of the four divine promises of redemption made to Israel in Exodus 6:6-7. An empty wine cup in the center of the table. The cup is filled as part of the Seder ceremony.

It is known as Elijah's cup. It symbolizes the hope of man for the quick coming of God's kingdom upon earth. Early in the Seder service one of the three matzos on the ceremonial platter is divided in half. The half which is put away to be eaten at the close of the meal is called Aphikomom which is derived from the Greek, meaning after meal or dessert. The Aphikomom, hidden early in the Seder, is left to the end of the meal in order that the children may be kept alert during the entire service. After the meal is concluded the children surrender the aphikomom to the master of the house who is forced to redeem it by some gift.

The leader of the Seder takes the first cup of wine in his hand and recites the following benediction: "Blessed art Thou, O Lord our God, King of the Universe, Creator of the fruit of the vine. Blessed art Thou O Lord our God, King of the Universe who hast chosen us among all peoples and sanctified us with Thy commandments."

"In love hast Thou given us, O Lord our God, solemn days of joy and festive seasons of gladness, even this day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, a holy convocation unto us, a memorial of the departure from Egypt."

"Thou hast chosen us for Thy service and hast made us sharers in the blessings of Thy holy festivals. Blessed art Thou O Lord who sanctifiest Israel and the festive seasons. Blessed art Thou O Lord our God, who has preserved us and sustained us and brought us to this season."

All celebrants drink their first cup of wine and then wash their hands. Some parsley, lettuce or watercress is distributed to all present who dip it in salt water or in vinegar and before partaking of it, say in unison - Blessed art Thou O Lord our God, King of the Universe, Creator of the fruit of the earth.

After the platter is set

Best Wishes to All... for a Happy Passover down, the wine is poured again into the cups or glasses and the youngest among the celebrants addresses the following Four Questions to the leader:

"Why is this night different from all other nights? On all other nights, we eat either leavened or unleavened bread. Why, on this night do we eat only unleavened bread? On all other nights, we eat all kinds of herbs. Why on this night, do we eat especially bitter herbs? On all other nights, we do not dip herbs in any condiment. Why on this night do we dip them in salt water and haroseth? On all other nights, we may sit at the table either erect or leaning; on this night we recline."

The leader replies to the one who asked the questions: "Why do we eat only Matzah tonight? When Pharaoh let our forefathers go from Egypt they were forced to flee in great haste. They had no time to bake their bread, they could not wait for the yeast to rise. So the sun beating down on the dough as they carried it along baked it into a flat unleavened bread called matzah."

"Why do we eat bitter herbs tonight? Because our fathers were slaves in Egypt and their lives were made bitter."

"Why do we dip the herbs twice tonight? We dip the parsley into salt water because it reminds us of the green that comes to life in the springtime. We dip the bitter herbs into the sweet haroseth as a sign of hope; our fathers were able to withstand the bitterness of slavery, because it was sweetened by the hope of freedom."

"Why do we recline at the table? Because reclining at the table was a sign of a free man in olden times; and since our fathers were freed on this night we recline at the table."

"The leader, joined by the celebrants, answers "We celebrate tonight because we are Pharaoh's bondmen in Egypt and the Lord our God delivered us with a mighty hand. Had not the Holy One redeemed our fathers from Egypt we our children and our children's children would have remained slaves. Therefore even if we were all wise men, it would still be our duty from year to year to tell the story of the deliverance from Egypt."

"In truth the more we dwell upon the story of the Exodus, the deeper will be our understanding of what freedom means, and the stronger our determination to win it for ourselves and for others."

John Purland
In Germany

Air Force Airman 1st Class John R. Purland, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Purland of 112 East Elm Ave., Wollaston, has arrived for duty with the 609th Tactical Control Squadron, West Germany.

Purland, a wideband communications specialist, is a 1983 graduate of North Quincy High School.

Thus, the story of the Exodus is told and retold from generation to generation; thus fathers would ever tell it to their children, that they in turn might tell it to their children.

Children are not all alike. There are some who are very curious and ask lots of questions. There are others who are just as curious but who may be shy. In all, the rabbis said there are four kinds of children, each one quite different from the rest; each needs to be told the story of the Exodus in a different way.

The first kind of child is the wise child. He loves Passover. He is eager to celebrate the holiday and he asks his father, "What are the decrees, the statutes and the laws which the Lord our God has commanded concerning Pesah? He should be told all that there is to be told about the beautiful customs and observances of the festival."

Another child is the irreverent child. He is scornful.

He does not feel as though he is part of the whole celebration. He asks his father, "What does this service mean to you? He says "to you" as though he were an outsider and nothing to do with it. He should be scolded and told. The third child is simple. He is naive and innocent and very shy. He says "What is this all about? He should be told, "the Lord brought us forth from Egypt, out of the house of bondage."

The fourth kind of child is the one who does not even realize that something unusual is going on. Therefore you must simply tell him as the Torah puts it, "This is because of what the Lord did for me when I went forth from Egypt."

The leader then continues to read from the Haggadah, telling about the ten plagues which the Holy One, blessed be He, visited upon the Egyptians in Egypt. They were Blood, Frogs, Lice, Beasts, Blight, Boils, Hail, Locusts, Darkness and Slaying of the First Born. After completing the first part of the Haggadah-Dinner is served.

At the conclusion of the meal, the children are given an opportunity to find the Aphikomom. The leader redeems it and distributes pieces of it to all present. After partaking of the Aphikomom, it is customary to eat nothing else. The Leader then leads all in the saying of grace. The cups of wine are filled for the third time and all ready in unison-"Blessed are Thou, O Lord our God, King of the Universe, Cretor of the fruit of the vine.

We all drink the third cup of wine. The door is opened and the fourth and last cup of wine is filled. An additional cup, the Cup of Elijah the Prophet is set on the table. The company rises as if to greet him. Elijah in Jewish tradition is the long expected messenger of the final redemption of mankind from all oppression. Taking the cup in his hand, the leader recites the following benediction:

"The festive service is completed. With songs of praise, we have lifted up the cup symbolizing the divine promises of salvation, and have called upon the name of God. As we offer the benediction over the fourth cup, let us again lift our souls to God in faith and hope. May he who broke Pharaoh's yoke, forever shatter all fetters of oppression and hasten the day when swords shall, at last, be broken and wars ended. Soon may He cause the glad tidings of redemption to be heard in all lands, so that mankind - freed from violence and from wrong, and united in an eternal covenant of brotherhood - may celebrate the universal Passover in the name of our God of Freedom."

The following was taken from a poem found in the magazine of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods:

"Jews value the meaning of freedom and recognize that we can never be free unless we continue to relieve the plight of others. Let us, therefore resolve to intensify our effort to alleviate the suppression of Jews in the Soviet Union, in the Arab countries, in South America and throughout the world."

"Let us resolve to join in the battle to eradicate the plight of the Ethiopian Jews. Let us resolve to participate in furthering the goals, purposes and ideals of Brotherhood."

Then we all read in unison. "May God cause the light of His countenance to shine upon all men, and dispel the darkness of ignorance and of prejudice. May He be gracious unto us. Amen. May God lift up His countenance upon our country and render it a true home of liberty and a bulwark of justice. And may he grant peace unto us and unto all mankind. Amen. Blessed art Thou, O Lord our God, King of the Universe, Creator of the fruit of the vine. Amen."

The fourth and last cup of wine is drunk. Everyone sings the closing hymn. "God of might, God of right" and other Passover songs.

Squantum Pastor Deplores U.S. Bombing In Libya

"No Christian can be happy that helpless people—babies or children, women or men—are being crushed or burned or blasted into bits by anybody's bombs," said church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin in a sermon entitled "Christians and War" which he preached at both morning services of the First Church of Squantum Sunday.

Although he recognized the great problem that the United States government faces in dealing with foreign terrorists, Dr. Langevin still deplored the use of violence in the American bombing of Libya last week. In his sermon, Dr. Langevin discussed some of the possible stances that Christians of differing political opinions might take on this matter of the bombing and of war in general.

The scripture for the morning was Luke 9:51-58 in which, after he has been rejected by the Samaritans, two of Jesus' disciples suggest an extreme way of dealing with such enemies. The sermon text was this: "And when his disciples James and John saw it, they said, 'Lord, do you want us to bid fire come down from heaven and consume them?' But he turned and rebuked them saying, 'You do not know what manner of spirit you are of; for the Son of Man came not to destroy men's lives but to save them.'"

For the offertory anthem, the Chancel Choir sang an Easter hymn, "Alleluia!" Mary Ruth Scott directed.

The hymns sung by the congregation during the service were "Not Alone for Mighty Empire," "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind" and "We Need Thee Every Hour."

Isabelle and Jennie Preston were the greeters at the second service. The ushers at the first service were Chris Dixie and Amy Hayhow. The ushers at the second service were Tore Wallin and Stewart Scott. The Fellowship Hour after the second service was hosted by Lorraine Josselyn and May Lewis.

This Sunday there will be two worship services again: the guitar service at 8:30 a.m. and the traditional service at 10:30 a.m. Sunday School and nursery are provided at the 10:30 service.

NATURAL GAS THE MODERN ALTERNATIVE

Take a big load off laundry costs with a new gas dryer.

- Nothing dries clothes more economically than a natural gas dryer. Clean, efficient gas dries more loads than electric dryers do for the same cost.
- Nothing dries clothes faster than a natural gas dryer. It moves more warm air through the drying drum.
- A reliable gas dryer maintains its efficiency year after year. Your dryer lasts longer.

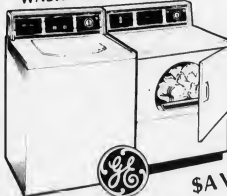

Burning calories before you eat them? Take control with a gas range.

- Professional chefs demand natural gas ranges for the precise temperature control they need.
- Only a clean, gas flame adjusts instantly from high heat to low, low to high and everything in between.
- A gas range's flexible flame hugs every size pot and pan perfectly, for total heat distribution.
- With gas, there's no warm-up or cool-down delay. You start cooking instantly, and have control to stop boiling over, burning and spattering.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Home freezer makes life easier

TODAY'S BUSY FAMILY can enjoy time and money-saving advantages by owning a home freezer. This dependable appliance enables shoppers to buy and store in bulk when meats and fresh produce are offered at special sale prices. Taking advantage of food sales and storing increased amounts of food in the home can reduce the number of shopping trips made to the grocery store, say home economists. But, even more important, it can help you feed your family nutritious, fresh-flavored foods all year long. When it comes to buying meats, say the home economists, be sure that what you purchase is nearly all meat — not fat, bones and gristle that will only go to waste. Store it carefully — the secret to good freezing is using containers and wrappings that are especially designed for freezing.

Ventilating a bathroom that's all wet

How does your bathroom look after you step out of the shower? Is there a wet film on the mirror? Is there a hazy fog in the air? If these are the signs that greet you after every shower, your bathroom isn't properly ventilated.

The bathroom is one of the home's major sources of moisture, the most damaging form of indoor air pollution. During showering, you raise the relative humidity to nearly 99 percent, and this air remains in the bathroom nearly half an hour after you have opened the door.

Moisture attracts dirt on the bathroom walls and ceiling, and leads to the growth of germs, mold and mildew. It shortens the life of paint, tile adhesives and wallpaper. It rusts metal fixtures and warps doors. It can creep into the structure of the house, rotting wall studs and drywall.

Moisture can also enter the attic, damaging joists and rafters. It will also matt down attic or wall insulation, decreasing its effectiveness.

While you may think you can eliminate that moisture simply by opening the door after showering, you are really only allowing that water-laden air to escape into the rest of the home, with the potential for causing more damage.

According to Jerry Santowski, Senior Vice President of Nautilus, the most effective way to solve this annoying moisture problem is to install and properly use a bathroom exhaust fan.

"Bathroom exhaust fans capture the moisture at the source, before it can cause discomfort and damage," says Santowski.

"They are easy to install, too. Most can be ducted horizontally through the wall or vertically through the attic to the outside. All bath fans must be vented to the outside, not into the attic where the moisture can cause damage."

Many styles of bathroom exhaust fans are available:

FOR EXTRA COMFORT AND CONVENIENCE, the N655 bathroom exhaust fan from Nautilus provides heat, light and ventilation in one unit. Easily installed by do-it-yourselfers, this combination unit has a 2-motor system for quiet, dependable performance.

- Standard Exhaust Fans — These units effectively exhaust moisture and odors to the outside. Ceiling-mount and wall-mount models are available.

- Fan/Heater Combinations — They provide heat as well as exhausting moisture and odors to the outside. Most are available for ceiling mounting.

- Fan/Light Combinations — These ceiling-mounted units provide lighting as well as exhausting moisture and odors to the outside.

- Heater/Fan/Light Combination — These deluxe models provide the three most desirable functions in one unit. They are mounted on the ceiling.

The functions on these combination units can be used separately or together, and are controlled by a wall switch. Timers are also available so you can pre-set the length of time the exhaust fan should operate.

Bath fans provide different capacities, measured in Cubic Feet per Minute (CFM). To calculate the CFM rating for the exhaust fan needed to ventilate your bathroom, multiply the length and width of the bathroom by 1.1 (assuming an 8-foot ceiling). For an 8 x 10 bathroom, the calculation would be: $8 \times 10 \times 1.1 = 88$.

To properly ventilate this bathroom, you should select a bathroom exhaust fan with a rating of at least 88 CFM.

For more information about bathroom ventilation, write Nautilus, Dept. BF, 926 W. State St., P.O. Box 159, Hartford, WI 53027.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

This summer, utilize solar screens to keep cool

There's a quick and easy way to help keep down your cooling bills this summer. The solution is SunScreen® solar screens.

When used in place of regular insect screens, these unique fiberglass screens keep up to 70 percent of the sun's heat and glare from hitting your windows and entering your home. This means less work for your air conditioner and lower cooling costs.

The concept of these screens is relatively simple. They have a unique and patented, ribbed-weave construction (U.S. patent number 4,002,188) when compared to the more uniform and open mesh of regular insect screens.

This mesh is just enough to stop the sun's heat, while still allowing enough light to come in. It's a lot like sitting under a shade tree on a hot summer day.

The SunScreen works exactly like the tree's leaves, except that with the screens in a fixed position on the outside of your windows you are protected all day long, regardless of the sun's angle.

SunScreen solar screens are not really that new. They were selected by energy experts for use on The Energy Saving House at both the 1982 and the 1984 World's Fairs.

Solar screens have been popular for years in such hot climates as Arizona, southern California and Texas. In fact, state and local building ordinances in some of these states are now requiring some type of shading on the west, east and south-facing windows of all new home construction. SunScreen solar screens are also recommended and endorsed by many utility companies in the south and west.

There are lots of additional benefits to having SunScreen solar screens, too — for example, improved daytime privacy. Homeowners report they can leave shades or drapes open during the day and still enjoy their privacy. They can see out but outsiders can't easily see in.

KEEPING the sun's hot rays away from your windows and glass doors, SunScreens® work like a shade tree.

Since most of the sun's ultraviolet rays are stopped, fading of carpets, drapes and furnishings is also greatly reduced when SunScreen solar screens are installed.

Unlike films or other types of sun control products, solar screens work with the windows open or closed, a nice feature during those times of the year when you want windows open for ventilation. Gentle breezes enter through the open mesh.

Plus, SunScreen solar screens make interiors more comfortable by reducing glare from water, pavement, adjacent buildings or other shiny objects. The SunScreen fabric comes in a choice of several colors to blend with any type of building exterior.

If your home has storm windows, you may have already discovered that they do very little to protect you from the summer heat. Tests have shown that solar screens will improve the thermal performance of storm windows in winter as well as offering summertime shading.

Adding SunScreen solar screens to your existing storm windows can make windows more efficient year-round. Also, the payback period will be considerably less for storm windows equipped with solar screens instead of regular insect screens.

One important thing to remember: To be really effective, solar screens should cover the entire window. If you have half-screens, you will need a new frame or an installation method that will allow you to cover both the top and bottom windows.

Many homeowners prefer to have SunScreen solar screens installed by a local dealer/installer. To find one in your area look in the telephone book under "Screens — Door and Window" or "Storm Windows and Doors."

Chances are your local screen shop is already familiar with SunScreen solar screens. If you have full screens, ask them about reusing your existing screen frames.

The SunScreen solar screen material is also available at many leading hardware and home centers, and replacing the screens is not a difficult do-it-yourself task. Some stores now also offer the materials needed to make new screen frames, if you have half-screens or no screens at all.

SunScreen solar screens work great over windows that don't open, too, such as large picture windows, skylights or even greenhouse areas.

The modest cost of SunScreen solar screens might fit your budget better than other window treatments available, and SunScreens can offer you year-round comfort and energy savings.

First Ladies Upset Brockton

Coach Shirley Laing doesn't quite know what to expect from her Quincy girls' tennis team as she has 11 girls who have never played tennis before.

The veteran coach has four returnees from last year's squad and has been juggling the girls around trying to find the best combinations.

The First Ladies, who don't play again until next Monday when they go to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, upset Brockton, 3-2, last week for their first win. They are 1-1 in the Suburban League (lost to Brookline) and 1-2 overall (lost to Weymouth South in a non-league match). They will host Quincy next Wednesday at 3:30.

"We are going to work out during vacation this week and I hope I will have our best combinations figured out by our next match," said Laing. "These girls are very determined but until they get some experience, I don't know what to expect."

Leading the team is Beth Doherty, a four-year veteran and the only really seasoned player.

Kim Litterio and Karen Zupkofska teamed up in doubles last spring but will be playing singles this year.

The only other returnee is Wendy Stirling, a sophomore who showed a lot of potential last year as a freshman.

The newcomers, including nine freshmen, are Maura Garrity, Ruth Ann Buttar, Shelly Hanson, Maureen Cloonan, Juli Li, Mary Vo, Amy Hutchinson, Carolyn Busby, Sarah Joyce, Tricia Stewart and Sandy Wosokki.

In the win over Brockton Doherty, Litterio and Zupkofska swept the singles to clinch the win, despite Quincy losing both doubles matches.

Vo and Garrity lost in three sets and Busby and Stewart were defeated in straight sets.

-TOM SULLIVAN

Pitching Problem For First Ladies

Last season the Quincy girls' softball team had one of the best pitchers in the area, Kathy Thornton, who led the First Ladies to a 12-6 regular season record and three wins in the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

This spring Coach Barbara Webster has only one returning varsity player and no experienced pitchers and the pitching has been a big headache in every game. The problems continued Monday when the Quincy girls lost to Everett, 9-3, lowering their record to 1-4.

The First Ladies will play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Monday at 3:30 and will host North Quincy Wednesday at 3:30 at Faxon Field.

Last week Quincy broke loose and rolled by Revere, 23-11, for its only win as Kristen Curtin continued her fine hitting with a three-run homer and Lisa Zambardo drove in three runs with two singles. Nancy Svizzero was the winning pitcher.

In their previous game the First Ladies were bombed by Malden, 24-1, with Curtin having a single and a stolen base.

Earlier the Quincy girls lost to Brookline, as Curtin had two hits and Svizzero belted a two-run homer. Quincy had lost its opening game to Weymouth South, 9-1.

North Quincy Girls Bounce Back For 7-4 Win Over Malden

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy girls' softball team, with three freshmen in the starting lineup, got off to a slow start but, following two straight losses, came back Monday to defeat Malden, 7-4, for its first win. Mary Pratt's Raiderettes were hampered by hitting problems which carried over from pre-season scrimmages as they lost their opener to Peabody, 7-2, and followed up with a 4-1 loss to Everett.

The North girls played Revere yesterday (Wednesday), will host Waltham Monday at 3:30 at Artery Field in their Suburban League opener and will play Quincy next Wednesday at 3:30 at Faxon Field.

Pratt, in her third year as coach, was greeted by 48 candidates, 28 of whom were freshmen. Mary has Kevin Jago back as junior varsity coach, while Kathy Bertrand has taken over as freshman coach.

The varsity is led by returning shortstop Noreen Connolly, who also pitches. Other returning seniors are Jill Quinn and Carolyn O'Reilly.

"Carolyn, who played steady ball in her sophomore year, returns after foregoing playing last year. Her all-around aggressive play should be a big help to us," Pratt said.

Returning juniors make up the heart of the varsity squad. All have played since ninth grade, including Ann Anderlionis, who has been on the varsity since her freshman year. The number one pitcher, she is one of the Raiderettes' key performers.

Last year she was bothered by wildness, which caused her to lose her effectiveness. A constantly good hitter, she will play outfield when not pitching.

Other juniors are Collen Hannon, a steady second baseman; Nancy Leonard, the third baseman; Ann McGuiggan, who has taken over the catching chores; Tricia Grant and Lisa Mitton, outfielders with experience.

Terri Smith and Robyn Glennon are transfers from Minnesota and California respectively and are playing in the outfield.

Jackie Fennessey will catch for the jayves and be called up to the varsity if the need arises.

The jayvee squad is led by Eileen Campbell, a hard-hitting pitcher, and Tara O'Brien, a fine shortstop.

Christine Kalantzis at third base and Tina Fasano in the outfield bring to the squad a great deal of experience. Other sophomores are Tracy Panuscnka, Susan Anderson, Angel LaCorte, Holly Campbell and Kristie Shaf-ton.

Three outstanding freshmen have made the varsity. Kristin Drake, a good hitting pitcher-outfielder; Sarah Harrington and Karen Reister, who are battling for the first base position, the spot held by McGuiggan last year. Sarah is a hard-hitting left-hander who looks like a natural, but she is being challenged by Karen, who also swings a powerful bat.

Other freshmen include Erin Bonnerier, Valerie Brown, Diane Clougherty, Michelle Devin, Mary Ferrara, Randi Gollub, Kristen Golden, Terri Goodwin, Dawn Halpin, Heather Hartford, Karen Hendsbee, Julie Higgins, Jennifer Koch, Shelly Lane, Michelle Lynch, Lynn Mahoney, Stephanie Majenski, Susan Malloy, Maureen McNeil, Maura McCarthy and Melissa McGee.

Freshman Drake pitched in the opener against Peabody and scattered nine hits over the first four innings. Anderlionis pitched one-hit ball over the last two innings. She singled in two runs to give the Raiderettes a 2-0 lead but that was the end of their offense.

At Everett Anderlionis returned to the form that she displayed as a freshman as she held Everett to three hits but first inning jitters enabled Everett to score three runs and it was never headed.

North had six hits and its lone run came in the second inning when Harrington hit a long triple and Reister singled her home. Reister had three hits.

Anderlionis walked only two and fielded her position well handling eight balls flawlessly. Leonard had the play of the game when she speared a hard-hit ball going to her left and threw the runner out.

Cahill's Goal Gives Senior All Stars 5-4 Win

Tom Cahill's goal with one minute left in the game gave the Senior League all-stars a 5-4 victory over the Executive League stars in the annual Dick Wilson memorial scholarship hockey game at the Youth Arena.

Cahill also had an earlier goal, Tom Hickey had two and Jim Moore one. Fred Palmer had two assists and Paul Cooney, Bill Joyce and Tom Geary one each.

Frankie Guest scored twice for the Executive stars and Kevin Jago and Fred Ahearn once each. Chip Linscott and Stan Lisowski had two assists apiece and Bill Shea and Rich Gibbs one each.

Koch Baseball, Softball Registration Set

The Koch Club Boys Baseball and Girls Softball League of the North Quincy, Montclair and Broad Meadows districts will conduct registrations for the 36th season next week at the three districts.

The Montclair district will hold registrations Monday and Wednesday, April 28-30, at the Bishop Playground on Holbrook Road opposite the Montclair School with boys, 5 to 11 years and girls, 7 to 13 invited to register.

Broad Meadows district will conduct its registrations on Thursday, May 1 at 6 p.m. at the Broadmeadows Middle School, 50 Calvin Road, Adams Shore. Boys, 5 to 11 years and girls, 7 to 13 years are welcome to join and participate. Registrations will continue on Tuesday, May 6 and Thursday, May 8 when the league is in its opening week.

Beechwood Middle And Senior Basketball Champs

Beechwood Knoll was crowned champion in two divisions of the Quincy Recreation Department all-city basketball tourney.

Beechwood almost made an unprecedented sweep of all tournament honors when it lost in the finals of the Elementary Hoop Jamboree in games played last week.

In capturing the Senior High championship, Beechwood exchanged leads with past champion Squantum over the last two minutes of the game and captured a 58-57 win before a large crowd at the North Quincy High School gym.

Beechwood relied on a total team effort with four players in double figures and another with eight points. Jackie Green had 13 and Ed Herman 12, with eight coming in the fourth quarter. Steve Morad had 12 and Joe Mulvey 11. Joe Nelson had eight and Danny McDonald two to round out the scoring. Jim Mulvey played excellent defense despite early foul trouble.

Senior Coach Rick Radzik relied on a variety of defenses in the closely contested contest. The score was 27-26 at the half and Squantum held a 40-38 lead at the three quarter mark.

Squantum Coach John Reney was in his first championship matchup and was hoping to have Squantum defend its championship. Joe Callanan led all scorers with 23 points with clutch hoops in the fourth quarter, which accounted for eight of his team's points. ALA Spring Car Maintenance Tips Spring is here and, coupled with lower gas prices, that's good news for motorists.

However, while spring beckons us to again enjoy the highways and byways, the ALA Auto & Travel Club reminds us that the season does carry some car maintenance responsibilities.

The ALA says it's now time to have many important automotive parts and functions checked and recommends the following spring car maintenance tips:

Front End - A front end alignment may be necessary soon, "especially if your car has been driven on roads loaded with frost heaves and potholes." Have the idler arm, tie rod ends and ball joints checked.

Shock Absorbers - The start of the spring driving season is a good time to have your shocks r-placed if they're worn. Your shock absorbers are bad, not only will the car's ride be uncomfortable, but you'll be flirting with danger. Worn shocks could lead to undependable braking, skidding, swerving, poor steering and excessive, uneven tire wear. Don't gamble; have your shocks checked.

Tune-up - Liff notes that spring is often a recommended time for a tune-up, but first check your owner's manual to see whether it's advised for your mileage. A good tune-up will provide a smoother ride, dependable starting and save gas, which, in turn, means saving money. While the car is being tuned, have the oil, radiator, hoses, battery, fuel pump, drive belts and engine compression checked, too.

Brakes - Brakes should be checked every 10,000 miles. If you've gone all winter without having them checked, it's advisable to have them checked now, particularly if you drive an older car. Winter driving can be rough on brakes, as well as other vital parts of your car.

Muffler and exhaust pipes - These can become badly corroded by salt and chemicals used to treat snow-covered highways, Liff notes.

"Have your auto exhaust system checked carefully and replace any corroded or defective parts. Remember, exhaust fumes are odorless, colorless and poisonous. Again, don't gamble by driving with faulty equipment."

Springs - Driving in the spring often includes long distance jaunts to enjoy the return of mild weather. This driving can sometimes put a burden on auto springs because of more passengers, extra baggage and additional gear, such as tents, Liff notes. If this added weight makes your car ride low, he suggests getting new springs to improve the overall quality of your auto's ride and handling characteristics. However, because replacing leaf springs is often expensive, consider having "helper springs" installed. They are less costly and they help improve your car ride by taking the strain off the auto's leaf springs.

Tires - When you're having your snow tires removed (they're not recommended for warm weather use), have all your tires checked for tread wear and cuts. Replace any that are too worn or damaged. Have your tires rotated according to the manufacturer's specifications, and make sure that the spare tire is in good condition. When you get new tires, make sure that you don't mix different types of tires, particularly on the same axle. If you get radials, make sure that they are all radials. Also, it's wise to have your wheels balanced when you're having your tires mounted. Balancing makes for a smoother ride and helps prolong the life of your tires.

Exterior Care - To prevent body rot, thoroughly wash away any sand or dirt accumulated under your car, particularly up in the wheel wells, the ALA official advises. If your car has body corrosion from salt and chemicals, sand away any rust build-up on the outer body of your car. Then, apply a protective primer followed by touch-up paint.

Emergency Equipment - Most of your winter driving

CHECK THE CONDITION OF ENGINE BELTS by turning them over. If the car is four years old, or if the belts are cracked, frayed or brittle, they should be replaced immediately. Inspection, now, of the fan-water pump, alternator and power steering drives will help avoid breakdown and starting problems.

gear can probably be put away, including the shovel, bags of sand, scraper, de-icer, etc. However, still carry a first aid kit, a good flashlight (check the batteries), flares, jumper cables, the proper jack for your car and loose change for emergency phone calls.

Windshield Wipers - If you installed special winter blades to keep the snow and ice off your windshield, now is the time to replace them with summer blades. Make sure that they are in good condition because bad blades could impair visibility in a storm when you need to see clearly to drive safely.

The Wollaston Glee Club will present its Spring Concert Sunday, April 27, at 3:30 p.m. in the sanctuary of the Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

The glee club will be directed by Edward A. Munro, and accompanied by Marion

E. Carpenter, the club's conductor and accompanist, respectively.

The program will include familiar songs including "Oklahoma," "Begin The Beguine," "You'll Never Walk Alone," "The Whiffenpoof Song," a spiritual - "The Battle of Jericho," a fun song "A Musical Trust." It will close with a tribute to the Statue of Liberty - "Give Me Your Tired, Your Poor."

The Glee Club will be assisted by Donald Wilkinson, a bass-baritone who has won much acclaim.

Tickets will be available at the door for $2.50 ($1.50 for students and senior citizens).

St. Joseph Musical This Weekend

The curtain will go up this weekend on three performances of St. Joseph's Parish Community annual musical, "Stars, Stripes and Spangles - An All-American Musical."

Stage of the Atlantic Middle School will take on a Hollywood, Broadway and Las Vegas look with lots of music, dancing and comedy, presented against a background of spectacular scenic and special effects, colorful costumes and unique choreography.

A matinee will be Saturday, April 26 at 1 p.m. Saturday and Sunday evening performances are at 8 p.m.

The audience will enjoy an on-stage football game set to music, the Mardi Gras will come to life with a burst of glory and the cast will roll back the clock to the San Francisco of 1906 and the big earthquake.

Also staged will be a scene where children of the Quincy Point parish will arrive on a Mississippi Showboat with their musical look of "Huckleberry Finn," to be followed with bits of Broadway, Las Vegas, the concert world.

The finale will salute Macy's Thanksgiving-Christmas Parade with a cast of over 100 participating.

This year's show is again being staged and directed by Ed Rooney with Beverly Heath-Brown, a former member of the New York City Radio City Music Hall Rockettes, as choreographer. Frank Brillo with Ann-Marie McBride are producing the show.

Tickets may be purchased at the auditorium box office prior to each performance.

'The Tempest' At ENC

The Communication Arts Department of Eastern Nazarene College will present Shakespeare's comedy, "The Tempest," as the school's annual spring production, tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m.

The poet's work will be performed from a different angle to appeal to both the Shakespeare loyalist and the science fiction fan.

The production opened last week.

Shakespeare centered his plot around a shipwreck on an uncharted island to capitalize on his audience's fascination with the "new frontier," sea travel.

Co-directors Dr. Ronda Winderl, chairperson of the Communication Arts Department, and James Byrne, a regional artist who has directed and performed in many of ENC's past shows, say the production will transport the setting to an unknown planet.

The voyagers, instead of traveling on an ocean of water, will be traveling through the "ocean" of space, they say.

The set design for the fantasy play was inspired by the designs of Henri Rousseau, and contrasts with the technological sterility of the invaders from earth.

Professor Michael Ballard designed and organized the construction of an imaginatively shaped and textured set representing the planet's numerous surprising environments.

The costumes will appear as futuristic Elizabethan space suits clearly influenced by Renaissance style.

The actors were cast for their ability to represent the characters' inner traits rather than the gender or physical attributes thus illustrating Shakespeare's universal qualities and forecasting the move towards androgyny.

The company of actors is made up of college, alumni, and community residents.

Eastern Nazarene College has gained recognition on the South Shore for its dramatic performances, "Hedder on the Roof," "Macbeth," "Peter Pan," "The Odyssey," and most recently, "The Sound of Music" are a few examples of the theatre presented at ENC.

The performance of "The Tempest" will begin at 7 p.m. in the O'Connell Auditorium of the Cove Fine Arts Building.

For more information and/or tickets, call 773-6350, ext. 262 or 269.

Stadium Lighting Committee Starts $100,000 Fund Drive

The Veterans Stadium Lighting Committee, which recently received approval from the School Committee to raise funds for permanent lights at Veterans Stadium, has started its fund-raising activities.

The committee hopes to raise $100,000 by June 15 and to have the lights ready for the 1986 Quincy and North Quincy football seasons.

Letters of introduction and solicitation have been mailed to Quincy corporations and businesses and followup calls and contacts are being made this week.

An auction including a new car has been tentatively planned for Sunday, June 22.

Further information can be obtained by writing Youth of Quincy, P.O. Box 7228, Quincy 02269-7228.

If the lights are ready for the 1986 season, there will be a gala opening night, a demonstration of Quincy's pride and a dedication of the stadium.

The committee is made up of President Bob Meenan, Treasurer Jerry Perleuo, Secretary Bill Dolan, Bob Derbes, Bob Gohl, Dan McPhee,

EXTENDING INVESTMENT

QUESTION: Now that my wife and I have owned our home for five years, we can see what an excellent investment it was. We are now looking for a new investment. How does investing in additional property look in today's environment?

ANSWER: The value of property keeps pace with the economy, and for many years the trend has been up... up, up. Historically, real estate values have always increased faster than the cost of living during inflation and decreased slower in recessions. It's an ideal inflation hedge. Judicious investment in income property offers safety, stability, and opportunity for income, profit and tax savings.

Quint's House Of Flowers A Family Tradition

they love with the magic of flowers.

"The popularity of Quint's is year-round and always will be because we have established through those years a trademark of superior quality," Ira said.

Their son, Scott, today is part of the business. Daughter Donna is married, has two children, and lives in Quincy.

Her office work doesn't deter Phyllis from creating special occasion fruit baskets. The shop also sells potted plants and balloon bouquets for special events.

Quint's is a member of FTD, an association of florists, which enables them to ship flowers all over the world.

"We use local grown flowers when they are available because they are the best," said Ira.

Mother's Day is the busiest holiday of the year. Valentine's Day comes in a close second.

Quint's had to vacate their Quincy Square location and relocate to Southern Artery because of the MBTA system. Buses now exit where the greenhouse stood.

So, if you're seeking a sure cure from post winter doldrums and want to fill your spring day with a splash of floral sunshine, Quint's has the remedy.

Quincy Patients Rally To Braintree Doctor's Support

who had done so much for so many for so long.

She was scheduled to appear at the Quincy City Council meeting Tuesday night to ask that body to issue a letter of support to the petition drive.

"There are so many residents, past and present, from Quincy who have counted on Dr. Keigan's medical ability in all levels of environment and all age groups. He is a wonderful man," she said.

Mrs. Thomas, a special needs aide in the city's school system, will be joined by other Keigan supporters this Sunday as they canvas signatures outside St. John's and St. Ann's churches following Masses.

Another reason Mrs. Thomas joined the petition drive is that Quincy is the biggest area served by Dr. Keigan's practice which is located on Quincy Ave., Braintree.

Mrs. Thomas was made aware of the drive by a Braintree nurse, Cindy Morrissey.

The latter, who has worked at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth, where Keigan has practiced since 1949 and is a former president of the medical staff, said the doctor is a unique person.

"He has a gruff but loving way of showing his caring for his patients," she said. "This is the kind of man who, despite an overflowing waiting room at his medical office, will take time for each and every person, no matter what the circumstances."

Morrissey said when she went to the elderly housing at Weymouth Tower, to seek signatures for the initial petition, she was deluged with signers.

Those who support Keigan say he provides low cost, and sometimes free, medical care to those in need. They feel it is an injustice to have his license pulled for any length of time.

He represents a time when people cared about people, they say, and they can understand if he failed to meet some form of bureaucratic paperwork.

Hearings Sought City Steps Up Jail Site Fight

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Mayor Francis McCauley is urging the governor's office to delay a decision on siting of the Suffolk County jail until the matter has been through the public process.

"It will be better to delay and make the right decision than to go ahead and make the wrong decision," said McCauley, who noted that a decision may be imminent.

The mayor said he will instruct Deputy Director of Public Works David Colton, his representative to the Governor's office, to urge that public hearings be held in Quincy and Boston to allow public input.

Councillor Thomas Nutley has started a city-wide letter writing campaign and is urging residents to let the governor know their opposition to the siting of a jail on Moon Island.

Rep. Michael Morrissey has contacted Squantum and North Quincy residents asking them to call or write the governor with their views.

McCauley said that Colton and Quincy legislators attended a meeting last Wednesday with the governor's delegate, Frank Keefe, Secretary of Administration and Finance.

According to Colton, South Hampton St., Boston, and Moon Island, Quincy, are the main sites under consideration, said McCauley. Colton said that a decision could be forthcoming at the

Nutley Launches Mail Campaign

Ward 6 City Councillor Thomas J. Nutley, has launched a city-wide letter writing campaign to Gov. Michael Dukakis to convince him that Moon Island is the least desirable or cost-efficient site on which to relocate the Deer Island Jail.

Nutley has sent excerpts of his letter to the Gov. to every Squantum residence urging Squantum residents to write their own letters of protest to the Governor this week. A final decision will be made by Dukakis May 13, but Nutley said in his letter that the people should write immediately since a tentative decision may be made prior to that date.

"From Squantum I am broadening the letter writing campaign throughout the entire city," Nutley said. "I am asking for the support of every individual and organization in the city including the chamber of commerce, the policemen's union, the nine city civic organizations, City fraternal groups, etc."

"We have also solicited signatures at supermarkets over the weekend and the support and response has been extremely enthusiastic."

"I have listed a number of reasons why Moon Island would be a poor choice. I can only hope that the Governor will evaluate those reasons carefully and pay heed to the letters and concerns of the residents and organizations of the city."

Complaints Double On Empty Promises

The numbers of complaints against a man who took money to find apartments and low interest mortgages and then failed to deliver has nearly doubled after an article in last week's Quincy Sun.

Jane Reikard, executive secretary of the Quincy Rent Grievance Board, said that she has received six more complaints against the man, in addition to the seven she had already received.

All of the six said they were responding after reading The Sun article.

Mrs. Reikard hopes to collect enough complaints so that the Attorney General's office can take out a class action suit against the man who operated out of an office at 37 Washington St., Quincy Center.

All of the six had lost $85 entrance fees which they had paid in return for apartments, said Mrs. Reikard. The man had told them the fees were not returnable and had been given to charity.

That brings to over $2200 the total amount of money lost by the 13 people who made the complaints after responding to ads in a local newspaper and failing to receive satisfaction.

Those who responded to ads for low interest mortgages lost $450 each.

One of the newer complaints was from a woman who had been looking for an apartment for her and her husband while she was pregnant, said Mrs. Reikard.

She was living with her mother, and her husband was living with his mother, according to Mrs. Reikard, and they wanted to find a place of their own before the baby was born.

The woman saw the ad, went to the man, paid $85, but received nothing in return, Mrs. Reikard said.

The couple finally found an apartment in Brockton, and the woman called from her hospital bed after having her baby to tell Mrs. Reikard her story.

Another woman called Mrs. Reikard to say that the extent of the man's efforts on her behalf was to give her an ad from a newspaper for an apartment, which she had already tried, and to make one phone call for her.

Mrs. Reikard said she hopes to collect more complaints before giving them to the attorney general's office. She can be reached at 773-1380, ext. 327.

Also working on the complaints is Lt. Neil MacDonald of the Quincy Police Detective Bureau.

"What bothers me most is that he's taking money from the people who can least afford it, and he's doing nothing in return," said Mrs. Reikard.

Mrs. Reikard has had several conversations with the man, including one three weeks ago when he called to tell her he was leaving town.

"He said he wasn't getting anywhere in the city," said Mrs. Reikard. "He said that the landlords weren't cooperating, that they weren't lowering rents so that there would be housing for the poor."

"I told him it's not because of the landlords that you're leaving town," she said. "He is definitely a flim flam man."

Mrs. Reikard said the Attorney General's office told her the number of complaints needed for a class action suit varies.

She also said that she was asked to see if those with

Marina Bay Water Line Nears Completion

Ward 6 City Councillor Thomas J. Nutley, announces that the Marina Bay Water Line that will loop throughout the entire marina bay area is nearing final construction.

The line will also connect to the city's East Squantum St. water line to Squantum.

"The value of the Marina Bay Line will be two-fold," said Nutley, "in that it will also serve as a back-up supply to Squantum in the event of a water main break on East Squamunt St. between Quincy Shore Drive and the entrance to the marina.

"Of interest also, is that the road being built through the marina to the Neponset Bridge will provide a benefit also. Squantum commuters will be able to use that road as an emergency access and exit if the causeway should be flooded between the marina entrance and Quincy Shore Drive.

"That road is expected to be completed shortly."

Councillor Patricia Toland announced Tuesday she will not run for the office of Norfolk County Treasurer which she expressed an interest in earlier this year.

Toland said she reached her decision after considering the amount of time she would have to take from her council duties to run for that office.

She also said she enjoyed her job as city councillor more than she thought she would the position of county treasurer.

Daniel Raymond of Quincy currently holds that position. He was appointed county treasurer after the removal of James Collins for misconduct in office.

Toland said she has always been interested in county government, and felt she would have had a reasonable chance of winning the position of county treasurer.

She downplayed the chance of her running for that office in the future.

"If I were going to do it, this would have been the time," she said.

In a prepared statement read by Toland on the day on which she would have taken out papers to run for county treasurer she said:

"After careful consideration, I have decided not to run for the office of Norfolk County Treasurer for several reasons, including the following:

"I was elected last November for the third time by the citizens of Quincy to be Councillor-at-Large. I like this position and I am committed to serving in it to the best of my ability.

"I am chairman of several major committees, including the Downtown and Economic Development Committee and the new Education Committee, and now I have been appointed to a Special Task Force created by City Council President Stephen J. McGrath to examine the zoning ordinances.

"I find I have a problem with time.

"In order to serve my constituents, who are all the residents of Quincy, properly - to do my council committee work thoroughly - and continue to carry out the responsibilities of family life, I cannot engage in a serious campaign for another elective office.

"I have always found County Government very interesting, realizing however that although it sometimes seems remote from the ordinary citizen, its operation, efficient or otherwise, affects all of us.

"However, I will not have the time to campaign for County Treasurer, a campaign which, in my view, would require serious attention to issues concerning the fiscal policies and practices of our County Government as well as the duties and responsibilities of the County Treasurer's office. These issues warrant examination and scrutiny through public discussion which would, in turn, serve the public interest.

"Further, I will not have the time to devote to a campaign that would take me out of Quincy and into the 27 towns which comprise Norfolk County and stretch all the way to the Rhode Island border.

"Therefore, I have decided that I would rather serve as a city councillor in Quincy than as the County Treasurer in Dedham.

"I want to take this opportunity to thank all the people who so quickly offered their support and encouragement to me. A fact of public life that never ceases to amaze me is the generosity of spirit that springs forth from so many people who, unsolicited, offer their help, financial and otherwise. It is truly gratifying. In conclusion, I look forward to continue serving the people of this fine city as a member of the Quincy City Council."

Moves To Cape

Koch To Remain On City Council

City Councillor Richard Koch, Jr., has ended months of speculation by announcing he will serve out his two year term, and not step down because of a new job assignment and home on Cape Cod.

Special elections to fill his position would have cost the city a minimum of $80,000 for a preliminary and general election, according to City Clerk John Gillis.

"I've thought long and hard about it," said Koch, 31. "I've consulted with my wife, family, friends, fellow councillors and the city solicitor.

"It would have been easy to resign and leave, but I'm in my fifth year as councillor-at-large and I've enjoyed it immensely.

"I've considered it a privilege to be up here, and I've done my job to the best of my ability.

"I don't intend to slack off," Koch, his wife, Nancy, and three sons moved to Brewster about two weeks ago after he accepted a lateral job promotion with Kemper Insurance where he is a claims representative.

The family moved into a home left to Koch by his uncle. It is a little over an hour's drive from Quincy.

Koch is assigned to Kemper's Sandwich office.

He said he will keep a voting address of W. Elm Ave., Wollaston.

Koch said that City Solicitor Jay MacRitchie could find no restriction in the city charter prohibiting him from doing so.

He will be in Quincy at least one day a week, and will keep in touch with the City Council office for messages from constituents, Koch said.

"The kids are young, my oldest will start school in the fall," said Koch. "It was the time to move.

"I'll miss Quincy when my term expires. I've spent 31 years in Quincy, the last four and a half in government.

"I campaigned hard last year. I enjoy being on the council and I want to finish up my term."

Koch said he would like to get involved with town government on Cape Cod.

"But I can wait a bit," he said.

Koch was reelected last November to a two year term which ends in January, 1988.

Pizza Hut Break

Pizza Hut of America, 627 Washington St., Quincy Point, reported to police Saturday, that a total of $183 was stolen from the restaurant during an overnight break.

The money was stolen from three machines, a file cabinet and the cash register, according to the manager.

It was the sixth break since November, 1985, the manager told police.

Real Inflation: Charging For Air

By DAN CONNELLY

Charging for air, that's real inflation.

That's about what License Board Chairman John Gillis felt when the Board, being briefed on technical details of a new Merit gasoline station in North Quincy, was informed the air hose will have a user's fee.

Gillis, still bristling over being charged a quarter recently to use an air hose, told Merit official Joseph C. Doucet "It really got to me."

Doucet and engineer Don DeBenedictis defended the user fee, citing its need by Merit at that 238 Hancock St., location to offset the cost of constantly repairing the existing free air pumps, target of constant vandalism.

Acting Fire Chief and Board Member Carl Valenti retorted, "If you charge for air it's quite possible they'll really do a number on those air hoses."

After the air was cleared between Doucet and Gillis over the issue (Doucet said they'll reconsider that move) the Board was briefed on technical aspects of the new construction at Merit's existing facility.

The Merit officials told the Board the station will be closed down from 60 to 90 days soon after Board approval is obtained.

Doucet and DeBenedictis both agreed with Building Inspector Allan MacDonald that this is the time to really upgrade that valuable piece of property with landscaping.

Horseshoes On Tap In Quincy Point

Patrons will soon be able to play a game of horseshoes at the Washington Tap, 609 Washington St., Quincy Point.

Though no permit is needed for such a venture, the License Board Tuesday gave Michael and Mary Lou Minichello their nod of approval to install one on a trial basis; Fridays and Saturdays from 12 noon to 7 p.m. But, they warned them the board will step in if abusers complain.

Ward Councillor Theodore F. DeCristofaro, who was present at the meeting, said he was not there to object to the horseshoe pit but rather to ask them to give the request a chance.

DeCristofaro said that community relations with the couple are good and "I'll be the first one before this board should any problems arise."

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald alerted the couple that the neighbors do have rights too and they must keep that in mind.

The Minichellos assured the board the games would be supervised.

Readers Forum Will Continue The Fight Against Gramm-Rudman

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Tuesday, April 15, was a very important day for the people of Quincy. On that evening, over 500 people came to the Quincy High School Methods Center to express their opposition to the drastic spending cuts that are coming in the domestic federal spending program.

These cuts, as we heard first hand, affect social services, education, veterans services and occupational training. They affect the very fabric of the democratic society that has been America since the Great Depression of 1932.

People were heard. People from the neighborhood centers, our elderly, our veterans, our civic groups -- over 500 strong took the time to appear and voice their opposition to these fearful cuts. This letter is to them. It is my "Thank you" for your time, your concern and your effort.

This letter is also to thank our Congressmen, Brian Donnelly, for his foresight in realizing the severity of these cuts by not voting for Gramm-Rudman.

We will continue this fight and together be victorious.

Dr. Keigan Suspension 'Travesty Of Justice'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The recent decision of the Board of Registration of Medicine to suspend the license of Dr. Archie Keigan is a travesty of justice which can and must be overturned.

Dr. Keigan has been practicing at the South Shore Hospital since 1949 where he is the former president of the medical staff. He has also been appointed Norfolk County Examiner for twenty-eight years.

On a more personal note, he has been our family physician for 23 years. He has delivered us three children and recently began a new generation with two grandchildren.

Surely the Dukakis administration does not want to go down in history as the one who commuted the sentences of murderers, turning them loose to wreak havoc on society, while removing the license of a 66-year old practitioner, who dedicated his life to helping it.

Durkin To Keep Word

There's been speculation School Committee Vice Chairman Steve Durkin might make a run for another political office this year. But he has no such plans.

He admits he gave fleeting thought to running for Richard Koch's City Council at-large seat if the latter gave up the seat this year.

And he's not running for state office. Not this year, anyway.

"When I ran for School Committee, I promised I would serve the full four years and I'm going to do just that," he says.

And then?
"After that, my options are open."

Like what?

"Well, there's no doubt I'd be interested in state representative."

DURKIN

BROWNELL

Durkin lives in Rep. Thomas Brownell's district. Every once in a while speculation starts making the rounds that Brownell has a black robe hanging in the closet waiting for Gov. Michael Dukakis to tell him to put it on.

"There's still a lot to do in the School Committee," says Durkin.

For one thing, he'd like to see the Wollaston School re-opened.

"I hear there's something like $140,000 left over in the snow removal budget. Why not take that to help finance the re-opening of the Wollaston School?" Durkin wants to see the Sterling Middle School remain open.

"But," he concedes, "it is in need of extensive repairs -- maybe somewhere between $500,000 and $1 million. It might become too expensive to keep it open."

Durkin, incidentally, is now working in Quincy. A member of the Robert Karns law office in Taunton and New Bedford, he has become resident attorney for the firm in the new Quincy office on Fort St., South Quincy.

Which means he will have more time to get around to school and other matters during the daytime.

COUNCIL PRESIDENT Stephen McGrath is, wielding the fastest gavel in the East. Monday night, McGrath opened a City Council meeting, called for a vote and closed the meeting in 50 seconds and 43/100ths. The council meeting followed a 15 minute committee meeting discussion of the matter voted on, noted the mayor's executive secretary Peter Kenney who challenged McGrath to keep the meeting under one minute.

Councillor Michael Cheney held a stop watch while the council voted acceptance of an agreement between the mayor and 200 Newport Ave. which brought the city more than $2 million.

McGRATH

"What's the expression?" asked Cheney with a smile. "We ponder over pennies..."

CITY HALL loses one of its friendliest smiles this week when Eleanor Reidy, the mayor's personal secretary, calls it a career. Eleanor, a very young 71, was Mayor McCauley's secretary at Presidential Cooperative Bank for almost 10 years before he was elected Mayor. She plans to spend more time with her family and grandchildren.

REIDY

Colleen Wentworth, who worked in the mayor's office during the summers of 1983, 1984 and 1985, will join the mayor's staff. A graduate of Quincy High School, Colleen earned a B.A. degree in criminal justice from St. Anselm's College.

A COCKTAIL RECEPTION for Senator Paul Harold will be held tonight (Thursday) from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Downtown Harvard Club, Shawmut Bank Building, Federal St., Boston. Tickets are $50 a person.

Time really flies. Harold will be seeking his fifth term this year.

HAROLD

A FUND RAISER for Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall who will be seeking his third six-year term, is set for Wednesday, May 28 at 8 p.m. at the Red Snapper Restaurant, Rte. 1, Foxboro.

Speaking of time flying, we remember when Marshall was a young Ward 2 City Councillor with a crewcut.

MARSHALL

SCHOOL Committee woman Mary Collins and Medi Mart on Newport Ave., North Quincy, are trying to re-unite someone with his or her lost money.

It seems some money was found in an envelope at the store the other day. On the envelope was Collins' first name and her telephone number.

The store called her, thinking it was her money. But she said it wasn't and now is helping Medi Mart to find the real owner.

COLLINS

WELL, there's little chance political success will go to School Committee Frank Santoro's head.

On his 37th birthday, Lori, 13, and Michael, 9, gave dad a T-shirt with "Mr. Politician" on the front.

It was to sort of keep him humble. He loves it.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Steve Downing, Manager
LAND OWNERSHIP PRO AND CON

QUESTION: What are the pros and cons of land ownership?

ANSWER: Money is made on raw land only when you sell. During the holding time, there is usually no income. Cash outlay is required for property taxes, insurance and mortgage payments. There is no deduction for depreciation.

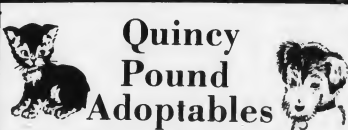

Does this mean land is a poor investment? On the contrary, with very few dollars invested, it is possible to make a small killing on land through the use of land options, leverage and acquisition just prior to change in land-use. And you can sell off the benefit at the lower capital gains rates. Also it takes almost none of your time in management.

BUYING RAW LAND entails different dollar decisions than buying buildings.

Jobless Army Marches On City Hall

A jobless army of former city workers jammed the City Council meeting this week while the council was considering a loan for $10,000 for street paving.

The jobless army attempted to force the council to float this loan and others in order to provide work for city residents.

Acting Mayor Leo Mullin signed the council order the next day. It was estimated that the street work would provide work for 150-300 men for 10 weeks.

POLICE ELECT DORAN AND McINTYRE

Captain Daniel Doran was re-elected president of the Quincy Police Relief Association for his third consecutive term.

A feature of the election, however, was the defeat of Lt. James Whalen by Sgt. William McIntyre for the post of treasurer. The vote was 42 to 41.

Other officers elected were Sgt. Joseph Sweeney, vice president; Sgt. Henry Corbett, financial secretary; Patrolman Charles Hinchon, recording secretary and Lt. John Avery, trustee.

"SCALPING OF SQUANTUM"

The "Scalping of Squantum" was the main topic of discussion at a meeting of the Squantum Association.

Residents praised and criticized the ERA project, which cut down a number of trees and bushes that acted as breeding grounds for the gypsy moth. William Greeley called the project a butcher job. However, the association voted to request city engineer Wallace Carson to repeat the project each year.

The association also voted to send a letter to the city, asking that unaccepted streets in Squantum be oiled.

QUINCY WORST IN STATE FOR RABIES

Dr. Edmund FitzGerald, city health commissioner, noted that Quincy was the worst place in the state for rabies.

He called upon the City Council to have all dogs restrained for 90 days and the dog license fee be increased to 50 cents.

FitzGerald said he expected much opposition from the city's dog lovers. The last time dogs in the city were restrained was in 1931 and then, only after a bitter debate.

ASBESTOS LUNG DISEASE

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS of the 1930's-1970's have lung afflictions because they inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

Floral Designs By Fabiano

57 Franklin Street, Quincy 770-4308

Floral Designs by Fabiano is the latest addition to the Fabiano family businesses on Franklin St., South Quincy which include John's Fruit Store and John's Sub Corral.

A full service flower shop, it offers fresh cut flowers, silk and dried creations, funeral arrangements, floral arrangements and plants for all occasions as well as fruit, cheese and gourmet baskets, gifts and ceramics. It specializes in weddings, banquets and showers.

And delivery is available locally as well as nationwide through Teleflora.

ANITA FABIANO
Head Designer

A graduate of Braintree High School and Rittner's Floral Design, Boston, she designed arrangements for a year at Almqvist Flowerland before that business's cut flower department was purchased by the Fabiano family.

Anita is in charge of ordering all the flowers early each morning at the Boston Flower Exchange, overseeing deliveries and just about everything else.

Anita, who has grown up working in the family owned business, is working to make the full service flower shop a great success. It offers such things as fresh cut flowers, silk and dried creations, funeral arrangements, fruit baskets, cheese baskets, balloons, gifts and ceramics.

It specializes in weddings, banquets, and showers. "We like to be creative and to do different arrangements. If you're looking for something different, give us a call. We'll come up with it."

RUSS STEELE
Specialty Coordinator

A West Quincy resident, Russ was employed by Purity Supreme for 27 years before a bout with ill health caused him to look for another career.

He chose the floral business because "I had always had house plants, been creative, and interested in putting colors together." After attending Rittner's Floral Design, he went to work for Almqvist's for four and a half years where he was a designer.

"I love my work," says Russ. "It's fun to work with flowers. Your work shows your feelings."

He does mostly funeral work and special pieces, such as silk arrangements to go with room decors, or other orders. Requested to send something to someone in the hospital, Russ sent a doll with a band aid which read "ouch" and a bunch of balloons. "That went over very well," he said. A number of satisfied customers have written or called in their thanks.

LINDA GLENNON
Wedding Consultant

Born and raised in Quincy, Linda was graduated from North Quincy High School and Aquinas Junior College, but learned the floral business through on-the-job training.

About 10 years ago, her brother had a floral business in Quincy. "I helped out during a few holidays, and I was hooked," she says. "I think the knack for this kind of job comes from within. Every occasion is so special — it requires a certain touch."

After working part time for a few shops, she was employed for the last four years at Almqvist's.

As a wedding consultant, Linda works with brides from the day they walk into Fabiano's through to the wedding and reception, keeping in mind her budget.

"We try to work with each bride as an individual and meet her needs. Once she comes in to me, the flowers are not her worry anymore."

JUDY SULLIVAN Designer

A 1985 graduate of Rittner's, she received a degree in floral design and worked for Almqvist's for a few months preparing the materials for the designers to work with.

Then she worked her way up to weddings and funerals. "I learned more on the job than in school," she said.

"I'm learning the business, I'd like to learn to do more weddings. Our wedding work is gorgeous. We get many letters from people who are happy with our wedding and funeral work."

"Judy recommends that anyone interested in ordering flowers come in to the shop, look around, and talk with the designers. 'I think they'll be very pleased with the results.'"

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We all know people who we can always count on to be always on time; we also know people who are habitually late. What deep quirk of temperament or training turns some people into models of punctuality, and others into profligate wasters of time?

Napoleon once remarked that the reason he beat the Austrians was that "they didn't know the value of five minutes." ... Wellington once described his success as being due to "arriving everywhere a quarter-hour early." ... The late Jimmy Walker when he was New York's flamboyant mayor once quipped, "If you get there before it's over, you're on time." Many people today seem to agree with his philosophy.

Punctuality is not today regarded as one of the cardinal virtues to be cherished and cultivated, even though in the nineteenth century it was thought to be by striving young people as a major ingredient of character building and material success.

Yet, isn't it true, a constant lack of punctuality can become a kind of "Chinese water torture" for those who are inconvenienced by it? Many homes have been broken up by wives who were never on time and husbands who always got home late ...

New Monthly Parkers System June 1 At Validated Lots

Kinney Systems hopes to install a new computer system in its Quincy parking lots around June 1 which will allow monthly parkers to insert their cards in the terminals to enter and exit rather than obtain time-stamped cards.

Daily parkers will still have to obtain the time-stamped cards, according to Kevin Bronski, South Operations Supervisor for Kinney.

"Hopefully it will make things a lot quicker for monthly parkers," said Bronski, who noted that the company has been on the verge of installing the new system for the past year.

One company which was to install the system that incorporates an infra red signal has gone out of business, explained Bronski.

But all of the preliminary work has now been completed, said Bronski, and monthly parkers will eventually receive the new cards which are only slightly different than the current ones that are the size of a credit card.

Until the new cards are available, those seeking monthly passes, which cost $25, will be put on a waiting list, according to Bronski, because there are no old cards left.

If any of the old cards are turned in during May, they will be given to those on the list, said Bronski who noted that about 500 people have monthly passes.

There are roughly 1400 spaces in the system which includes the Revere lost across from the Quincy District Court and the Ross lot and garage in the Parkingway, Quincy Square. Bronski added that the company recently overhauled all of its equipment.

"Hopefully, breakdowns in equipment will be a thing of the past," said Bronski who noted that all but one of the company's "ticket spitters" have been struck by motorists.

Bronski also said that he has spoken with the art director of the Quincy Public Schools about having students paint over the graffiti on the walls of the Ross Garage.

"It will be a lot prettier than obscenities," he said.

Budget Hearings To Conclude May 12

The Finance Committee gave initial approval for the Library, Public Works, Data Processing and School Department budgets at a meeting Monday night.

There were no cuts made.

The mayor presented the $92,017,245 fiscal budget to the council April 7. It has 45 days to act on it.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Many important factors to consider when shopping for a new dishwasher

If you're in the market for a new dishwasher, you'll probably be amazed at the many makes, models and features now available on dealers' floors. Considering that most dishwashers last 10-12 years, it definitely pays to shop around a bit and weigh the differences. Good washability, ease of operation and long life are all-important criteria.

Water temperature important

Sparkling clean dishes depend upon having the right water temperature, and a well-designed washing and filtering system, powered by a strong motor.

If your current dishwasher isn't getting your dishes clean, one reason could be that the wash water is just not hot enough. Reduced water heater settings, long plumbing lines and outside wall installations all have an effect on dishwasher performance.

To compensate for these factors, look for a dishwasher which heats incoming water to the proper washing temperature automatically... without having to push any special buttons. By heating the water, the detergent will be thoroughly dissolved to do the most efficient job of soil removal.

Be aware that some dishwashers raise incoming water temperature only during certain optional wash cycles, and others just maintain, and not raise, temperatures during circulation.

"Heart" of the dishwasher

The motor is the "heart" of a dishwasher; it powers the pump which feeds water to the wash arms. As you shop, be sure to compare motor sizes.

A motor with a higher horsepower rating helps provide good overall water circulation throughout a dishwasher. In the end, it will also last longer as it strains less and wears less.

Don't overlook the differences in wash systems, either. Wash arms can be found in the top, middle and bottom of the dishwasher tank. Differences in design and location contribute to their efficiency.

A top wash arm might seem desirable but can be easily blocked by tall items loaded in the upper rack, unless extra care is always exercised in placing items.

A middle wash arm, fed by a water tower which comes up through the lower rack, can also have its water supply cut off by a large platter or pot improperly positioned in the lower rack, in addition to cutting down on valuable loading space.

But a dishwasher with a direct water feed to the middle wash arm eliminates this problem and frees up space for loading.

Continuous, efficient water filtration and soil removal are also vital to getting dishes clean. With some systems, food soil is recirculated and redeposited on dishes and glasses so they never come totally clean. In a sense, your dishes are always being washed in dirty water.

Yet others continually filter the wash water. KitchenAid dishwashers, for example, feature what they call the Sure-Clean triple filtration and soil collector system.

Using a series of three filters and a specially designed soil collector, food soils are filtered out of the wash water and held in a separate compartment until flushed away during each drain.

For added efficiency

Also included is a hard food "disposer" which literally grinds up large items such as fruit pits, toothpicks and glass into very fine particles, preventing any damage to the home drain system.

Lastly, with the dishwasher open, take a close look at the tank. On first glance, they all look pretty much alike, but aren't. Some tanks are made of plastic, some have just one coat of porcelain applied to them and others, two.

One manufacturer applies a clear overglaze over two coats of porcelain and fires it twice at 1500°F, making the porcelain that much more resistant to food acids, chipping, harsh detergents, hot water and minerals which, over time, can break down its protective properties.

While a dishwasher is now considered a necessity by most homeowners, it is still a major investment that deserves careful consideration.

For additional information on dishwasher features and benefits, write: KitchenAid Consumer Information, Troy, OH 45374.

NOW YOU CAN TALK ON THE TELEPHONE while your dishwasher is on — without having to leave the kitchen. The new KitchenAid Whisper Quiet System, found on all Superba models, uses a triple layer of high-density insulation to significantly reduce the disturbing sounds one typically hears from a dishwasher. It's so quiet, you may wonder if the dishwasher is actually on.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Especially when remodeling ...

Think ceramic tile for your kitchen

Regardless of its size or style, a good kitchen is both efficient and attractive. Because so many aren't, kitchen remodeling remains one of the most popular home improvements year after year.

But efficiency in a kitchen isn't related to size so much as is good layout and use of appliances, cabinets and other materials that help get the job done with a minimum of fuss.

Take ceramic tile, for instance. Ceramic tile is attractive, durable, economical, easy to clean and will not burn. That's why it's so popular on floors, walls and countertops in kitchens, says the Tile Council of America, Inc.

Various surfaces

Glazed tile has a glass-like surface, which may be shiny, matte or textured. Use glazed wall tile and glazed or unglazed ceramic mosaics for walls and backsplashes.

Wall tile comes in a wide range of colors, designs and glazes. For countertops, use ceramic mosaics and tiles with heavy glazes. Ceramic floor tiles are usually more rugged than wall tiles. Glazed versions are matte or textured. When used on floors, ceramic mosaics should be unglazed.

Making wise selections

Since tile comes in myriad colors, shapes, patterns and textures, it's wise to choose conservatively for large areas such as floors and walls. Choose a neutral color that you won't tire of. Save the bright colors and decorative designs as accents in small areas.

For walls, backsplashes and countertops, consider romantic florals in colors ranging from cherry blossom pink to cornflower blue. These shades bring relief from lots of dark wood cabinets.

Metallic tile finishes as well as smooth whites, beiges and grays go well with contemporary kitchens. For the country look, consider hand painted tiles with such motifs as weathervanes, butter molds and Pennsylvania Dutch stencils. Old-world designs, florals and classic medallions are naturals with traditional kitchens.

On floors, neutral needn't mean mundane colors. There's a wealth of shades within the beige palette, ranging from peachy tan to rosy taupe. Browns run from caramel to espresso.

Especially popular in country kitchens are the hand-crafted look of uneven edges and surfaces that resemble the potter's touch.

Other floor tiles that are precise and smooth go well with contemporary and high-tech kitchens. Brick-shaped tiles in basketweave or herringbone patterns go well with slightly formal kitchens.

For more information

For a look at what's available in ceramic tile, visit the showrooms of manufacturers, contractors, distributors and dealers. Look for them in the phone book under "Tile-Ceramic." For more information, write the Tile Council of America, Inc., P.O. Box 2222, Princeton, NJ 08540.

THE WIDE VARIETY of ceramic tiles from inspires distinctive decorating, such as this high-tech kitchen in country colors.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Plated fabric shades are perfect for sprucing up spring windows

Since the windows let in that first sign of warm spring sunshine, they are a good place to start sprucing up your interior decor for the new season.

This year's newest look in window fashion can be designed with Verosol plated fabric shades. Clean horizontal lines, a soft designer look, and a wide range of colors combine to give Verosol plated shades their unique appeal.

There's one perfect for every room in your home because they fit in with any decor, from the most formal dining room to the cozy rustic living room, and they can be custom made to fit any size or shape of window — even solariums and skylights.

Fabrics vacuum bonded with an ultra-thin layer of aluminum, a process that Verosol invented, are anti-static, so cleaning is rarely necessary.

Verosol metallized plated shades cut glare and reduce directly-transmitted solar energy by up to 80 percent and, at the same time, are so light that you can see through them. So they are an excellent protection against the summer's direct sunlight, which can fade interior furnishings as well as dramatically increase the room temperature. For rooms where you need more privacy, Verosol shades are also available in heavier densities.

Variety of options

Verosol also offers shades made from non-metallized plated fabrics, which are textured to give a very natural look to the window. These Plated Sheers are especially beautiful under draperies. And shades by Verosol USA are made from the highest quality plated fabrics — even guaranteed for three years.

So when you look for plated shades, look for Verosol plated shades, and you'll know they're the best you can get.

For the manufacturer nearest you, contact the Marketing Department at Verosol USA Inc., 224 RIDC Park West Drive, Pittsburgh, PA 15275, or call (412) 787-9810.

PLEATED FABRIC SHADES from Verosol can be custom striped to coordinate with any design. Up to nine vertical stripes can be used for each shade and any combination of Verosol's 150 different colors, prints and textures can be used.

Quincy Bows To Cambridge

By TOM SULLIVAN

After winning two games in a row to improve its non-league record to 3-4, the Quincy baseball team had its first poor game in some time Monday and lost its Suburban League opener to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 6-2.

Bob Sylvia's Presidents played North Quincy yesterday (Wednesday), will play at Newton North today (Thursday) and will be at Waltham Monday, both games at 3:30.

"We had three fine games in a row, playing Revere tough and losing a close one to one of the best pitchers in the Greater Boston League, then beating Somerville's best pitcher and winning a good one at Arlington," Sylvia said. "I thought we were ready for our league opener, but we didn't play well."

Larry Taglieri was not feeling well, but did a good job for four innings. We gave the game away with too many errors. I thought Tag did a fine job under the conditions."

T.J. Steen, returning to action after pulling a hamstring, and Eddie Gore, making his first appearance of the season, finished up on the mound against Cambridge.

Quincy had only four hits, two by Dan Biagini and one each by Tom Logan and Sean Flavin.

"We hit the ball pretty well but right at the fielders," said Sylvia. "We have a pretty good ball club and I think we will win our share of league games."

Last Friday Logan hit a grand slam homer to spark a six-run sixth inning as the Presidents defeated Arlington, 10-8.

Taglieri pitched the last 3 2/3 innings in relief of starter Flavin to earn his second win in a row. The two combined for six strikeouts and gave up seven hits.

Dave Tocchio (2 RBI) and Logan each had two of Quincy's eight hits.

Earlier in the week Taglieri pitched a three-hitter and struck out eight in blanking Somerville, 4-0.

Logan had an RBI triple and Tocchio had a two-run triple to lead the attack.

Quincy had won its opening game of the season over Weymouth North, but was forced to forfeit the game when it was discovered a player was ineligible.

4 Unearned Runs Costly To North

The North Quincy baseball team continued to play in hard luck Monday when Waltham scored four unearned runs in the fifth inning to top the Raiders, 4-0, in the Suburban League opener for both teams.

The loss dropped North's record to 1-6.

The game began a busy week for North, which made up a rain-out game with Everett Tuesday, met Quincy yesterday (Wednesday) and will host Brookline Friday at 3:30 at Montclair Field. North will be home to Brockton Monday at 3:30 at Montclair.

The Brockton game was scheduled as the first night game at Adams Field, but the field reportedly will not be ready to play on until at least May 15.

Dan Santry made his first pitching start for the Raiders

Monday and hurled a two-hitter. However, his mates' errors handed Waltham four unearned runs in the fifth.

"Santry did a terrific job and it was a shame he had to lose," Coach Leo Donovan said. "It has been the same story all year long, too many errors. We have given the other teams loads of unearned runs."

North had five hits, all singles, by Peter Tufts, Greg McGlame, Chris Gray, Ted Shionis and Tom Casey.

Last week North lost to Arlington, 13-3, handing the winners seven unearned runs.

"We took an early 3-0 lead, then the roof fell in," said Donovan. "In addition to us giving them several runs, they hit the ball hard with two two-run homers and a two-run triple."

Waltham Too Much For Raiderettes

The North Quincy girls' softball team, which had evened its non-league record at 2-2 with two wins in a row, lost to Waltham, 15-5, Monday, in its Suburban League opener, as Waltham exploded for seven runs in the seventh inning to clinch the win.

Mary Pratt's Raiderettes played Quincy yesterday (Wednesday), will play at Brookline Friday at 3:30 and will be at Brockton Monday at 3:30.

Monday's game was a pitchers' duel for three innings with the game scoreless. However, in the fourth inning North's Ann Anderlinis gave up five hits and, combined with three bases on balls and two errors, Waltham scored five runs. The Hawks added two in the fifth on two walks and a single.

North fought back in the fifth with four runs when Lisa Mitton tripled in two runs, followed by another two-run triple by Anderlionis. Mitton, who went 3-for-3, had another triple in the sixth to score Kristen Drake to end North's scoring. The score remained 8-5 until Waltham's seven-run seventh.

Last week the Raiderettes walloped Revere, 14-4, with freshman Drake scattering four hits over five innings to gain her first win. North collected 17 hits.

Anderlionis was 4-for-4 including a long triple, Noreen Connelly had a double and triple, freshmen Drake and Karen Reister had triples and Colleen Hannon and Sarah Harrington each had two singles.

Earlier in the week North defeated Malden, 7-4, for its first win after two losses.

Drake belted a three-run triple in the fifth to break a 3-3 tie. Anderlionis picked up the win as she pitched a four-hitter, struck out four and walked five, Nancy Leonard had three hits for the Raiderettes.

votes. The Exemplary Player of the Year award goes to the player who has done the most for college football, both on and off the field. Last year's winners were Boston College's Doug Flutie and Nate Sasmann of Army.

Dudek received his award from Flutie, last year's Heisman Trophy winner.

"It is nice to receive an award that reflects not only on my football skills, but on what I've tried to accomplish as a citizen off the field," Dudek said.

The former North Quincy High standout was expected to be the first Plymouth State player ever drafted by the NFL this past Tuesday.

Pitching, Defense Problems For Quincy

The Quincy girls' softball team has been scoring well this spring, but a lack of pitching and loose defensive play have plagued the First Ladies, who lost to Cambridge Rindge and Latin Monday, 12-8, in their Suburban League opener. The loss dropped Quincy's record to 1-5.

The Quincy girls played North Quincy yesterday (Wednesday), will host Newton North today (Thursday) at 3:30 at Faxon Field and will be home to Waltham Monday at 3:30.

"We have inexperienced pitchers, who have been unable to find the plate and have given numerous walks," said Coach Barbara Webster. "Also, we have made far too many errors. We are hitting pretty well and have scored a lot of runs, but the walks and errors have been fatal to us."

Kristin Curtin, the team's leading hitter and base stealer, was 2-for-3 Monday and Tina Calabro was 2-for-4 with two runs batted in.

Last week the First Ladies rallied to tie Arlington, 8-8, in the fifth inning but Arlington exploded for eight more runs and a 16-8 victory.

Arlington scored five times in the second inning to break a 3-3 tie. Quincy came back on an RBI single by Terry Duggan and added three more runs on two bases-loaded walks and a wild pitch.

Curtin had three RBI and tied the score with a single in the fifth, and Duggan had two hits.

Earlier in the week Quincy lost to Everett, 9-3, with Lisa Zambruno, Calabro and Marie King having the only Quincy hits.

A pair of "Mikes," Kenney four, and Staiti six, led Merrymount over Central. Sean Donovan also had four and Capadona had two. Sean Kiley two, Zack Costa two, and John Campbell two were the Central scorers in the 16-6 loss.

In semi-final action Beechwood outdistanced Atlantic, 14-8. Joe McDonald, eight, was high man followed by Mike McDonald, six and Joe Welby two. Paul King had four while Sean Manning and Brad Gray each had two for Atlantic.

In the other semi-final game, Merrymount used a swarming defense to oust Montclair, 16-0. Donovan had six, Cappadona four, and Staiti four. George Widz and Jeff Pillard showed great hustle on the Montclair team.

The championship game was the Mike Staiti Show as he scored 10 of his team's 14 points as Merrymount captured the Jamboree Cup for Coach John Murphy, 14-9, over a well-coached Rick Radzik Beechwood Knoll team. Mike McDonald had five and Joe McDonald had three with Chris Dupill chipping in one.

No More Night Deliveries At Adams St. 7-11

Morrissey Alerts Residents On Jail Site Plans

By DAN CONNELLY
There should be no more night deliveries at the 7-Eleven-Quik Mart at 678 Adams St., West Quincy.

That's the decision of the Licensing Board after abductor, Albert Cross of 20 Stedman St. and store owner Dennis Lane of Scituate, exchanged differences, some of them heated, at the Board's Tuesday meeting in City Hall.

DeCross said night deliveries are still being made, "garbage" is fed to birds, the present dumpster is uncovered, an outdoor store light reflects in the window of his home. Also, the building is 90-feet long rather than the 70-plus feet as called for in plans submitted to the Board at a March 4 meeting.

At that meeting, 7-Eleven was licensed to construct a new building with stipulations, one of those related to no deliveries are to be made between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. Lane blamed a break down in communications relative to there being night deliveries and has corrected this.

A $12,000 shelter for a new compactor adjacent to the store has increased the building's length.

The charge that "garbage" was being fed to birds was rebuked by Lane's attorney Peter Eley, who said it was only crumbs from empty donut trays. An elderly custodian at the store has been told to stop this practice.

Lane told the Board the existing dumpster will always be covered. He blamed ed workers at the construction site with not keeping it capped after depositing their refuse. Also the outside light will be relined, said Lane.

No action was taken by the board on other alleged complaints made by Lane and Eley.

After the meeting both parties met in the back of the Council Chamber to resolve their issues that have focused during the construction work in Lakin Square.

Rep. Michael Morrissey has contacted Quantum households to alert them of potential plans that could lead to the siting of the Suffolk County House of Correction on Moon Island.

Under an agreement between the EPA and the Water Resource Authority, the new House of Correction will replace the Deer Island House of Correction in Winthrop which must be moved to make way for the new sewer treatment plant.

Gov. Michael Dukakis, through his Secretary of Administration and Finance, Frank Keefe, has been holding a series of meetings on the issue of site selection.

The focus of the governor's search was limited to no more than six publicly owned parcels of land within Suffolk County and Moon Island which is located in the City of Quincy within the borders of Norfolk County.

Morrissey said that until last week, the Dukakis

Administration continually ignored suggestions from Quincy's legislative delegation to expand the search to all available parcels in Suffolk County; public and private.

With the search narrowed down to two sites, Moon Island and the old incinerator site on South Hampton St., Secretary Keefe reluctantly agreed to consider a privately owned eight acre site on Frontage Road, Boston.

Repairs Planned For Edgewater Seawall

Mayor Francis McCauley has written to the Division of Waterways, Department of Environmental Management, indicating his intent to secure local funding to share project costs for repair of the seawall at Edgewater Drive.

The work will involve repointing granite block joints of the seawall and replacing two missing granite blocks at a cost of $130,250, said McCauley.

Cost to the city will be $65,125, according to McCauley who said he will ask that the council appropriate the money when it is needed.

she held a yard sale the day before which had to be moved inside her apartment because of rain.

Her apartment was entered that night after she went out, she told police.

Season Finale For Quincy Chorale Society

The Quincy Choral Society will conclude its season with performances of Mozart's "Coronation Mass" and Poulenc's "Gloria" Friday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 3 p.m. Both concerts will be in the Edith Cove Fine Arts Center at Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston.

Poulenc's "Gloria," first presented in Boston by the Boston Symphony in 1961 is a modern, lilting expression of joy. In contrast to the wildly dissonant, over-intellectualized music of his time, Poulenc composed music that was pleasant to listen to. Although he borrowed ideas from other composers and re-assembled them in his score much like a collage, his music remains creative and original.

Mozart's "Coronation Mass," written in Salzburg, Austria is in the key of C which was Mozart's festive key. The Mass shows his versatility for we have music of pomp, grace, joy and drama all existing in one short Mass. It is renowned next to his "Ave Verum" as Mozart's most famous religious work.

Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for students and children. Tickets purchased in advance in groups of 10 are $3 each. Tickets are available by calling 328-5970 or 479-6343 or may be purchased at the door.

Quincy Savings Announces Eligibility Date For Conversion Stock Offering

Quincy Savings Bank announces that the eligibility record date under which depositors of Quincy Savings Bank will have priority rights to purchase capital stock in the conversion of Quincy Savings Bank from mutual to stock form is Aug. 31, 1985.

According to Charles A. Pearce, Chairman of the Board of Quincy Savings

Bank, depositors as of that date will have a priority right to purchase all of the shares to be offered by the Bank's newly formed holding company in the conversion. If all of the stock being offered is not purchased by this group of depositors, the remaining shares are expected to be offered in an underwritten

City To Receive Over $2 Million Repayment

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
The City Council wasted no time Monday night approving an order authorizing the mayor to enter into an agreement with 200 Newport Ave. whereby the city will receive just over $2 million.

The money is repayment of a $1 million UDAG grant which was awarded in 1984 and was to have been paid back over 15 years. Planning Director James Lydon told the council at a special meeting.

It also includes such things as interest and a share of the profits which were part of the agreement, Lydon said.

The repayment is being made now because the building, owned by developers Dickinson and Macomber, is being purchased by State Street South, according to Lydon.

The money will go to the Planning Department and will be used for community development programs, he said.

Lydon said the repayment is coming at a fortuitous time because Community Development Block Grant programs could be cut by 30 per cent.

In response to a question by Councillor Joseph LaRaia, Lydon said the money could be spent for such things as neighborhood programs, but couldn't be used for schools.

An amendment by Councillor John Lydon specified that appropriation of the money be subject to approval by the City Council.

Mayor Francis McCauley said later that the city is researching exactly what the city can spend the money on.

"We're not going to run out and spend anything before we're sure we're spending it on the right thing," said McCauley.

"This has worked out very well. It was a long process, a complex transaction.

"Assistant City Solicitor Robert Quinn did a nice job."

City Steps Up Jail Fight

next meeting which could take place later this week or early next week, according to the mayor.

McCauley noted that the public process worked well a year ago when the city successfully fought to keep a sewage treatment plant off long island.

"We've made our position abundantly clear," said

McCauley, who wrote to the governor last week about the issue.

"As Mayor of the City of Quincy, I am concerned about your administration's decision-making process relative to the siting of the Suffolk County House of Correction. Recent events indicate that Moon Island, which is located in the City of Quincy, has been identified as the leading location for the Suffolk County House of Correction.

"As you know, Governor Dukakis, I have been following your decision-making process through representation at meetings held by Secretary Keefe. It has become clear that this process, because it is closed, should end. A closed process breeds suspicion and undermines the validity of decisions made therein. In addition, it adversely affects the credibility of its participants.

"For the sake of your administration and the fairness to those affected by any site, it is time to open this process to the public. Public hearings in Suffolk County and Quincy should be held as soon as practical. I will be happy to arrange one in Quincy and invite you to present your views. In this way, the process of making a siting decision will no longer be insulated from those it will affect.

Complaints Double On Promises

complaints would be willing to testify in court.

"About half have said yes, the other half are thinking about it," said Mrs. Reikard.

Frank Falacci, press secretary for the Attorney General's office declined to comment on the case saying it would be "premature and inappropriate" at this time.

Citizen's Rally Scheduled

City Takes Moon Island To Block Jail Site

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN Quincy has taken Moon Island by eminent domain for park and recreation purposes in an effort to keep a Suffolk County jail from being sited on it.

And a Citizen's Rally against the siting is scheduled for tonight (Thursday) in Quincy in an effort to keep the pressure on.

Among those invited to attend the rally at 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy Elks Hall, 440 East Squantum St., North Quincy, are Gov. Michael Dukakis, state legislators and city officials, as well as the public.

The taking of the approximately 44-acre island owned by Boston was recorded just before 11 a.m.

Tuesday at the Registry of Deeds in Dedham, according to City Solicitor Jay MacRitchie.

It followed unanimous votes by the City Council Monday night to approve an order on the taking introduced by Mayor Francis McCauley and co-sponsored by Councillor Thomas Nutley.

The council also approved an appropriation order of $10,000 to be awarded to Boston for the island.

"We hope this will remove Moon Island from consideration as a site for the Suffolk County House of Correction," said McCauley.

McCauley said the island will be under the jurisdiction of the Park Department.

MacRitchie said that he met with the mayor a month ago to look at ways to prevent the Suffolk County House of Correction from being located in Quincy, which is in Norfolk County.

Boston had taken the island from a private individual by eminent domain in the late 1880s, for its sewerage system, according to MacRitchie.

Quincy now has 60 days to notify the parties of interest, MacRitchie said. It will also make an offer of $10,000 to Boston, which will be allowed to continue its sewerage system on the island, he noted.

MacRitchie said that Boston could contest the amount offered, or contest the taking itself.

"I'm confident we could withstand a challenge on the taking," MacRitchie said.

If there is a challenge, the courts would make the final decision, he said.

If the state decides it wanted to take the land, it would require a two-thirds vote of both houses of the legislature, and the Commonwealth would have to come to Quincy and say it wanted to take the land, the city solicitor said.

"We hope the Legislature and Governor will realize how inappropriate it would be to place the Suffolk County House of Correction on Moon Island," MacRitchie said.

At the City Council meeting, Councillor Joseph LaRaia noted that the city took Squaw Rock by eminent domain in 1966.

Councillor Michael Cheney commended McCauley and Nutley, in whose ward

City Launches Crackdown On Delinquent Taxes

Mayor Francis X. McCauley announces that Quincy will begin a crackdown on persons and corporations who are delinquent in payment of personal property taxes.

The Solicitors Office, in conjunction with the Treasurer Collector's Office and the Data Processing Department, will be preparing a list of delinquent taxpayers, he said.

They will utilize M.G.C. Chapter 60, Section 29, whereby the Treasurer and Collector, Franklin C. Jay will request that the Quincy District Court issue a summons to require that delinquent taxpayers appear at a hearing.

If the court finds that the debt is owed to the city and there is sufficient property and ability to pay, a warrant to jail the offender can be issued, McCauley said.

Prior to the issuance and service of a summons, the delinquent taxpayer will be notified by the city as to the amount of tax, interest and charges owing. Immediate payment or abatement of the taxes will result in avoidance of the court process, he said.

McCauley said that approximately $3 million in personal property taxes plus interest is due for fiscal years 1976-1985.

Bargain Center Closed And:

$54 Million Downtown Project Moves Ahead

The $54 million President's Place project proposed for the city's central business district took a major step forward in two areas this week, according to Planning Director James Lydon.

The first was the end of an era with the closing Saturday of the Bargain Center, a landmark in Quincy Square for 49 years. On its last day, all merchandise was offered for $1 or less.

The Bargain Center and nearby property is to be included in the President's Place project.

The second was approval by the City Council Monday night for the city to apply for a $780,450 Massachusetts Community Development Action Grant for revitalization improvement projects related to President's Place.

That would include street and site improvements, water and sewer work, engineering and a 10 percent contingency, he said.

"I think you'll shortly see demolition of the Bargain Center structure, and making ready of the site in anticipation of the future development," said Lydon, who estimated that the building will come down this summer.

"The vote Monday night was the first official action by the City Council regarding the project," said Lydon.

"It wasn't an endorsement of the project, but it's a start in the direction of beginning to find required approval for the project which is needed," said Lydon.

At the meeting Monday night, Lydon gave the City Council an update on the project which he said is the single largest development ever to occur in downtown Quincy.

The most significant impact of the project would be an estimated $10,400,000 in increased sales in downtown Quincy by workers and new residents, according to Lydon.

The project, whose cost estimate was increased from $45 million to $54 million, will have 227,000 square feet of commercial space, 200 residential condominiums, and 580 parking spaces, Lydon said.

The Boston Five Cent savings Bank, which is financing the project, will

Rustproofing Questioned

Automotive Center License Request Continued

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The city License Board continued until next week a request from Magic Automotive Center for a Motor II license at 216-221 West Squantum St., North Quincy, which would include rustproofing of automobiles. There is an existing gasoline station on the property, said owner Seymour Norman.

Police Chief Francis Finn and License Board Chairman John Gillis questioned the direction the exhaust system would take during rustproofing.

Calling the area Business A, but with residential homes in the area, Gillis asked the Health Department to investigate the company's other site on Wood Rd., Braintree before granting a permit.

In other action, the board, • Granted a request from the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association for a permit to conduct the annual "Sidewalk Bazaar" on July 17-18-19. Kenneth P. Fallon Jr., executive director, asked the board if he could procure one "blanket license" listing all of the participating businesses rather than 100 separate licenses as in previous years. The board granted Fallon's request with the stipulation that those serving food would be listed on the license.

• Granted a one-day alcoholic license to Cheryl Adams for a function at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall Saturday, May 24 from 8 p.m. to midnight.

• Granted a one-day alcoholic license to Donald J. Pickens for a wedding reception at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall from 4 to 9 p.m. Saturday, June 7.

• Granted a request from Lucille DiGravio for a permit to have a Flea Market-Car Wash June 21 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the North Quincy High School parking lot.

• Granted a request from the National Fire Protection Association for a one day alcoholic license for a wedding reception to be held June 28 at the National Fire Protection Building at Batterymarch Park.

• Granted a request from Dairy Mart, Inc., 542 East Squantum St., at Marina Bay for change of manager from Sylvia Barger to John O'Grady.

• Granted a request from the Rev. Daniel M. Graham of St. John's Parish to conduct its 11th annual St. Anthony Festival with a temporary beer and wine permit Friday June 6 from 6 to 11 p.m. and Saturday June 7 from noon to 11 p.m.

• Granted a request from Anneli Johnson of the Quincy High School Band Parents' Association for a Flea Market May 10 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Woodward Ave., behind Quincy High School.

• Heard complaints by residents near the Piccarini Auto and Towing at 24 Raymond St., Quincy. Area residents complained that buses, trailers have been parked outside the fence instead of inside. Noting that the company, which began as a towing company has expanded far beyond that service, Chief Francis Finn said a show cause hearing would be held next week to see why the "license should not be revoked."

LaRaia Wants City To Acquire Old Courthouse

The City Council referred to the mayor Monday night a resolve introduced by Councilor Joseph LaRaia that the city consider acquiring the old Quincy Court House on Coddington St. for future public use.

However, should that occur, it would present a major problem to the developers of the proposed $54 million President's Place in downtown Quincy who hope to acquire that property, according to Planning Director James Lydon.

In a letter to the mayor, LaRaia stated:

"Presently, as we know, the Courthouse is being rented from the County and we should continue this method of renting it as long as the need for a (Quincy Junior) college annex exists.

"However, if the property becomes available, we should not lose it for commercial development."

"The building and land provide open space, parking and very possibly in the near future, a consolidation of city services presently housed at the Health Center and the Public Works Administration building on Sea St.

"The Public Works building could always be made available for rental because of its convenient location and with its parking and availability for other public or commercial use.

"Presently, the Registry of Motor Vehicles is looking for additional space and will be vacating its existing facility on Broad St.

"The old Courthouse building can also provide much needed auditorium space and other cultural exhibit use that is presently lacking in the city. There is also the potential to expand this building since two-thirds of the site is a one-story structure.

"I realize the area is being considered for condominium and commercial development, but I do not think we should pass up this invaluable resource that — once lost — could never be recaptured."

Lydon said that the courthouse is a "big part" of the developers' plans for President's Place.

"It's important to the developers that it be included in the project," he said.

LaRaia said that he spoke to Mayor Francis McCauley about the resolve, and the mayor said he would direct it to the planning director.

Lydon said he did not think the city would take the courthouse because of the cost involved.

MacDonald Stepping Down As Building Inspector

The city will readvertise for a new Building Inspector this weekend following the announcement by Allan MacDonald that he will retire July 1, from the $37,238 per year position after 35 years with the city.

Mayor Francis McCauley said that MacDonald informed him of his plans a few months ago.

A committee comprised of MacDonald, Personnel Director David Smith and the mayor's Administrative Assistant, Arthur Foley then began searching for a replacement.

Lawrence Cotton of Quincy accepted the job last Thursday for about $42,000 a year, but changed his mind Friday, McCauley said. He cited personal reasons.

McCauley said that salary

ALLAN F. MACDONALD was not a problem.

The mayor said that eight or nine people had applied for the position, and five were interviewed.

MacDonald started with the city as assistant building inspector Feb. 26, 1951, and was promoted to building inspector Sept. 7, 1966, according to Smith.

"I've known Allan for many years," said McCauley, "and he's done an excellent job."

"It's a very demanding job, and buildings have become more sophisticated."

"He's run a very good department, and he also serves on the Quincy License Board."

"Allan is one individual who has always had the city's best interest at heart."

"We will miss him, and wish him well."

Creedon, Boston Man In Court May 14 On Rape Charge

Former School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon and a Boston man are scheduled to appear at Quincy District Court May 14, in connection with the alleged rape of a woman in Creedon's Quincy home.

Creedon and Dennis M. Anderson, 31, of 27 West Dedham St., Boston, are both charged with rape and indecent assault and battery on a person 14 years of age or older.

Both have pleaded innocent.

They are scheduled to appear at a probable cause hearing at 9 a.m.

Creedon was arrested and charged shortly after the alleged incident occurred March 21.

Anderson was arrested Saturday morning after Quincy police received information that he would be at Washington St., Boston, according to Det. Thomas Healey.

Other officers involved in the arrest were Det. Kevin Murphy and Det. Jack Smith, Healey said.

The alleged victim told police at the time that she was picked up by the two men in Boston's South End and raped in Creedon's Quincy home on Viden St.

She entered the car willingly, according to police.

Car Totalled

A 38-year-old Abington woman was taken to Quincy City Hospital with minor visible injury after she apparently lost control of her car in Quincy Sq., early Sunday, struck a traffic island and overturned two traffic light poles.

Patricia Burke of 25 Bayberry Ave., was treated and released.

Her car was totalled in the accident at Hancock and Washington St. near City Hall, police said.

No charges were brought against the woman, according to police.

The Meanest Mother

Editor's Note: The following anonymous article first appeared in The Quincy Sun in 1971 and from time to time since then we have had requests from readers to reprint it.

Because Sunday is Mother's Day we feel it is quite appropriate this week to pay this tribute to all the "mean" mothers everywhere.

I had the meanest Mother in the whole world.

While other kids ate candy for breakfast, I had to have cereal, eggs or toast. When others had cokes and candy for lunch, I had to eat a sandwich. As you guessed, my supper was different from the other kids too.

But at least I wasn't alone in my suffering. My sisters and two brothers had the same mean Mother as I did. My Mother insisted upon knowing where we were at all times. You'd think we were on a chain gang. She had to know who our friends were and what we were doing. She insisted if we said we'd be gone one hour that we be gone one hour or less—not one hour and one minute.

I am nearly ashamed to admit it, but she actually struck us. Not once but each time we did as we pleased. Can you imagine someone actually hitting a child just because he disobeyed. Now you can begin to see how mean she really was.

The worst is yet to come. We had to be in bed by nine each night and up early the next morning. We couldn't sleep till noon like our friends. So while they slept my Mother actually had the nerve to break the child labor law. She made us work. We had to wash dishes, make beds, learn to cook and all sorts of cruel things. I believe she laid awake at night thinking up mean things to do to us.

She always insisted upon our telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, even if it killed us—it nearly did.

By the time we were teenagers, she was much wiser and our life became even more unbearable. None of this tooting the horn of a car for us to come running. She embarrassed us to no end by making our dates and friends come to the door to get us.

I forgot to mention, while my friends were dating at the mature age of 12 and 13, my old fashioned Mother refused to let me date until the age of 15 and 18. Fifteen that is, if you dated only to go to a school function, and that was only once or twice a year.

My Mother was a complete failure as a Mother. None of us has ever been arrested, divorced or beaten by his mate. Each of my brothers served his time in the service of this country.

And whom do we have to blame for this terrible way we turned out? You're right. Our mean Mother.

Look at all the things that we missed. We never got to march in a protest parade, nor to take part in a riot, burn draft cards, and a million and one things that our friends did. She forced us to grow into God-fearing, educated, honest adults.

Using this as a background, I am trying to raise my three children. I stand a little taller and I am filled with pride when my children call me mean.

Because, you see, I thank God. He gave me the meanest Mother in the whole world.

Can Koch Stick It Out?

Richard Koch, Jr. could have taken the easy way out and resigned his City Council seat.

So, why did he decide instead to juggle serving as a city councillor in Quincy while living and working on the Cape?

That's a long drive to and from city council meetings and city council committee meetings.

The main reason may have been that he didn't want to leave and cost the city between $80,000 and $100,000—maybe more—for special preliminary and final elections to pick a successor.

He didn't want to be remembered for that.

Mayor Francis McCauley who has been known to squeeze a penny until Abe Lincoln turns blue, didn't want special elections, either. Not if they're going to cost that kind of money.

He and Koch are close and no doubt McCauley mentioned the cost of special elections to him.

McCauley may have had another reason to want Koch to stay on. Koch is chairman of the council's Finance Committee.

If Koch left, Councillor John Lydon who is vice chairman of that powerful committee, would have moved up to chairman. Lydon and McCauley are not that close.

The big question now is: Can Koch stick it out for the next 19 months?

It shouldn't be too much of a hassle for Koch in May and June. And during July and August the council will take a summer breather.

But, some observers are wondering, what about the winter and bad weather? Will driving to and from the Cape in January or February twice a month to regular council meetings and to committee meetings in between be just too much to hack?

There is speculation that Koch will make it through this year and step down in January or February.

By staying on until the end of this year he will save the city the cost of a special preliminary and final elections.

And, if that was his main reason for staying on, he would have accomplished that and could then resign, leaving the selection of a successor up to the remaining eight councillors without it costing the city a cent.

Perhaps the man most interested in all of this is Ron Iacubucci who has run in the last two elections as the only non-incumbent council at-large candidate.

He no doubt would be happy to have Koch stay in the council the rest of this year.

It would mean he would not have to run for the seat against in what would be a crowded horse race.

Potential candidates who would run for the seat this year if it were open include Council President Steve McGrath who now represents Ward 5; School Committeewoman Mary Collins, Tim Cahill, former Quincy High School wrestling coach and now a downtown businessman; and a few others including, maybe, former Councillor John Quinn.

"It was a tough decision," says Iacubucci of Koch deciding to stay on. "You must respect it. He obviously wanted to save the city some money."

Iacubucci certainly wouldn't complain if Koch leaves next year, though.

He apparently has the job locked up if the remaining councillors make the selection next year.

Iacubucci reportedly has seven votes among the eight councillors, and could probably make it unanimous.

But, Koch could surprise everyone and stick it out for the remainder of his term.

And then, it's back to the ballot box.

May 13, at 8 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St. League member Mary Quinn will speak about Quincy's Household Toxic Waste Collection Day May 17.

The public is invited. Leftover household hazardous products may be brought to the Department of Public Works yard, 55 Sea St. on Collection Day, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

A hazardous waste firm, Inland Pollution of Braintree, has been hired by the city to seal the household toxics in 55 gallon drums and transport them out of state for disposal.

Examples of household hazardous wastes are wood preservatives, old paint and paint thinner, pesticides and used motor oil.

These substances are a threat to the health and safety of people who may come in contact with them when unsealed portions are left out for trash pick-up, according to the Women Voters League. They are also contaminants of the environment when disposed of improperly in landfills and sewage systems, the league says.

This will be the first Household Hazardous Waste Collection Day in Quincy, although many other communities throughout the state have organized such pick-ups.

"We applaud the decision of Mayor Francis McCauley and Paul Anderson, Commissioner of Public Works, to allocate funds for this program, which will provide residents with a safe way to dispose of dangerous waste products," stated the league.

Readers Forum Post Office Seeks Cooperation From Dog Owners

Editor, The Quincy Sun: Managers of the three City post offices are requesting the cooperation of dog owners in minimizing the threat of dog bites to letter carriers serving Quincy, North Quincy and Wollaston delivery areas.

Incidents of dog bites increase dramatically as outdoor temperatures rise. Approximately half of the dog bites to carriers each year occur during the warm season, they said.

Postal Service statistics reveal that an average of 7000 letter carriers nationwide are bitten each year. During 1985, 99 letter carriers in the Boston area were bitten by someone's "Best Friend," and 37 bites have been reported to date in 1986.

The Postal Service suggests that dog owners keep their pets in an area away from the mailbox and the areas used by the carrier for access to the property. If the pet is not kept behind a secure fence, the owner should restrain the dog on a leash or keep it inside the house during the carrier's regular delivery hours.

The Postal Service said it has the right to protect its carriers by refusing to deliver mail to a household with an unrestrained or threatening dog, in some areas where dogs roam loose, delivery to an entire neighborhood could be affected.

Postal customers should also be made aware that they now seek legal action against dog owners to recover costs incurred by dog bites, they added. We hope that a cooperative effort by dog owners will not only benefit your letter carrier, but your friends and neighbors as well.

Quincy, Braintree Reject MTA Extension

Voters of Quincy and Braintree overwhelmingly rejected a proposal to extend Metropolitan Transit Authority rapid transit lines to the South Shore. Balloting in a special referendum was 11,463 to 1,909 against the proposal.

May 5-11

38 Years Ago

"The people have plainly said that they do not want MTA transit service and it is now up to the special commission to bring in something better," said Quincy Mayor Charles A. Ross.

MTA Chairman Carroll L. Meins explained to a public hearing at City Hall a plan under which Quincy and Braintree would shoulder the entire deficit for South Shore Commuters boarding trains at their stations.

He said fares from Norfolk Downs and Wollaston stations would be set at 15 cents, Quincy and Quincy Adams stations at 20 cents and Braintree station at 25 cents.

Charged Rep. Avery W. Gilkerson (R-Quincy): "Recognizing the fact that Mr. Meins was formerly a distinguished Boston politician, isn't this whole proposition a part of your plan to bring Quincy into Boston?"

Meins said it wasn't.

Bridesmaids speak out

Taking part in the approximately 2,500,000 weddings this year will be a whopping 10,000,000 bridesmaids. What will the experience be like for them?

According to Millie Martini, Associate Editor of BRIDE'S Magazine, "being a bridesmaid sweeps the bride's closest friends right into the fun of wedding planning. However, by accepting this honor, they must be prepared for the responsibility as well as the potential problems."

Based on the theory that it pays to take a lesson from history, a recent issue of BRIDE'S lists the most common complaints voiced by past bridesmaids, and suggests ways in which this year's brides can help smooth them out.

• What they wore — Perhaps the most frequently heard complaint is that the bridesmaids didn't like the dresses the bride chose for them: They were the wrong color, the wrong style, were too expensive or couldn't be worn again.

While it's hard for the bride to please everyone, you can make the effort by trying this approach. At first, take only your maid or matron of honor with you shopping and narrow down the almost limitless choice to three or so styles.

Make sure to use your judgment in picking styles that will flatter your attendants' varied figures. For instance, full skirts and blouses tops look good on almost anyone. You might try to include in your choices one two-piece or shorter style your maids will be able to wear again.

Once you've made this preliminary selection, you're ready to schedule a time when the rest of the maids can come into the bridal shop to vote on the final decision.

• How much they spent — Costs can add up when you consider that it's usual for attendants to pay for their own outfits, including shoes, accessories, and perhaps an extra dress for the rehearsal dinner; wedding and shower gifts; and transportation, lodging and meals if they're coming from out of town.

Just a few of the many ways to help them out: See if friends and relatives could put your maids up, let them select their own shoes (or wear a pair they already have), and provide all meals.

• What their duties were — The problem was that no one really explained what they were supposed to do. For instance, many a maid was even more nervous than the bride when she came down the aisle because she hadn't been given a chance to practice.

So, at the rehearsal, give your bridesmaids plenty of time to walk through their parts, including passing your bouquet and reading any special Scripture passages.

As for their duties before the wedding, simply ask them for help when you need it — in choosing your dress, addressing invitations, welcoming out-of-town guests — but be sensitive to how busy their own lives are.

occupy 40 percent of the space, he said.

Sixty-six percent of the 3.6 acre project site is owned by the developers, the Ricciardi Company of Quincy and Campanelli Industries of Braintree, according to Lydon. Thirty-four percent is not.

Between 1200 and 1400 new, permanent jobs will be created as a result of the project, said Lydon. There will be 500 construction jobs connected with the 18 month project, he said.

Taxes paid to the city will increase from the current $110,000, to $822,597, including $513,147 for commercial and $309,450 for residential, according to Lydon.

Final design has not yet been completed, according to the Planning Director. That should be ready and before the council in about a month, he said. An urban development plan would be before the council June 15, and if necessary, an acquisition vote August 15, he said.

Councillor Patricia Toland said, "the project will be the nucleus of the historic district. We have to give it all the support we can. We want it to be as close to perfect as possible."

the island is located. In addition to organizing the meeting tonight, Nutley has spearheaded a city-wide letter writing campaign to the governor.

"The taking is a great idea and is certainly worth pursuing," said Councillor

Patricia Toland. "Hopefully it will be successful."

Rep. Paul Harold said later that the action also has his "full support."

"It would be a guarantee for the long range preservation and protection of Moon Island.

"In the short run, it would be part of the strategy to try to prevent siting of the House of Correction or other City of Boston facility."

Harold said Tuesday he had heard no response on the taking from the City of Boston or the legislative delegation from Boston.

Creative Hair Works Gives Specialized Personal Touch

By DAN CONNELLY
If your hair looks good, you feel good. And that's how people feel when they come out of Creative Hair Works at 58 Billings Rd., North Quincy.

Providing this highly specialized personal touch in hair treatment for the entire family are two Quincy women, Jean Cardia and Susan Amato.

Jean's credentials are 15 years in hair coiffure, and Susan has a successful 11 year tenure.

The spark that ignited their decision to open a modern salon occurred three years ago while both were sharing duties at a neighboring community hair salon.

"We discovered we worked well together," says Jean.

Soon after, they shopped for the perfect location and found it in North Quincy.

"What attracted us to this growing small business community is a heavily populated residential district within easy walking distance to stores," Jean adds.

The decision was obviously profitable. In addition to Jean and Susan, three other stylists share the busy schedule of appointments.

Both young women credit a large part of their hair salon success to their schooling, and hands-on professional experience.

Among their clients are men, who today seek more stylish hair care.

Both women agree that like skin, hair needs special care.

As an example: they say, you can expect summer to do a number on your hair. The reason? Hair suffers double damage. Sun exposure weakens and bleaches it, salt water and chemicals from pools cause hair to become porous. The result: hair loses its shine, feels drier, rougher.

People who find themselves in this kind of fix, or who haven't a good head of hair, can turn to Creative Hair Works.

Jean says she loves doing a child's first haircut.

"Some salons are iffy about scheduling these types of appointments, but not us. We love the challenge and bring the one to do that first haircut is a special event."

Like other services a hair salon is ever changing. Jean and Susan will continue to do their "homework" to meet those challenging changes with affordable prices.

Encore Quality Consignment: Quality At The Right Price

The cost-conscious buyer is today applauding Encore Quality Consignment Shop at 66 Billings Rd., North Quincy, for its continuing fine performance in offering quality goods at reduced prices.

Mrs. Gail Buccini of South Quincy, a mother of seven children and grandmother of four, opened Encore in 1979. Today she boasts a clientele of over 2000 steady customers.

A consignment shop works like this:

Each Wednesday and Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. goods are submitted. Gail sets the sale price with an agreed 50-50 share in the profit. After 60 days if the item has not moved, it is picked up by the owner, or, by mutual consent, it is donated to a shelter for the needy.

Gail's venture into the world of business began when, after raising a family, she took a friend's advice to realize a lifelong ambition "to do something," and opened Encore. Two years later she outgrew that first location and moved next door.

An unpredictable public doesn't disturb Gail one bit.

"Two years ago it was rare to see a young person in this kind of shop. But obviously they're becoming buying smart. Today, they're looking for designer styles among our inventory at one third the retail price tag," she said.

"I can't count the number of times that I've seen dresses, some worn only once but outgrown, on the racks. Shoes are another item, some brand new," she added.

The store's inventory also features jewelry, bric-a-brac, draperies, bedspreads and handcrafted items.

Sharing in Encore's success are daughters Lynce in sales and Laurie on bookkeeping. Son Michael is also supportive and husband Joseph is within walking distance. He operates Mr. Sub sandwich shop and Purdy's Ice Cream, both in the North Quincy shopping center.

Gail had visions of becoming an artist while a student at the Rhode Island School of Design, but bringing up a family curtailed that.

Making the shop profitable has been hard work but it hasn't slowed this grandmother of four.

Despite her Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. store hours, she has found time to take a course in interior decorating at Newbury Junior College for "my next life," she says with a laugh.

There are many misconceptions about funeral costs. That's not surprising, really, as there are other charges involved in a funeral, then those of the funeral director . . . cemetery or cremation charge . . . monuments or markers . . . newspaper death notices and flowers. Many also believe that funeral directors will not discuss funeral or burial costs frankly and specifically. Nothing could be further from the truth. Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., adjacent to the Quincy Historical Society Home, stands ready to give you whatever cost information you desire at any time. Roger Hamel, Donald McCarthy and Joseph Thompson are thoroughly trained in the profession they have chosen and ready to discuss frankly, funeral cost information. Call the pre-need specialists of Quincy and the South Shore, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home at 472-5888. That's 472-5888.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK.

There's nobody like a mother! She is a very special kind of person! One can always tell who's a mother, because she . . . Says, with confidence, In early pregnancy, maternal instinct will guide her in raising her family and promptly reads every child psychology book available . . . Says babies aren't as fragile as they seem . . . then makes countless checks to make sure the sleeping child is safe . . . Says there will never be "any such animal" in the house - then trains it, feeds it and is saddest of all when the animal is gone . . . Goes shopping for herself and comes home with something for her child . . . Warns her child that if he takes what appears to be a rash step, he is responsible for the consequences - then is the first to come to his aid . . . Knows that her teenager is responsible, and lets him use the car - then lets awake in a dark room until he's safely home . . . fears her offspring is much too young to leave home, to marry, or to start a family - then is the first to watch for advertisements for apartments, to look at wedding gowns or to buy a baby toy . . . Promises herself she won't spoil a grandchild - then decides it is one of her privileges as a grandmother . . . Yes, you can always tell a mother, because she is constantly changing - and yet never changes at all . . .

'You Have To Take Chances' Challenger Tragedy Would Not Deter NQHS Teacher-Pilot

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

"I feel very firmly that in life you have to take chances," said Marilyn Burysz.

"If you don't, you won't have a very full life."

That's not something the North Quincy High School teacher will have to worry about.

She's managed to fill her life with a teaching career and interests as varied as piloting a single engine plane and traveling to such places as the Soviet Union and Nairobi, Kenya.

Burysz, a Brockton resident, was also an applicant for the teacher in space program.

It seemed a natural step, she said, because "I'd been involved in aerospace education for so long."

"I never thought I'd be selected, but part of me saw me going up in the space shuttle."

She is past president and newsletter editor of the Massachusetts Aerospace Education Association.

Burysz is also a volunteer Regional Resource Person for the Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum and is available to speak to school and community groups.

The Challenger tragedy hit her particularly hard.

"I had met Ron McNair and Mike Smith, and I was absolutely devastated when the shuttle exploded."

"But I never thought, 'that could have been me.'"

"It wouldn't deter me from applying again either."

"The chances of that happening again are rather removed."

It also hasn't deterred her from flying a single engine Piper Warrior out of Taunton. She flies sporadically during the winter, and about once a week during the summer.

Teacher Profiles

"I was always interested in airplanes," said Burysz, who has a commercial pilot's license. "But I never thought I'd fly."

"Once I found out about them, I was hooked."

She has flown for 14 years and considers it a challenge.

"I don't fly that often, and you have to be aware of a lot of things. I'm not a daredevil. You're trained to fly."

"You use many skills, both mental and physical, and the results are very tangible. You know if you've done a good or bad job."

Burysz enjoys polishing the skill involved in flying.

"I'm always competing with myself."

"I also enjoy the idea of doing something everyone else doesn't do."

"There's always been a mystique about flying."

Burysz performs precision maneuvers in the air rather than flying from point A to point B.

Her travelling is in the form of visits to places somewhat off the beaten path.

"The Soviet Union was the destination of my first trip in 1970-1971."

"I had just seen the movie, 'Dr. Zhivago,' and it enraptured me."

"I enjoyed the trip very much. It was in the winter so it was even more romantic."

She visited Kiev, but suspects that the Chernobyl nuclear power station, which suffered a meltdown at one of its four reactors and a subsequent reactor fire recently, had not yet been built.

The World Aerospace Education Congress brought her to Nairobi, Kenya, in 1985.

"They have a totally different culture," she said. "A photographic safari was the best part."

Burysz has also visited Egypt as well as East and West Germany.

Her next trip may be to Poland, the country of her ancestry, for workshops on its culture.

One thing that she has acquired from the trips is an appreciation for all the comforts and conveniences of this country.

Another thing is a collec-

tion of slides of her travels which she can share with her students.

"When I'm not teaching, I'm always clipping material, organizing things and seeing how I can relate them to my students."

Burysz teaches home economics, but it is not limited to cooking and sewing as in years past.

It also includes such things as family living and survival skills for boys and girls.

A teacher since 1968, she stresses that males and females should be prepared for the dual roles of wage earner and home manager.

"It's reality," she said.

She also wants her students to feel good about themselves, which is not always the case.

"One exercise I use is to have students write down 10 things that they like about themselves. Many of them say they can't."

"When I ask them to write 10 things they don't like about themselves, they say,

"that's easy.""

Burysz gets much satisfaction from teaching.

"I feel that I'm doing something useful. I'm sharing things with students that they need to know...values and realities of life."

"Teaching also keeps me feeling young," she said.

Editor's Note:

Marilyn Burysz was selected for a teacher profile by a panel from the Quincy Education Association for her work as a professional educator and an involved community person.

Panelists are Deanna White-Hebert, Snug Harbor

School; Paul Phillips, North Quincy High School; Jack Buckley, president, Central Middle School; Thomas Walsh, Quincy High School; and Mary Curtin, Atherton High School.

Teacher profiles will continue in The Quincy Sun.

Next: Allen Goldfarb.

This Sunday, Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center will welcome as its guest preacher, the Rev. Dr. Robert E. Luccock, retired professor of Preaching and Worship at the Boston University School of Theology.

Ordained a Methodist he has served in both Methodist and United Church of Christ congregations. Rev. Luccock will lead the church in celebrating the Festival of the Christian Home preaching on the topic, "Have You Chosen Your Ancestors Yet?"

The Lay Scripture reader, Wendell C. Cosgrove, will read as the Old Testament lesson, Psalm 16. Rev. Luccock will read portions of Hebrews 11 as the New Testament lesson. There will be no chapel service this Sunday. The sanctuary service is at 10 a.m. and is recorded live over WIDA 1300kc. Cassette tapes of the service are available by contacting the church office during the week. Cost is about $2.

As part of the Mother's Day celebration, the Children's Choir will sing "For The Beauty of The Earth" by C. Kocher. A special Mother's Choir will join with the Chancel Choir in singing as the offertory anthem "Let All Things Now Living" by K.K. Davis as well as singing "Lift Thine Eyes To The Mountains" by Mendelssohn as a second anthem. The choirs are under the direction of organist, Peter E. Krasinski.

As an added treat for Mother's Day, a four month old will be baptized into the fellowship of the church. Emily Katherine Rand, daughter of Ronald T. Rand and Bernadita B. (Bautista) Rand will be baptized by the Rev. Joel F. Huntington, associate minister, and liturgist for the morning. Emily's godparents will be her aunt and uncle Judith E. Rand and Robert A. Rand.

All of the children will share in the early part of the worship service. For the rest of the hour children will go to their Sunday School classes. In addition there is nursery and toddler care provided. Alana O'Shea, the Early Childhood Coordinator, will be present to supervise the care of young children and greet new families.

At 11 a.m. there will be a fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor. Individuals and families from the community are welcome to share in the worship and fellowship, as well as to enroll children in the Sunday School. Additional information can be obtained about Bethany by calling the church office at 479-7300.

THE O'REILLY'S

The O'Reilly's To Perform At Memorial Church Friday

The O'Reillys will perform traditional folk music Friday at 7:30 p.m. at Memorial Church, Newbury Ave., and Sagamore Sts. North Quincy.

The performance is part of the inaugural event of the cultural presentations of the Atlantic Arts Council. There is a suggested donation of $5 for adults and $2.50 for children over the age of 12.

The group includes John Greene, Paul Egan, Bob McDonough, George Ghirore and Bill Martin. Three of the members have been playing together since the late 1960s; the present group of five have been performing since 1975. Recently instrumentalist Tim Jumper and bassist Wally Greeley have also performed with the group.

Their repertoire includes ballads, sea chanteys, drinking songs, songs for children and novelty pieces. They use a variety of instruments such as the guitar, banjo, mandolin, bouzouki, flute, penny whistle, and hammered dulcimer.

Their music ranges from humorous, rowdy and sensitive, and their varied instrumentation, imaginative arrangements and energetic voices are all prepared with a wonderful Irish wit.

The group has appeared in concert with the Clancy Brothers, folk musician John McCutcheon, guitarist Guy Van Duser and Irish ballader Seamus Kennedy.

Members of the community are invited to attend the worship service.

Mother's Day Breakfast At Squantum Church

"When It Is Difficult to Be Christian" was the title of the sermon preached Sunday morning at the First Church of Squantum by the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor.

The Chancel Choir sang "Come, Thou Font of Every Blessing." Mary Ruth Scott directed. The hymns sung by the congregation included "Praise to the Lord, the Almighty," "Be Thou My Vision," "Lead On, O King Eternal" and "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

Ushers were Steward Scott and Lore Wallin. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Barbara Edgar and Ruth Swenson, who were also the greeters for the service.

Waltham Too Hot For Quincy

Quincy's baseball team, which had won two games in a row to even its record at 5-5, ran into a hot-hitting Waltham team Monday and lost, 7-2.

Bob Sylvia's Presidents met Weymouth North yesterday (Wednesday), will play at Brockton Monday and will meet North Quincy next Thursday night at 7 in the first night game at Adams Field.

"We had won two fine games in a row and we needed a win against Waltham, but they played an outstanding game and executed well," Sylvia said. "They hit the ball hard and got some tremendous pitching."

Larry Taglieri pitched well for Quincy but gave up a three-run homer early and Waltham added a run on a perfectly-executed suicide squeeze.

Tom Logan, who has been hitting well, and Dave Tocchio had the only Quincy hits.

Quincy defeated Newton North, 7-2, last Thursday, as Sean Flavin pitched 5 2/3 innings of four-hit ball and Logan hit two home runs.

Logan's first homer followed Dan Biagini's single in the fifth and put Quincy ahead to stay, 4-2. He belted a long, three-run shot in the seventh. Biagini led off the game with a solo homer. Taglieri, who had a double, picked up the save retiring the final four batters.

Earlier in the week Quincy edged North Quincy, 3-1, in one of the season's best games, as T.J. Steen, making his first start after recovering from a pulled hamstring, pitched a six-hitter and Logan had two runs batted in.

The Presidents, 2-2 in the Suburban League, scored in the third when Logan drove in Tocchio with a fielders choice grounder. After North tied it in the fourth, Logan put Quincy ahead in the sixth, driving in Tocchio, who had doubled. Flavin drove in the final run with a double.

Raiderettes Slip

After winning its opening meet over Brookline, the North Quincy girls' track team lost to Waltham and Brockton, despite taking seven events against Brockton.

The Raiderettes will be at Newton North May 13 and will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin May 15 at Veterans Memorial Stadium at 3:15 p.m.

Brockton's depth proved too much last Friday for the North girls, who took seven first place but lost, 80-47.

North's winners were Robin Guillou in the 100 (12.1), Karen Cashman in the half mile (2:37.5), Tricia Barrett in the mile (5:58), Tricia Leary in the two-mile (13:05), Theresa Collings in the high jump (4-8) and Julie Killion in the javelin (106-10) and Gloria Gougian in the discus (91-5-1 2).

Placing second were Ann Toland in the two mile and Gougian in the shot put.

Taking third places were Patty Feeney in the 100, Collings in the 220, Bridget Toland in the mile, Jennifer Rafferty in the hurdles and high jump and Guillou in the shot put.

NEWSCARRIERS WANTED
Here's a chance to earn extra money by building a Quincy Sun home delivery route.
Telephone: 471-3100

Sun Sports Unlucky Raiders Blanked By Brockton

The North Quincy baseball team continues to play in tough luck and, despite one of its best performances of the season Mondays, lost to Brockton, the top-rated team in Eastern Mass., 3-0, dropping its record to 2-8.

The Raiders played at Cambridge Rindge and Latin yesterday (Wednesday), will host Newton North Monday at 3:30 at Montclair Field, will be home to Waltham Wednesday at 3:30 at Montclair and will meet Quincy next Thursday night at 7 in the first game at Adams Field.

Dan Santry pitched his second outstanding game in a row as he held the top-ranked Brockton team to seven hits, struck out one and didn't issue a base on balls.

"This was an excellent game," said Coach Leo Donovan. "They scored two runs in the third inning on a hit batter, a double and single, and scored another in the fourth on a wild throw on a pickoff play. This was one of our best games and we didn't throw this one away, we just lost to a fine team."

North was held to four hits, singles by Chris Gray, Ted Shionis, Billy Murphy and Mark DiMattio.

Last Friday North lost to Brookline, 6-3, despite a three-hitter by Chris Cody, who struck out five.

Chris Ricciutti hit an RBI triple in a two-run sixth inning to tie the score at 3-3. A wild pitch and an error accounted for the winning runs. Santry had an RBI single for the Raiders.

In their previous game the Raiders lost to Quincy, 3-1, in one of the best games of the season.

Neil Hatfield pitched a five-hitter but lost to Quincy's T.K. Steen, who allowed six hits.

North's lone run came when Shionis drove in Ricciutti, who had two hits.

Earlier in the week North edged Everett, 7-6, as DiMattio pitched all the way for his first varsity win.

North took a 4-1 lead with Gray, Hatfield and Chris Rossi having hits for two runs. Everett rallied for four runs in the fourth to lead, 5-4.

but Ricciutti capped a three-run burst in the bottom half with a two-run single. DiMattio allowed six hits, struck out four and walked two.

Rossi had three hits. Gray two, Ricciutti a two-run single, Shionis a two-run double and Hatfield a single.

Thing May Be Getting Better For Quincy Girls

Things may be looking up for the Quincy girls' softball team which, with only one veteran, has been having a rough season.

Monday Barbara Webster's First Ladies turned in one of their best games of the year in losing to a strong Waltham team, 8-5, dropping their record to 1-7.

The Quincy girls will host Brockton Monday at 3:30 p.m. at Faxon Field and next Wednesday will be home to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, also at 3:30.

"I was extremely pleased with our showing against Waltham," said Webster. "We have scored our share of runs but our pitchers have been unable to find the plate and we have made many costly errors. But today Diane Heeney, a sophomore, made her first start and went all the way with an excellent effort. She allowed seven hits and, best of all, gave up only three walks. And Susan Cullen, who had never caught before this season, did a terrific job. She has an arm like a gun and covered bunts well."

Kristin Curtin, who has hit safely in every game but one, was 2-for-4 and Terry Duggan, Tina Calabro, Christine Menz and Marion Miller all had RBI singles. Last Thursday Quincy lost to Newton North, 17-1, in what Webster called "our worst game of the year."

Newton scored seven runs in the second and five more in the third, mostly on walks and errors.

Earlier in the week Quincy lost to North Quincy, 11-3, as it was held to six hits by three North pitchers. Anne Svizzero was the losing pitcher.

—TOM SULLIVAN

North Girls Bow To Waltham, Brockton

The North Quincy girls' softball team had improved to 4-3 with two impressive victories last week, but the Raiderettes bowed to Brockton, the No. 7 team in Eastern Mass., 9-2, Monday.

Mary Pratt's North girls will play at Weymouth South Friday and will go to Newton North Monday.

Last Friday North defeated Brookline, 7-4, with Ann Anderlionis turning in an outstanding performance.

She pitched and batted her way to the win as she pitched hitless ball for five innings, giving up her only two hits in the sixth when Brookline rallied to score three runs.

Ann's two-run homer in the fourth sparked the Raiderettes. Colleen Hannon and Karen Reister had two hits apiece. Karen, a freshman, leads the Suburban League in hitting.

Earlier in the week North, after losing its league opener to Waltham, came back to roll over Quincy, 11-3.

Anderlionis led the 15-hit attack with two triples and two singles. The Raiderettes jumped off to a 6-0 lead in the first inning and it was clear sailing after that.

Noreen Connolly scattered five hits over five innings to record her first win and Anderlionis and Kristen Drake each pitched an inning of relief. Nancy Leonard, Ann McGuigan, Reister, Drake and Hannon also had two hits each.

Marshall In Good Season At Suffolk

Quincy's Mike Marshall is having an outstanding season for the Suffolk University baseball team, posting a 6-0 pitching record as of last week.

Marshall pitched a six-hitter as Suffolk rolled over Stonehill, 18-3, last Friday, improving the team's record to 18-9.

Last Saturday Suffolk split with Bryant, winning, 5-4, and losing the second game, 13-6.

John Christiani of Quincy, who went in with a 3-0 record, was the losing pitcher and Gary DiNardo, also of Quincy, pitched excellent relief. DiNardo also plays the infield for Suffolk.

Suffolk (19-10) is hoping for a berth in the ECAC playoffs.

$8,000

Speedboat Stolen

A 17-foot Donzi inboard-outboard speedboat worth $8,000 was reported stolen from Mass. Engine & Auto, 45 Hancock St., Quincy.

Also reported stolen was a V 8 motor and boat trailer, according to police.

No Draft Call Disappoints Dudek

The most disappointed person in Quincy last week during the National Football League draft had to be North Quincy's Joe Dudek.

Dudek, who broke the collegiate touchdown record with 79 and is third in the history of college football in yards gained,--5570--behind only Tony Dorsett and Charles White, while leading Plymouth State College to four straight New England Conference Titles, had been expected to be drafted in the middle rounds.

But Dudek, with members of his family and friends, stayed glued to the TV set from 8 in the morning until midnight and was not drafted.

A Dallas Cowboys representative did call at 9 p.m. to ask if he would still be at that number, but never did call back.

"I'm really disappointed and a little angry," Dudek said. "I thought I would be drafted in the middle rounds. It was really bad."

Most observers felt if he had made a good performance in the Japan Bowl he would be drafted no lower than the fourth round. However, he was still hampered by an ankle injury suffered in his final game at Plymouth State and saw very little action.

The former North Quincy High standout, who led the Raiders to successive wins over Quincy in his junior and senior years, was virtually unknown outside of New England until Sports Illustrated put him on the cover last December and touted him for the Heisman Trophy. He even finished ninth in the voting and received the sixth most first place votes.

Scouts had been skeptical of his speed, size, strength and lack of collegiate competition. He hadn't caught many passes or blocked very much.

Many feel that he might be better off signing as a free agent. His agent, Bob Wolf, has been negotiating with several teams, including the Patriots.

Dudek talked with Randy Vataha, former Patriot's star, who reminded him that he was a 17th round draft pick who made it big in pro football as a wide receiver.

Dudek headed back to school the day after the draft, more determined than ever to succeed.

"The first thing I'm going to do is hit the weights," he said. "It just got me so mad. Any training camp I go into, I'm going to be one angry player. I want to prove them all wrong."

Morrisette Holds Reunion

Morrisette Legion held its third reunion for all its baseball players from 1945 to the present last week with a fine attendance of former players.

Coach Ray Cattaneo was toastmaster and introduced the head table guests, Frank Osborne, who set up the reunion; assistant coaches Connie Carozzi and Billy Corcoran, Norfolk County Sheriff Cliff Marshall and former state Rep. Joseph Brett. Morrisette's "outside commander" and its biggest baseball fan.

Cattaneo also introduced former longtime coaches Nick Malvesti and Bruno Carloni, and several others who have worked with the baseball program.

Commander-elect Charles Brooks spoke briefly, as did Marshall, whose three sons have played with Morrisette.

Cattaneo introduced the members of the post's first team in 1945 and the members of the 1975 team, the state and Northeast regional champions who played in the Legion World Series in South Dakota. Members of most of the other teams were present.

The coach explained that he, Carozzi and Corcoran are starting their 17th year as coaches and none of their teams have finished lower than second place in Zone 6.

Malvesti and Carloni also had outstanding success, their teams winning numerous Zone 6 titles and playing in the state tournament many times.

Cattaneo presented Osborne with a jacket in appreciation of his work over the years in many capacities.

Tom Sullivan of the Quincy Sun presented him with a Sun I-Shirt in appreciation for his cooperation sending in reports of the games over the years.

Quincy Has First Track Team Since 1980

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy High has not had a boys' track team since 1980 but the sport has been revived this spring with football coach Jack Raymer taking over as coach, assisted by John Taglieri, who is coaching the field events.

"We hope to revive interest in track and I had a fine turnout of 46," said Raymer. "They have worked hard and they represented themselves and the school well in meets with Waltham and Brookline, two Suburban League powers."

The Presidents meet Brockton Tuesday, will face

Cambridge Rindge and Latin May 16 at Newton North and will wind up the dual meet season against North Quincy May 19 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Among the standouts in the field events have been Dave Savage, Steve Picarski and Jeff Sprague in the shotput, Kevin Jolly and Adam McGregor (second and third in the two meets) in the discus, Chris Veneto, Dave Southwick and Ed Flavin (first in the Brookline meet) in the javelin, freshman Todd Kimmell, Jolly and Dave Murphy in the high jump, and Steve Freely, Ernie Light, Karl Staskiewicz, Fabio Sala, Bill Norton and Todd Kimmell in the long jump and triple jump.

In the running events the top performances have been turned in by sophomore Jim Kimmell and sophomore Mark Wisnes.

Kimmell took first and second in the first two meets in the 880 and Wisnes first and second in the two-mile.

High hurdlers are Staskiewicz and Ken Gurney and low hurdlers are Murphy and Light. McGregor, who placed in both meets, and Ron Luisi are running the 400 and Southwick and Scott O'Brien placed in both meets in the 220. Veneto and Mark Porzio run the 100.

Norton, Luisi, McGregor and Jim Kimmell make up the 4x440 relay team, which placed first in the Brookline meet, and Southwick, Porzio, Don Parry and Veneto make up the 4x110 relay team.

"Considering this is Quincy's first spring track team in six years, the boys did very well against superior competition in the Brookline and Waltham meets," Raymer said. "We have been competitive and I hope interest will continue to increase and that Quincy will be well-represented in the future."

Phelan Guest Speaker At Little Loop Dinner

Gerard Phelan, wide receiver of the New England Patriots, presently on the injured reserve list, will be guest speaker at the Quincy Bowling Little Loop's 32nd and final - awards dinner, Wednesday evening, May 14, at the Montclair Men's Club, 93 Holbrook Rd., North Quincy, at 6:30 p.m.

Phelan, best known for catching the 48-yard miracle pass from Doug Flutie that enabled Boston College to down Miami in the Orange Bowl, on the last play of the nationally-televised game, 47-45, is working hard on a rehabilitation program under Ron O'Neil, head trainer.

President and dinner chairman Joe Gildea, assisted by treasurer Stan Kovalski, Sr.; and directors George Hatfield, Sr.; Stan Kovalski, Jr.; Jack Hatfield and Jim Vey, will present trophies to all winners of individual and team honors.

GERARD PHELAN

Final returns of the John A. Mullaney Memorial Bowls - thon to fight muscular dystrophy and related muscle diseases, will be announced, and a check presented to Henry Bosworth and Richard Koch, Sr., co-chairmen of the South Shore Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon committee.

Quincy Girls Lose To Brookline

The Quincy girls' track team lost to Brookline, 71-42, last week, dropping its record to 0-3 but Coach John Franceschini is pleased with the progress of the First Ladies.

"We are working very hard with some very young people," he said. "They are improving every day and the hard work should pay off in the end."

The field events are again led by senior Laurie Pitts in the javelin. Sophomores Patti and Gayle Morrell, juniors Sheila O'Connor and Deanna Crespi and freshmen Jessica Rutan and Beth Wexler have all done well in their running events as well as in the high jump, discus, shotput and long jump.

Seniors Janice Libby and Marylou Wirtz continue to shine in the long jump and are expected to be among the best in the Suburban League meet May 23.

The hurdlers are the team's strong points with Diane Parry, Jennifer Golden, Rene Gaura, Beth Wexler and Sarah Lemos all doing well in the 100 and 300 low hurdles.

Marylou Wirtz, a four-year veteran, is a threat to anyone in the 100-yard dash, while Debbie Thompson, Lorrie Barnes, Maureen Lewis and Kathy Cahill lead a strong middle distance corps.

Junior Julie Coste and sophomore Janine Quigley are doing a fine job in the mile and two-mile respectively.

"These kids never quit on themselves and are working toward the future with the team losing only four seniors," Franceschini said. "They are a pleasure to coach and should bring Quincy High success in the next few years. Most of them are competing in two and three events and doing a great job at it."

The First Ladies will be at Newton North next Thursday and will meet North Quincy May 20 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

6 City Employees To Be Honored May 13

Mayor Francis X. McCauley will host the Fourth Mayor's Appreciation Award Ceremony in the City Hall Conference Room at 10 a.m., Tuesday, May 13.

Six city employees have been selected to be honored under the Employees' Recognition Program.

Each recipient will receive a framed certificate and a gift in recognition of this honor.

McCauley said he inaugurated the recognition program in 1983 to honor "loyal and dedicated city employees who have distinguished themselves in their respective positions by performing their duties in an outstanding and noteworthy way."

The reception that will follow the awards ceremony is open to family members of the recipients, fellow employees and friends.

Chosen for awards this year are:

Carol A. Keene, 85 Belmont St., Quincy, a principal clerk in the Personnel Department.

Miss Keene has been a city employee for 11 years and is cited for her "outstanding knowledge of the civil service system and the dignity with which she treats the many city employees who are under the jurisdiction of the Personnel Department," according to McCauley.

Eugene W. Creedon, 52 Kendall St., Quincy, is the principal of Broad Meadows Middle School.

Creedon has been with the Quincy Public Schools for 20 years and was formerly principal of the Francis W. Parker Elementary School.

He is noted as a principal who "knows every student's name, is extremely dedicated to his students and makes each individual feel that he is important," said McCauley.

"Creedon is committed to public education and is highly respected by administrators and staff."

Francesco (Frank) DeVito, 34 Charlesmount Ave., Quincy, is a cabinet maker in the Public Works Department. He has been a city employee for nine years.

DeVito is cited for "the outstanding quality of workmanship he puts into every project he undertakes."

Elizabeth Goreham, 79 Putnam Ave., Cambridge, is Director of Financial Aid for Quincy Junior College. During her two years of service, she has implemented and provided the Junior College with a data base program that administers $2.5 to 3 million in financial aid each year. She works well with students and has continually demonstrated a sound knowledge of financial aid," the mayor said.

Ralph A. Brancaccio, 145 Billings St., North Quincy, is a working foreman in the Cemetery Department. He has been employed for 10 years and is cited for his "conscientious and dedicated leadership and initiative," McCauley said.

Eleanor M. Reidy, personal secretary to the mayor for most of the past five years, came into office with him after serving as his secretary for nine years in private industry.

Although not a career employee, Mrs. Reidy "adapted quickly to the routine of the mayor's office and is cited for her cooperative manner and her obvious desire to assist department heads and other city employees," McCauley said.

Although she retired May 2, Mayor McCauley wanted to confer this recognition on

Mrs. Reidy "whose friendly manner will be missed in City Hall."

She has been the liaison from the mayor's office to the South Shore Cultural Commission and served on the committee that prepared the program to honor the late Ruth Gordon.

She has also been the mayor's liaison to the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women.

Mrs. Reidy is the Mayor's appointee to the Commission for Handicapped Affairs and is a former member of the Council on Aging.

The provisions of this Ordinance governing the height of buildings and structures in all districts shall not apply to chimneys, water towers, air conditioning equipment, elevator bulkheads, skylights, ventilators and other necessary features appurtenant to buildings which are usually carried above roofs and are not used for human occupancy provided that these features are located or screened so as to be not visible from any point on grade within five hundred (500) feet of a line of a building so equipped, nor to domes, towers, spires above buildings if such features are not used for human occupancy, nor to wireless or broadcasting towers and other like unenclosed structures, nor to accessory parking facilities completely located under ground level.

TURN-KEY CONDOS

QUESTION: I have the money to buy a condo as a second home but I don't have the time, inclination or money to furnish it. Is there a way out?

ANSWER: Investing in a resort condominium as a second home can make a great deal of sense. There's a great way of life; rental income possibility; outstanding tax benefits; and all the joys of ownership in that the equity builds up as the mortgage is reduced and the value of the property goes up because of growth and inflation.

If you don't want the bother of decorating, there's the "turn-key" condo and it is particularly popular in resort areas. It comes completely furnished and ready to move into.

BUYING A CONDO as a second home can make a great deal of sense.

Boston Jail Site Hailed As Quincy Victory

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

A logical appraisal of the facts as well as a strong showing of opposition by Quincy are being cited by local officials as major factors in the governor's decision Tuesday to site a jail in Boston rather than on Moon Island off Squantum.

"I'm delighted with the governor's selection," said Mayor Francis McCauley. "It makes a lot of sense."

"The Suffolk County jail should go in Suffolk County, not here in Norfolk County."

"The area on Southampton St., Boston, is available for a jail."

"There was also a strong showing of opposition by the citizens of Quincy."

"The taking by eminent domain last week of Moon Island (which had been owned by Boston) also sent a clear message to the governor that we were very serious about our opposition."

"We would have continued that opposition had Moon Island been chosen," he said.

McCauley noted that Dukakis is proposing the creation of a 500-acre economic development district around the Southampton St. incinerator site, with some $40 million in economic assistance available.

"That area should be a lot better now," he said. McCauley said he will contact Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn in the near future to discuss the preservation of Moon Island for open space.

In the meantime, he thanked the people of Quincy "who worked so hard to carry a message to the governor about Moon Island."

The mayor also praised the efforts of Rep. Michael Morrissey, and Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley who, with McCauley, cosponsored a Citizens Rally against the siting last week in North Quincy.

Hospital Construction To Start In July

Groundbreaking for the $57 million reconstruction of a major portion of Quincy City Hospital is scheduled for mid-July now that the hospital has received approval for FHA insurance.

The Quincy facility is the first public hospital in the country to receive the insurance, according to Mayor Francis McCauley who noted that it has been available for years to private hospitals.

The approval means that the reconstruction can be financed through revenue bonds insured by the FHA, according to McCauley.

McCauley noted that the city will have two major construction projects in progress with QCH and the Police Station.

Minor projects will include the Squantum Fire Station and Dog Pound, he said.

"Our accomplishment here in Quincy has truly resulted from a team effort involving the city, the hospital, and the community at large," McCauley said. "In particular, the hospital's Board of Managers, under the chairmanship of Gerald P. Marquis, deserves special recognition for its leadership in this effort."

"The City Council and the hospital's medical staff have also been tremendously supportive and have worked very hard to make the hospital's building project a reality.

"The City Council made it possible for the hospital to take advantage of the FHA mortgage insurance program by passing special legislation."

"The hospital's building project is designed to replace approximately two-thirds of the current facilities at the hospital which are outdated in terms of space, design, and functionality."

"The new building will contain 180 medical/surgical, 14 intensive care, 20 pediatric, and 20 psychiatric beds."

"Also included will be a new emergency room, laboratory, pharmacy, rehabilitation services, and other hospital support services," McCauley said.

Property Management Workshop May 21

The city will sponsor a Property Management Workshop for landlords May 21 at 6 p.m. in the second floor conference room at City Hall. Registration fee is $10.

The workshop will cover tenant screening and selection, eviction procedures, landlord/tenant law and information on how and where to seek financial assistance.

Pay Raises For Mayor, City Council

The City Council, meeting as its Finance Committee, gave its initial approval Monday night for pay raises for the mayor and council.

The raises must now be approved by the council as part of the entire budget. That is expected to take place at the meeting Monday night.

The vote was 6 to 2 in favor of both proposals made by Mayor Francis McCauley.

Councillor Patricia Toland was not present.

There was no discussion of either raise.

"I think everyone had made up their minds before the meeting," said Finance Committee chairman Richard Koch, Jr.

Councillors Theodore DeCristofaro and Joseph LaRaia voted against raising the mayor's salary from $40,000 a year to $45,000 in 1987. The second half of the raise, to $50,000 a year, will be submitted in a separate order later.

Councillors DeCristofaro and James Sheets voted against the council raise from $6,500 to $9,000 a year in 1987.

"I felt it was something that wasn't needed," said DeCristofaro. "I voted against the mayor's salary increase the last time."

"This is not the time to raise the council's and the mayor's salaries."

Donnelly Optimistic About Future Last Ship To Be Christened At Shipyard Saturday

General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard is scheduled to christen its last ship, the Sgt. William R. Button, Saturday at 11 a.m.

But Cong. Brian Donnelly still holds out hope for the future of the yard which is scheduled to close June 1.

"I'm optimistic, but it will depend upon the success of the building charter program," said Donnelly who was in Quincy recently.

"Without the building charter, the options become limited."

The building charter Donnelly referred to is the Mariner Fund, which he is cosponsoring.

It could result in the construction of as many as 18 merchant ships in up to five US shipyards with $852 million to be set aside by Congress.

A bill enabling Congress to authorize the money is scheduled for consideration in about a month, after the budget is passed, according to Donnelly.

"That and the Capital Cost Construction Fund are critical for an operator to purchase the yard," said Donnelly, who explained that the CCCF Fund is like an IRA for shipbuilders.

An employee buy-out is also a serious option, according to Donnelly who said that he has been in touch with the union regarding this matter.

"We're waiting for them to submit their bids," said Donnelly who noted that they have until August to do so.

"It's a very complex financial deal," said Donnelly, "those are some of the pieces."

A dual use of the Quincy Shipyard for long term stability of the work force on the property was recommended in a state study by Booz, Allen & Hamilton.

A percentage of the property should be left for steel and metal industry, while keeping the capability to build ships, according to the study.

Donnelly has suggested that the yard could build the proposed third harbor tunnel for Boston until the shipbuilding depression subsides.

That would be part of a $1.1 billion project expected to take two or three years.

The yard could also do the work for suppression of the Central Artery, a $1.6 billion project, he said.

The harbor tunnel has not yet been approved, according to Donnelly, but if it is, Gov. Michael Dukakis has committed himself to do as much work as possible at the Quincy site.

"The shipyards which survive this depression will be very profitable in the future," said Donnelly.

Donnelly suggests that laid off shipyard workers stay in touch and wait to hear about the progress of the employee buyout and charter program.

"We should be able to say something more definite this summer," he said.

"We're attempting to put all the pieces together. It's going to take some time."

The Sgt. William R. Button will be sponsored by Mrs. Mary DiIulio, wife of a shipyard employee, Alfreo A. DiIulio. Mrs. DiIulio's family represents over 232 years of pride and dedication to Quincy shipbuilding. She is representing all of the shipyard workers, their spouses and families, whose personal sacrifices and skill, over the past 102 years, have made Quincy world leader in the shipbuilding industry.

The featured speaker at the christening will be Rep. Silvio O. Conte (R-Mass), a 13 term Congressman and Ranking Minority Member of the House Appropriations Committee.

Hotel, 5 Other Buildings Close For Crown Colony

The developers of Crown Colony Place in West Quincy are in negotiations for five different parcels for commercial buildings as well as a hotel, according to Mayor Francis X. McCauley.

One of the largest developments in the city's history, the project is being planned by the Musaad Al-Saleh family of Kuwait on the site of the Old Colony Crushed Stone land off Centre St.

"They're relatively close to a major hotel settling there," said McCauley.

"The developers are presently in negotiations," said the mayor, "and there are stipulations that any buildings built be utilized."

McCauley said that more information should be available in the summer.

The real estate broker is Meredith & Grew, according to Planning Director James Lydon.

Two years ago, the Planning Board approved subdivision of the property. Lydon said, and about a year and half ago, that board and the City Council approved a hotel use on the property.

'Definitely Set' Probe Continues Into Kincaide Building $4 Million Blaze

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

A five-alarm blaze of suspicious origin early Friday which caused an estimated $4 million damage to the former Kincaide Building, Quincy Sq., was brought under control later that day, but it effects will be felt for many months to come.

Officials continued to investigate the cause of Quincy's first five alarm fire since 1962, as the building at 1621 Hancock St. was being demolished by a wrecking crew this week.

Thirty residents of the 20 apartments on the top floor escaped unhurt but were left homeless, and many businesses lost their inventories as well as their places of operation.

Some of the residents were taken to a temporary shelter set up at Quincy Vocational Technical School by Quincy Civil Defense and the American Red Cross after the fire. They later found shelter with relatives or friends, according to the Red Cross.

Furniture City, which was to have opened for business Monday, and Harry the Greek's, both located on the first floor, were heavily damaged. Kincaide Furniture went out of business a month ago.

Second floor businesses included Caricatures Unlimited, James Vella, Public Accountant; Lola Kilduff, electrologist; Shipbuilders Workers Union Local 90, Northeast Collection Agency, Kingdom of God Prayer Community, and Atty. Joseph Prone.

Prone, who had the same location for 27 years, will now be in Room 309 of the Adams Building in Quincy Sq.

RUBBLE filled the sidewalk on Hancock St., Quincy Sq., as wrecking equipment demolished the building.

Planning Director James Lydon said that a number of the businesses have contacted Quincy Fair, a mini mall next to the burned out building, and Key Realty, hoping to relocate in downtown Quincy.

"It (the fire) may turn out to be a mixed blessing," said Lydon, who explained there will now be an opportunity to upgrade that end of the square.

Demolition of the building began Friday afternoon and portions of Hancock St. from School St. to Revere Rd. were blocked to traffic. However, there was still easy access to validated parking areas for shoppers in downtown Quincy.

Fire Chief Carl Valenti said that the state Fire Marshal's Office, the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, Quincy Fire Prevention Bureau and Quincy police are seeking the cause of the fire.

A prize arson investigator, Charles Moore of Braintree, was hired by F.A.M.Y. Realty Trust, owners of the 60 year-old building.

Council Approves Pay Raise For Clerk

The Finance Committee of the City Council unanimously approved a resolve Monday night to ask the mayor to increase the salary of clerk of committees from $20,520 to $22,709.

Councilor Theodore DeCristofaro submitted the resolve for the position held by Mrs. Jeanne Reardon of the City Council office.

"I'm absolutely amazed at the amount of work which comes out of the council office," said Councilor James Sheets, who cosigned the resolve. "She deserves more than $20,520."

Council president Stephen McGrath said, "We have the best secretaries and staff of any office in City Hall."

"She probably should earn

$5,000 to $7,000 more," said Councilor Michael Cheney.

Mayor Francis McCauley indicated later that he would not approve the increase.

"I mean no disrespect to the capabilities of Mrs. Reardon. She's done a good job."

"But we've had other requests to upgrade secretaries in the city, and we can't make all of them administrative assistants."

Workers Buyout Could 'Hold The Fort' At Quincy Shipyard

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
The Quincy Shipyard will shut down at the end of the month if all goes as planned.

However, a recent study commissioned by the state says a workers buyout is still an economically viable option to the yard's closure and both the state's Secretary of Labor and Secretary of Economic Affairs have flown to St.
Louis to speak with General
Dynamics officials.

Hopefully, all this talk about a workers buyout is not just political rhetoric because many jobs, as well as the economic prosperity of the South Shore are on the line.

Currently, both the state and General Dynamics are still seeking new owners for the shipyard before the gates are locked forever but, to date, no settlement with any firm has been reached.

If the workers buyout can keep the shipyard from closing, every attempt at helping this effort secure the proper financing ought to be done. Everyone will have to help, including the Massachusetts Taxpayers but the bottom line will be retaining jobs for workers.

The issue of the Quincy Shipyard is neither Republican, Democrat, liberal or conservative. The issue is the economic well being of the Boston-South Shore area.

Here's hoping the shipyard stays open because shipbuilding will recover by everyone's estimates in the next decade.
If a workers buyout can hold the fort for four years, the yard's prosperity will guarantee the shipyard's future into the next century.

SINGLE VS. APT. HOUSE INVESTMENT

QUESTION: As a novice investor, what do you think about my investing in a single home rather than an apartment house?

ANSWER: The single-family home is growing more and more popular as an investment property, especially for the beginning investor. For one thing, there are a lot more of them on the market than apartment houses. They are easier to get into and out of so the investment money is somewhat more liquid.

If the residential homes are selected carefully in a steady growth area, the appreciation can be very lucrative. Also you can deduct depreciation from your income which allows you to reduce taxes on other income

THE MUTUAL BUILDING destroyed by fire last week, wasn't the classiest building in town but it was a welcome refuge when The Sun needed it. Muriel Lyon types away in this 1969 or 1970 photo.

Like Losing A Friend

In a way, it was like losing an old friend.

It was difficult to even look at her, just a weakened shell standing wobbly as firefighters streamed water into her blackened, rubble interior.

The first four windows on the second floor at the right end of the building which you could now see the sky through were the hardest to look at.

That was the location of the Quincy Sun for nearly six years from 1969 to March, 1975.

It was really the Mutual Building although it was more commonly known as the Kincaide building and will be remembered as the latter.

We will remember it with fondness as The Sun's second home. And we'll remember all the nice people who were on the second floor with us, people with little businesses, all trying to make a go of it. Some of them were still there when fire destroyed the downtown landmark last week in one of the worst blazes in the city's history.

Those were crucial years for The Sun, struggling years.

We had started on the second floor of the Quincy Conservatory building on Foster St. in 1968 and the following year had to leave as the entire building was taken over on a lease.

We found available space in the Mutual Building and considered ourselves lucky. It was like the homeless finding shelter -- being given refuge.

It wasn't the classiest building in town, but it was on Hancock St. and the rent wasn't bad.

There were times in the middle of the winter when the old furnace would conk out and we spent the rest of the day wearing coats in the office, and even gloves.

And there were times when we wondered about the building going up in smoke.

Like one night we were working on the paper and we heard fire apparatus coming down Hancock St.

It was nothing unusual to hear fire apparatus coming down Hancock St. It usually came that way from the Central Fire Station.

But this particular night we realized it didn't go by the building. It had stopped.

And suddenly there were booted footsteps along the second floor corridor by our doors -- firefighters with axes in their hands looking for the fire.

It was a bit frightening. If flames break out, what do you do we wondered. What do you try to save first?
Someone -- maybe it was Bob Colman across the street -- said, "You grab the receivables first and run."

But, as it turned out, we didn't have to run. The fire was in one of the apartments on the third floor -- an over-cooked roast in the oven.

But there were similar incidents after that before we left in 1975 to move to our present street floor location.

There always seemed to be that threat of fire. It had the makings for a good one, we always thought.

We wish we were wrong.

DEPUTY FIRE CHIEF Thomas
Gorman recalled that his father, late Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, responded to a fire at the building back in 1925 when he first joined the fire force.

After that fire, according to his son, Gorman predicted that because of the building's type structure which made firefighting difficult, a future fire would some night destroy it.

And, 61 years later, he was right.

ONE OF THOSE who felt the impact of the fire was Atty. Joseph Prone who had an office on the second floor and a few years ago had extensively remodeled it.

He arrived at the scene in the early stages of the fire and standing on Hancock St. thought the building might be saved. Looking up, he could still see his law diplomas on the wall.

It looked like firefighters were going to contain the flames at that point. But a short while later the diplomas were gone. So was the wall on which they had hung.

GERRY D'AMICO picked The Quincy Sun as his first campaign stop after officially announcing his candidacy for lieutenant governor.

The state Democratic senator from Worcester turned up at The Sun Office the following morning.

escorted by Senator Paul Harold of Quincy for interviews with the Sun and Sun Ch. 8.

D'Amico has quite a local lineup behind him. In addition to Harold, he has, among others:

Rep. Michael Morrissey, Sheriff Clifford Marshall; City Councillor James Sheets, School Committeewoman Mary Collins, Paul Connolly of West Quincy, president of the Carmen's Union; Kathy Kelly, also of West Quincy, former president of the Boston Teachers Association and Thomas Koch.

Collins and Morrissey co-hosted a reception for delegates in D'Amico's behalf at Collin's Squantum home Wednesday night.

RAY MC EACHERN, the Patriot Ledger's City Hall reporter, is keeping a close eye on his home state of New Hampshire. His brother, Paul, recently announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor, challenging incumbent John Sununu.

Politics run deep in the McEachern family.
McEachern's late father, Archie, served 10 years in the New Hampshire legislature and his sister, Mary McEachern Keenan is mayor of Portsmouth. Ray himself, served in the legislature from Portsmouth in 1965-66.

Does he ever think of returning to the political arena?
"Well," he says, "nobody ever wants to close any doors."

Spoken like a true politician.
Incidentally, he now lives in Houghs Neck. So, watch it, City Hall.

MILESTONE: Congressman
Brian Donnelly and his wife, Ginny,

Residents are urged to Inland Pollution of Braintree has been hired by the city to seal these household toxics in 55-gallon drums and transport them out-of-state for disposal.

According to Mary Quinn, spokesperson for the League of Women Voters, "Quincy residents are used to having the luxury of disposing of their trash at their curbs. I think people are not aware of the dangers involved, not only the risks to personal safety, but also the long-term risks we face as a community."

'The Book Of Rileys' A Special Limited Edition

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

George Riley of Quincy says with a smile that he has always been a "professional Irishman."

Now he's become a professional Irish writer—well, almost.

Riley, president of Riley and Reilly Insurance Agency, 1050 Hancock St., recently wrote and published a family history, the "Book of Rileys"—Reilly to Riley, Galway to Quincy.

But profit was not the motive since the 100 copies of the book, which Riley paid $6,500 to have typed and printed, will mainly be distributed to family and friends.

Accompanied by four relatives, he will leave today (Thursday) for Ireland to deliver some of the books to family members.

A family reception will be held Saturday in McGann's Restaurant and Function Hall, Monivea, Athlery, County Galway, with 80 Irish cousins in attendance.

Copies of the book will later be presented to the Galway Library, as well as to the Quincy Public Library and the Quincy Historical Society.

Riley's interest in his family roots began in 1965 after the death of his father, Edward, a Quincy police detective who retired after a 35-year career.

"I knew next to nothing about my family history before he died," said Riley.

Then Riley found two letters written to his father in 1936 from his uncle, Patrick Reilly, from Moyardwood, Woodlawn, County Galway.

His curiosity was piqued, and for the next 17 years he collected information about his family.

In 1969, Riley made his first visit to Ireland and met many of his Irish relatives for the first time. "They opened their homes and hearts to me," he said.

His friend, Thomas Healey, who was returning to his native Ireland for a visit, drove Riley to a farm owned by the Reilly family about 10 miles from Shannon Airport.

"Just before getting out of the car, I reminded Tom to 'make sure you come back to get me out in five days' as I had committed myself, by letter, to spend five days with the Reillys," he wrote in the book.

"After getting out of the car, two beautiful girls in their early twenties ran to me and threw their arms around me saying 'Welcome to Ireland.'"

"I turned to Tom Healey and said, 'Forget what I told you.' Tom did just that, choosing to spend most of the next 10 days with us in Moyardwood.

"The girls who welcomed me were Delia and Maureen, both of whom had taken two weeks off from Nurses' Training in Dublin to spend some time with their Yankee cousin whom they had never before seen or heard of."

Riley decided to write the book in 1980. While taking a course in calligraphy, he wrote a poem letter to his four sons as his final paper on italic writing.

"From the 'feeling of family' experienced while composing the poem, came the idea of writing a family book utilizing my calligraphy and pen and ink drawing."

For the next six years, Riley worked during spare hours on nights and weekends on his "labor of love."

He conducted numerous interviews with family members, wrote and received letters from Galway, and researched such things as his grandfather's immigration to this country.

After sifting through records, he learned that Stephen Riley had arrived from Ireland aboard the S.S. Catalonia in 1893, married and moved to Quincy.

He also learned that his grandfather's name was spelled Reilly until he immigrated to the United States.

"The hardest part was the frustration trying to get information," Riley said. "But it was thrilling when I made a discovery."

In 1983, Riley visited Ireland a second time for a family wedding.

"That week was most productive," said Riley.

He ended his quest on his family information Feb. 15, 1986.

The result of all his work is a book which weighs over five pounds, has 342 written pages on the right side and the same number of blank pages on the left side for future entries by family members.

Dedicated to his sons, Mark, Scott, Kirk and Paul, it includes the family crest and prayer, as well as art work and calligraphy by Riley.

It also features information on family unit names, dates and notes of family interest written by 61 different family members, covering five generations of Reilly Riley family life.

Riley doesn't really consider himself a writer. "This is the first thing I've written," he said.

Born and brought up in Quincy, he started his insurance business on his dining room table in 1961.

Jack Reilly joined him as a partner in 1968, he said. "He's no relation that I know of," said Riley, who was executive secretary to former Mayor Arthur Lobin and was also appointed Registrar of Voters.

Always proud of his Irish heritage, Riley used to sing Irish ballads and play the Irish accordion.

"I gave it up," explained Riley. "Every time I would play the accordion at home, my wife, Pat, would say that the kitchen floor needed to be washed."

His wife now wonders, and worries, what his next hobby or project will be, according to Riley.

"I don't know what I'll do," said Riley with an Irish smile.

"But I'll find some excuse not to do work around the house."

Sheila Competes For Miss USA Crown

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Sheila Benson of Quincy is in Florida, and she hopes to come home with more than a tan as a souvenir.

As Miss Massachusetts-USA, Sheila will compete with 52 contestants for the title of Miss USA in a May 20 pageant in Miami.

The pageant will be shown via satellite around the world. She will spend three weeks in Florida preparing for the contest, and her expenses will be paid as part of her prize in the recent Miss Massachusetts USA Pageant.

Her prizes also included scholarships to such schools as Burdett Business School and Barbizon Model School, from which Sheila was graduated in 1982, a TV watch, and her crown and sash.

Sheila plans to go to the Florida pageant with the same positive attitude she brought to the last one in which she competed against 149 contestants.

"I went to the pageant to enjoy myself, rather than to win," said Sheila. "All the girls were dynamic."

"I was more relaxed and maybe it showed on stage."

A veteran of several pageants, Sheila had won the title of Miss Teen Massachusetts in 1982, and was a semifinalist in the national competition of the Miss Teen All American in 1983.

She received some information on the Miss Massachusetts competition and decided to enter.

The first night of the pageant, held at the Sheraton Lincoln in Worcester, contestants wore costumes

SHEILA BENSON, 21, of Quincy, catches up on hometown news while in Miami to compete in the 1986 Miss USA Pageant as Miss Massachusetts. Fifty-one young women, representing every state and the District of Columbia, will compete for the Miss USA crown during a special telecast on CBS-TV, Tuesday, May 20. Many of the delegates are having friends and family send their hometown newspapers to them during their three week stay in Florida.

SHEILA BENSON

A CITATION from the city was presented by Mayor Francis McAuley to Sheila Benson of Quincy, who will be among 51 contestants in the "1986 Miss USA Pageant" Tuesday, May 20, 9 to 11 a.m. on CBS. At back are Sheila's parents, Stanley and Norma.

representing their area.

Sheila wore a colonial style outfit with jacket, ascot and vest to portray Quincy's historic tradition. It also showed off her long legs.

"That event was mostly to relax the girls, to get them used to being on the stage," explained Sheila, a blue-eyed blonde who is 5 feet 8 inches tall.

For the bathing suit competition Saturday night, Sheila wore a one piece, aqua blue swim suit.

Her outfit in the gown competition was made of white taffeta covered with knit, fitted down to the knees where it flaired.

Sheila went into the last day of the competition as one of the 22, and then five, finalists. But though she won the crown, everything didn't go always smoothly.

"Anything that could have gone wrong, did go wrong," she smiled.

"I even tripped on the stage when I didn't see the stairs. But I was there to have fun. I didn't let it throw me."

Among the nine people cheering her on in the recent pageant were her parents, Stanley and Norma Benson of Quincy.

Her father is a banker at State St., Boston.

Her mother is a secretary in the athletics department at Quincy High School.

"They're both thrilled," said Sheila, who also has two sisters, Marilyn and Marlene, and a brother, Stanley.

A 1984 graduate of Quincy High School, she recently went into her mother's office and saw her picture "all over the place."

"It was nice," she smiled.

After graduation from high school, Sheila modeled part time and attended Bunker Hill Community College.

"I liked it, and the money is great, but it's not always steady," said Sheila. "I want to get my degree."

A business major, she plans to transfer to Salem State College in the fall for her junior year.

Sheila has been able to work out a schedule with her teachers this spring so that she can participate in the Florida pageant, and make appearances as Miss Massachusetts-USA.

It is difficult to juggle classes sometimes, said Sheila, but she feels that it is worth it.

"Pageants do open the doors to modeling, but that's not my main concern."

"I want to earn a bachelor's degree in marketing."

"They also help you learn to communicate with people."

"You learn not to be so timid. I used to be shy - in fact, I still am."

"It's an education to get out there and meet many different people, it makes you wiser about society."

"It's a great opportunity for any girl who gets a chance to get involved."

1986 Koch Club Scholarship Awards Announced

Anthony T. Delmonico, chairman of the Koch Club Scholarship Committee, announces the winners of the 1986 Koch Club Scholarship Awards. They are:

North Quincy High School: Stacie Nigro, 31 Pelican Rd., Quincy, and Robert J. MacMillan, 30 Quarterdeck Rd., #3, Quincy. A $100 award will be provided to both of the Quincy High School seniors.

Quincy Vocational Technical School: winners selected are Kasandra L. Lamson, 9 Noanet St., Quincy, and Cornelius C. O'Connor, 23 Doyle Terrace, Quincy. Both will be recognized with a $100 award that will be presented to each in June.

The formal presentation of the awards will take place at the 35th annual Koch Club Flag Day Observance scheduled for Saturday, June 14, at 11 a.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Koch Club awards total $600. This year's amount brings the figure to $12,400 in scholarship awards by the organization since the program was initiated in 1959 with 136 recipients.

The Koch Club Scholarship Fund began in 1959 in the North Quincy District with a $100 scholarship to a boy and girl graduate of North Quincy High. In 1964, the program was expanded with the addition of the Broad Meadows District and a boy and girl graduate of Quincy High School.

In 1968, the organization added a boy graduate of Quincy Vocational School, and in 1970 included a girl graduate to complete an achievement recognition for a boy and girl graduate in each of the high schools. The Vocational Technical School scholarships were increased from $50 to $100 last year.

Although the Koch Club is largely involved in athletic and recreation programs, the principle purpose of the scholarship fund is to impress upon boys and girls the fact that the organization is concerned with the scholastic and vocational education and ability of its members for their future happiness and success.

The Koch Club established a Permanent Scholarship Fund on the 25th anniversary of the organization in 1973 with a $5,000 grant established in the city of Quincy. The action guarantees that the scholarship program will continue annually should the Koch Club no longer exist.

The Perpetual Fund has increased to $18,214 and continues to grow. It will assume the Koch Club Scholarship responsibilities on the 50th anniversary of the organization in 1998.

The Koch Club has appropriated and committed a total of over $30,000 in funds toward the Active and Permanent Scholarship Programs during the past 28 years.

The Rewards of Caring.

Working in a nursing home in Massachusetts is a very rewarding experience. As anyone who works in a nursing home will tell you, there's no feeling quite like it. To us, the most important people are the people we care for, and there's nothing more satisfying than the joy of bringing their pleasure.

The more than 50,000 people in Massachusetts who work in nursing homes are special individuals who have dedicated their lives to ensuring that frail elders and disabled citizens who need 24 hour care are able to continue leading fulfilling and productive lives as valued members of their communities.

The citizens of the Commonwealth should be aware of the many contributions that have been made, and will continue to be made, by nursing home residents with the support of caring nursing home staffs. May 11-17 is National Nursing Home Week. We invite you to visit us during this special week and throughout the year, and experience for yourself, the rewards of caring.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

The poet Horace once wrote:
"Govern your passions, otherwise they will govern you."
An old Greek proverb states that the man who controls himself is better than the man who can control a city.

Yet it is a sad fact that in our hectic way of life today, many people are losing control of themselves. They are losing control as surely as if they lost control of their car on a highway and were heading for a crack-up. Some people cannot get through the day without the excessive use of alcohol and cigarettes. Some people cannot control their tempers and others their appetites.
It seems that today the philosophy of self-indulgence...
self expression is playing havoc with our lives.

What can we do about it? ... Perhaps by remembering that self-control is such a matter of overwhelming importance that no one can be said to have learned anything who has not learned to exercise it?

Cicero said - Control Thyself. Socrates said - Know Thyself. Christ said - Give Thyself... We think these are the six greatest words on earth ...

What do you think?

Infant Saver/Child Saver Program At Hospital

Quincy City Hospital will offer a new session of the "Infant Saver/Child Saver" Program Tuesday, May 20, and continuing Thursday, May 22.

Registrations are now being accepted for these sessions of the program designed to save the lives of infants and children.

The response to the previous sessions, which began in October of 1985, has demonstrated the need in the South Shore area for lifesaving instruction for youngsters. Because of this, the hospital begins a new session monthly.

The hospital's "Infant Saver/Child Saver" program is designed to educate parents and persons working with children in techniques of Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR), recognition and treatment of common childhood injuries, general first aid preventative measures, and more.

The Executive Office of Human Services of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts has recently notified the hospital that the "Infant Saver/Child Saver" program has been approved as a first aid course for Day Care Center workers, having met the guidelines and regulations of the state of Massachusetts.

The participants are taught CPR techniques on child-size mannequins by a certified instructor in BCLS (Basic Cardiac Life Support), accredited by the American Heart Association.

According to the hospital, statistics indicate that most people, including parents, would not know how to help an infant or child who had stopped breathing, or who had a serious injury. Accidental injuries claim the lives of four times as many infants and children as do medical illnesses, according to OCH.

Classes will be held on May 20 and 22, at the hospital from 7 to 10 p.m. Fees for the six-hour workshop are $25 per couple or $15 for an individual. Class size is limited to assure individual instruction.

In response to demonstrated interest, the hospital will continue to offer this program on a monthly basis.

For an informational brochure, or to register for the May program, call 773-6100 ext. 3017.

Hospital Board Meeting May 20

The Quincy City Hospital Board of Managers will meet Tuesday, May 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Dennis F. Ryan Board Room at the hospital.

Skin Cancer Clinic At Hospital

Quincy City Hospital will again sponsor a free Skin Cancer Detection Clinic with six South Shore dermatologists Thursday, May 15, and Saturday, June 21.

Clinic hours will be 6 to 8 p.m. May 15, and 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. June 21.

Participating doctors will be Dr. George Blumental, Dr. Ronald Finn, Dr. Steven Kahn, Dr. Philip McCarthy, Dr. Kenneth Reed and Dr. Marcos Sastre.

The clinic will be held in the Ambulatory Care Department of the hospital at 114 Whitwell St., Quincy.

The three-fold purpose of the clinic will be: to provide literature and information regarding the causative factors relating to skin cancer, to examine any SPECIFIC, suspicious areas, and to provide information regarding measures to prevent the occurrence of skin cancer.

The clinic is provided as a community service by Quincy City Hospital in response to a demonstrated interest in such a program.

The Skin Cancer Detection Clinic held at Quincy City Hospital in June, 1985, was an overwhelming success, both in the number of participants and in the number of persons who were referred to physicians for follow-up after the clinic, according to the hospital.

Those in need of further evaluation and treatment were so advised, according to the hospital, while the majority of participants were found to have no serious skin lesions. They were reassured of the benign nature of their condition and were instructed as to proper care of their skin to avoid future problems with sun exposure.

Most types of skin cancer are curable, says the hospital. Therefore, early detection plays a very important role. Anyone who has a sore that does not heal, a "wart" or suspicious lesion or mole that changes shape or color, or an unusual skin growth, is urged to attend this clinic or consult his or her physician.

For an appointment to have a specific area examined by one of the dermatologists who will be conducting this Skin Cancer Detection Clinic at Quincy City Hospital, call the Community Relations Department at 773-6100 ext. 4016, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Quincy Defeats Weymouth N., Bows To Hot Brockton

By TOM SULLIVAN

After staging one of the season's best comebacks to defeat Weymouth North, the Quincy baseball team ran into a red-hot Brockton team Monday and lost, 10-5, dropping its record to 6-7.

Brockton remained undefeated at 13-0.

Bob Sylvia's Presidents faced Cambridge Rindge and Latin yesterday (Wednesday), will meet North Quincy tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the first game at Adams Field and will host Newton North Monday night at 7 at Adams.

Quincy stayed with Brockton until the sixth inning when the undefeated Boxers, leading only 6-5, scored four runs to wrap it up.

"We handed them their first two runs and it was an uphill battle after that," said Sylvia. "We came back strong and I thought we still had a chance when we were behind by only a run in the sixth. But, you have to play perfect ball to beat Brockton and we didn't play a perfect game.

"We have proven we can come back, as in the Weymouth North game, and we still have an outside chance of finishing second in the Suburban League and making the tournament. We have to take one game at a time.

"We haven't been playing badly but we have made errors at the wrong times and have put ourselves in a hole. Our pitching has been pretty good and at times we have hit the ball well."

Sean Flavin was the starting pitcher against Brockton and didn't do badly. Larry Taglieri relieved and did well until Brockton exploded for their four runs in the sixth.

Jay Ilespasio had two hits and Dave Toechio, Tom Logan and Bob Hunter one each for the Presidents.

Brockton had nine hits. The winning pitcher was Tom Colombo, its outstanding quarterback in football.

Last week Quincy trailed Weymouth North, 6-1, in the top of the fifth inning. Quincy, with Logan hitting a grand slam homer, rallied for five runs to tie the score and Hunter drove in the winning run in the seventh with a single.

T.J. Steen went all the way on the mound for Quincy, giving up six hits and striking out 13.

Yankees, Tigers, Braves, Pirates Win

The North Quincy baseball team had one of its worst games Monday as it handed Newton North a 14-11 victory, lowering its record to 2-10.

Leo Donovan's Raiders played Waltham yesterday (Wednesday), will meet Quincy tonight (Thursday) at 7 in the first game at Adams Field and will play at Brockton Monday.

"This game was a nightmare," said Donovan after the Newton North game. "They had only four hits but we made seven errors and gave up eight walks to hand them the game. It was very disappointing, as I thought this was one game we would win."

The Raiders made a strong comeback as they trailed 8-0, and 14-3, but it was too little and too late.

Chris Ricciutti had three hits, including a grand slam homer in the seventh inning. Dan Santry had an RBI single and Bob Murgess, Bill Murphy, Tom Casey and Peter Tufts had a hit each.

The Yankees scored in every inning and walloped the Pirates, 13-4, in the Quincy Triple A Baseball League.

Shawn Kane was the winning pitcher, striking out eight in three innings. The loser was David Burke. For the Yankees Sean Vermette had three hits and Kane two. Dennis Lawrence had two hits and John McGowan had a double for the Pirates.

The Tigers rolled over the White Sox, 13-0, paced by Brian Sullivan's four hits. Winning pitcher Victor Lange struck out 11.

The Braves defeated the Indians, 8-5, with pitcher Matt Frattolillo striking out six in two innings. Derek Mooter had two hits, Frattolillo a triple and Lee Giorando a double for the Braves, and Paul Collearly had two hits and Sean Cleary a double for the Indians.

The Pirates topped the White Sox, 13-4, with winning pitcher Dennis Lawrence striking out nine in four innings. McGowan had three singles and a triple. Mark Gilmore two singles and a double and Louis Bertucci two hits for the Pirates. Philip Bell had three hits, Mike Kane two hits and Bernie Sharpe a double for the White Sox.

The Braves defeated the Yankees, 6-2, with Mooter striking out five in two innings. Mooter had a home run and Brian Jennette caught an outstanding game for the Braves.

The Tigers scalped the Indians, 18-0, with Dennis Reggere having nine strikeouts. Reggere had a home run and Patrick Donaher had two doubles.

Quincy, North In First Game Of Season At Adams Field

Quincy High and North Quincy High baseball teams will play at 7 p.m. tonight (Thursday) in the first game of the season at Adams Field.

Park Department personnel are putting the final maintenance touches on the Southern Artery site following extensive renovations and repairs caused by damage inflicted by Hurricane Gloria.

The 70-foot tower and lights have been erected while wiring has been replaced at a cost of $24,700. The chainlink baseball backstop has been refurbished with the low bid of $68,300, bleacher repairs to the demolished section were $5560 and refurbishing of the infield and basepaths reflected a $4800 figure. The foregoing $41,890 amount has been approved in the reimbursement of Hurricane Disaster Funds to the city of Quincy.

The new look at the popular Merrymount Park field will be the two new players' dugouts resulting from the volunteer work of a group of Adams Field enthusiasts who raised $8,000 for installation of the concrete dugouts.

Approximately 200 games a year are played at Adams Field and it is the home field for the Quincy and North Quincy High School teams, Quincy, Wollaston and Morrisette Legion teams and the Sheriff's team of the Coast League.

Adams Field is part of the 80-acre Merrymount Park complex left by Charles Francis Adams in 1885 and was originally constructed with W.P.A. federal funds in 1939.

Jaguars, Bashers Tied For Merchants Lead

Paced by the consistent batting of Glenn Segalla and Scott Riley and the strong defensive play of Mike Rowell, the Quincy Jaguars are tied with the Bashers for the lead in the Quincy Merchants Softball League.

each with a 4-0 record.

The rest of the standings: Whiton Hall, 1-1; Niners, 1-1; Woodward Spring, 1-2; Luke's Lounge, 1-3; A&M Panthers, 1-3; and Baintree Sports, 0-3.

• Babe Ruth

Police Club, Hancock Bryan Post Winners

The Quincy Police Club began its quest for a second straight Babe Ruth League city championship with a 6-3 victory over Barry's Deli.

Police pitcher Mike Ainsley struck out six and Barry's Jim Kearns struck out four.

The police club scored a run in the first inning as Tom Roberts reached on an error, moved to third on two walks and scored on a fielders choice by Mike Cronin. There was no more scoring until the fifth when Barry's scored three runs. Mike Doherty and Mike Tufts walked and both scored on a triple by Kearns, who scored on an RBI single by Danny McLaughlin.

Police tied it in the bottom half as Roberts walked, stole second and scored on Ainsley's hit. Ainsley later scored on a dropped third strike. Police held Barry's scoreless the rest of the way and added three runs in the seventh as Bill Bellew led off with a hit and stole second. He was hit on the mouth on an errant pick off attempt but stayed in the game. Calvert walked and Bellew and Ainsley scored on Ward's ground out.

Kent Iacobbaci later scored on a towering triple by Brian Kelly. Iacobbaci and Ralph Bevilacqua played well in the field. For Barry's Matt Donovan, Matt Collins and Jim Glynn played fine games and Kent Staskiewicz pitched well in relief of Kearns.

Bill Norton pitched a five-strikeout no-hitter to lead Hancock Bank over Bryan Post, 10-0, in his first game of the season. Chris Higgins had a triple and Joe Leiber a double.

Bryan Post VFW defeated Local 1139, 6-2, behind the fine pitching of Sean Murphy, who had a shutout through six innings. He struck out six and allowed only two unearned runs.

Jamie Green had two big hits for Bryan Post, Rob Cinquegrano had a double and single, Mark Dwyer singled twice and Sean Mulken and Pat McDonough had hits. Mulken made a spectacular diving catch in left field and second baseman Chris Stenman and first baseman McDonough also played well defensively. Catcher Chris Standing had an excellent game. Chris Kyller, Brian O'Malley, Steve Waas, Aaron Silverman, Kevin Mullay and Donnie Anderson also contributed to the win. Pitcher Jonathan Brosnan and Ray Grant, who had two singles, sparked for Local 1139.

• Junior Farm

Red Sox Win Pair

Ronnie McGann pitched a fine game as the Red Sox edged the Tigers, 6-5, in the Junior Farm League.

The Sox scored three runs in the fourth on hits by Jimmy Gallagher, Jed Kingsbury and Danny Stone. McGann led off the sixth with a hit and Kenny Ledwak's bases-loaded walk forced in what proved to be the winning run.

The Tigers received a fine effort by Paul King, who struck out 14 but also walked 14, which proved costly.

Earlier the Red Sox exploded for 12 runs on only two hits in the first inning and went on to defeat the Indians.

There were 24 bases on balls and four hit batters. Joe McCarthy and Shawn Hughes led the attack with McCarthy driving in three runs with two hits and Hughes driving in two runs.

Starter Lee Hughes was the winning pitcher. Scott Kelly relieved in the fourth and struck out the side and had five strikeouts in two innings. Todd Thompson and Stone played outstanding defense.

Seamans 4th In 50-Mile Road Race

Quincy's Bob Seamans, a veteran runner, finished fourth in a recent grueling 50-mile road race in Newton.

This qualified Seamans for the famed 100-mile Sam Day Western State Endurance Run on June 28 in Squaw Mountain, California.

This race is one of the most physically taxing events in the world and the ultimate challenge for the long distance runner. The run covers difficult mountainous terrain and spans great extremes of altitude and temperatures, ranging from 20 degrees at the start with temperatures along the course that exceed 110 degrees in the shade.

Much of the trail is narrow and often uneven, rutted, rocky, muddy, wet and slippery.

Rattlesnakes, bears and other potentially dangerous wildlife inhabit the race trail and have surprised runners in the past.

The last few miles will be run at night with only a flashlight to light the way on the mountainous trails.

Dudek Drafted In USFL, Has NFL Options

North Quincy's Joe Dudek, who was disappointed and admittedly "a little angry" when he wasn't taken in the recent National Football League draft, is feeling better these days.

Dudek, the all-time college touchdown king with 79, was drafted in the fourth round of the United States Football League draft by the Tampa Bay Bandits. He was the second pick overall for Tampa.

Dudek now has two options. He can sign with the Bandits or sign as a free agent with one of several NFL teams interested in him.

The Patriots, Chicago Bears, Dallas Cowboys, Denver Broncos, Houston Oilers and Detroit Lions have contacted him and his agent, Bob Woolf, also has contacted the Los Angeles Raiders.

"I was surprised when Tampa Bay called," Dudek said. "The Baltimore Stars had been in contact with me, so I was hanging around for a call, but I hadn't talked with Tampa."

"He'd been in on our plans right along," said Carl Frank, Tampa Bay's backfield coach. "We just didn't know what his availability would be. Obviously we think he is a quality running back. Having played for a small college (Plymouth State), he may have been overlooked by the NFL."

"Joe is under no pressure to make a quick decision," said

Randy Vataha, executive vice president for Bob Woolf Associates. "The big thing is that he gets with a team that can give him a long look in pre-season, or one that has a need for backs. That's as important a factor as the money."

The instability of the USFL may make signing with the NFL as a free agent more attractive.

"Personally, I'd like to know where the heck I'm going, so I know what I'm working toward," said the former North Quincy High standout. "We'll have to see what kind of offers they give me, compare it with the NFL, and go from there."

• Little League

VFW Wins 3 For Fast Start

Defending champion VFW picked up where it left off last year as it went 3-0 in the first week of the Little Baseball League season.

VFW edged Colonial Federal, 7-6, in extra innings, with Scott Dunn the winning pitcher and Mark Reardon the loser.

Both starters had to leave after six innings (league rules). Sean Donovan was brilliant for the VFW as he gave up five hits and struck out 14. Steve Loud also was outstanding for Colonial Federal as he struck out 11 and gave up 10 hits. VFW scored the winning run in the seventh as Christine Barrett singled, stole second and scored on Mark Cahill's single. Dunn came on to pitch in the bottom half and struck out the side.

For VFW Barrett had three hits, Eddie Costello two doubles, Dunn, Donovan and Cahill two hits each and Dave Bogan one. For Colonial Federal Loud had two hits and Reardon, Jeff Craig and Shane Abboud one each.

VFW also edged Boston Gear, 5-4, with Donovan the winning pitcher and Mike Patch the loser. Donovan struck out 12 and Patch 11.

VFW scored three runs in the last inning to win on singles by Cahill, Mike Geddes and Barrett.

Geddes had a triple and single, Barrett a triple. Donovan a double and Cahill a single. For Gear Derek Happs had three singles, Danny Savage two and Tim Byrne. Patch and Mike Riley one each.

In a 4-2 VFW win over the Elks, Dunn had 10 strikeouts. Matt O'Toole was the losing pitcher. For VFW Cahill had two singles, Geddes and Barrett a double apiece and Mark Walsh, T.R. Reppucci, Bogan and Robbie O'Connor a single each. For the Elks Tony Bianco had two singles and Jim Menz, Steve DesRoche and Ed Rizzitano one each.

A.J. Kalibian, Keith Driscoll, Steve Manning and Brian Oliver have been playing outstanding defense for the VFW.

Burgin Platner opened with a 9-8 win over Boston Gear. Burgin was led by the hitting of Mike Berry and Mark Kelleher and the pitching of Duane Holmes and Mike Malvesti.

Burgin also topped Houghs Neck, 4-2, as Kelleher struck out nine. Tommy Balzano had three hits including a home run and Kelleher also homered.

Quincy Cable, defending American League champion, defeated the Elks, 8-2, with Mike McDonald striking a career-high 13, allowing five hits and walking eight. Pat Gallagher had a long double off the fence for Cable and Mike Wood, Dave Cedrone, Mike Kavanaugh, Jim Ford, Aiden O'Donoghue and McDonald all hit safely. For the Elks Bianco had two hits, both well-placed bunts. Wood ended the game with a fine catch in centerfield that resulted in a double play.

Cable also topped Colonial Federal, 9-3, behind the 12-strikeout performance of Gallagher, who pitched a no-hitter last year as an 11-year-old. Cable scored all the runs it would need in the second inning with eight, highlighted by Gallagher's bases loaded triple. Raiderettes Defeat Brookline

The North Quincy girls' track team, which suffered greatly from graduation, won its opening meet over Brookline, but lost the next two to Waltham and Brockton, due mainly to a lack of depth.

"Our main problem has been quantity, not quality," said coach Peter Chrisom Jr. "The athletes we have are placing in two or three events each, but we are still coming up short."

The Raiderettes are led by senior co-captains Tricia Leary, one of the area's top distance runners, and Theresa Collings, the team's top sprinter.

Chrisom has been getting outstanding efforts from underclassmen like Gloria Gougian, Robin Guilfoy and Karen Cashman.

Gougian, the team's top discus thrower, also is the number two shot putter to Noreen Connolly, one of the Suburban League's best.

Julie Killion, a junior who came back from a severe shoulder injury, has started to regain her form of a year ago and placed third in the javelin in the Falmouth Invitational, a meet that highlighted some of the top throwers in the state. Rounding out the javelin group are Liz Harrington and Stacey

Welch. Underclassmen Melissa Myles and Lisa Rodriguez round out the shot put group.

Besides throwing the javelin, Harrington also long jumps and sprints, leading the sprinters are senior Theresa Collings, who also high jumps; Patty Feeney, also a top discus thrower, and Guilfoy, who is unbeaten in the 100-yard dash as a freshman. Other sprinters are Rita Rooney, Mary Ellen Cavanaugh and Maureen Glatton.

Another freshman stand-out is Cashman who, along with Karen Collings, has controlled the middle distances. The distances have been ruled by junior all-scholastic Tricia Barrett, Leary and the Toland sisters, Ann, Bridget and Colleen, all of whom were on the state champion cross-country team last fall. Jennifer Ralery is the hurdle specialist and has placed high in all meets.

The Raiderettes met Newton North yesterday (Wednesday), will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin today (Thursday) at 3:15 at Veterans Memorial Stadium, and will wind up the dual meet season Tuesday against Quincy at 3:15 at the stadium.

The North girls should fare well in the state meet on May 31.

Good And Bad For First Ladies

The Quincy girls' softball team had one of its best games of the year last week as it defeated Weymouth North but Monday the First Ladies had a bad one, handing Brockton several unearned runs as they dropped an 11-3 decision, dropping their record to 2-10.

Barbara Webster's Quincy girls played Cambridge Rindge and Latin yesterday (Wednesday), will face North Quincy today (Thursday) at 3:30 at Artery Field and will play at Newton North Monday.

"We handed them too many easy runs today," Webster said after the Brockton game. "They scored four runs in the first inning and two more in the second, thanks to our errors and walks."

Quincy didn't do much hitting. Pitcher Diane Heery had an RBI single and Marian Miller also had a hit.

Last week Michelle Bevilacqua had an outstanding game to spark Quincy to a 12-6 victory over Weymouth North.

She went 4-for-5, had a game-winning grand slam homer and drove in six runs. Weymouth had a 6-4 lead after three innings, but Bevilacqua's grand slam put Quincy in front to stay.

Heery was the winning pitcher, settling down after the third to pitch well.

Austin, Logan, Davis Captains

Coach John Franceschini announces that Steve Austin, Tom Logan and Steve Davis will be tri-captains of next season's Quincy High basketball team.

Austin, out for five games early last season with an injury, came back to play outstanding ball. He led the team in field goal percentage and played tough at forward, usually against bigger defensive opponents.

Logan was outstanding on defense and a terror on the boards and, according to Franceschini, always gave 110 per cent on the floor and was a fine leader on the floor as well as in the classroom.

Davis was the driving force of the junior varsity squad.

Raiderettes Hand Newton N. First Loss

The North Quincy girls' softball team, after losing two in a row to even its record at 4-4, came back Monday and handed Newton North its first Suburban League loss, 5-3, with one of its best all-around performances of the season.

Mary Pratt's Raiderettes played Waltham (Wednesday), will host Quincy today (Thursday) at 3:30 at Artery Field and will be home to Brookline Monday at 3:30 at Artery.

Last Friday the North girls lost to Weymouth South, 10-3, with Weymouth icing the game with five runs in the fifth inning.

The Raiderettes, trailing, 3-0, tied the score with three runs in the fifth, keyed by a two-run single by Sarah Harrington.

In an earlier 9-2 loss to Brockton, Ann Anderlonis pitched three-hit ball until the fifth inning. North took an early 2-0 lead but was blanked the rest of the way. The Lady Boxers scored three in the fourth and added two in the fifth and four in the sixth.

Ann McGuigan had two hits and Nancy Leonard, Noreen Connolly, Kristin Drake and Terri Smith one each. Freshman Karen Reister, who had hit safely in all previous even games, was held hitless.

McGuigan is the number two hitter in the Suburban League. Anderlonis is fourth and Reister fifth.

YMCA Girls In Championship Meet

(Cont'd from Page 3)

"It was definitely set," said Valenti, who noted that there were reports of two young men running from the scene of the fire.

"There were at least three separate fires, unrelated to each other, and a rapid spread of fire," he said.

Samples from the rubble have been sent to the state lab to determine if an accelerant was used, according to Valenti.

He also said he doesn't think there is any connection between this fire and the ones set by an arsonist in North Quincy recently.

Every piece of Quincy Fire Department apparatus was at the scene of the fire, which broke out shortly before 1 a.m. Valenti said. It was brought under control by 6 a.m. he said.

Six pieces of apparatus from Boston, and one each from Braintree, Weymouth, and Dedham assisted at the scene.

A Boston firefighter, Paul Maloney, 31, of Milton, was admitted to Quincy City Hospital after suffering smoke inhalation.

Maloney was released Saturday.

Mutual aid from Milton, Weymouth, Boston, Newton, Somerville and Cambridge covered the Quincy stations.

"The city was always covered," said Valenti, who praised the work of the cities and towns who assisted Quincy.

He also commended Quincy's firefighters and officers.

"Thanks go out to all of the people who worked very hard. It was quite a large fire, and quite a thing to contain it to one building."

"I'm very proud of the work done by our officers and firefighters."

Council To Pass $91,962,245 Budget

The Finance Committee of the City Council completed its budget session Monday night and will recommend passage of a $91,962,245 municipal budget for 1987.

The committee made only two cuts totalling $55,000 in the $92,017,245 budget submitted by Mayor Francis McCauley.

The budget is expected to be on the agenda of Monday night's Council meeting.

Chamber To Host Program On Liability Insurance

The National Insurance Advisory Services will present a program for business persons who are the victims of the liability insurance crisis Thursday, May 29, from 9 a.m. to noon at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, 36 Miller Stile Road, Quincy.

However, the council actually has until May 22 to vote on it, because it is allowed 45 to act on the budget. It was submitted April 7.

The committee has the authority to make cuts in the budget but not additions.

A requested increase for the law department in judgments, losses and claims from $150,100 to $200,000 was cut back to $150,000 at the suggestion of Councillor John Lydon.

The budget had included an increase for labor negotiator from $35,000 to $40,000, but that was cut back to $35,000 at the request of Councillor

Michael Cheney.

This year's budget sessions were relatively easy, according to committee chairman Richard Koch, Jr.

"It was a lean budget," he said.

WEEK OF: MAY 15

AQUARIUS — January 21-February 19
The object of your affection becomes increasingly affectionate through this period. Small windfall is balanced by surprise expense. It's your job to supervise family health review.

PISCES — February 20-March 20
Detective work pays off... the mystery may be solved by the weekend. You have a way with words now, though one friend may be surprisingly sensitive to your witticisms.

ARIES — March 21-April 20
Friday Saturday accent community activities. Monday Tuesday find you assuming important responsibilities at home. There's still time for romantic patchups... but don't delay too long.

TAURUS — April 21-May 22
Financial news improves but investments require careful review. Romance, you're on steeper ground and can express your feelings through painting or poetry. Award may come your way now.

GEMINI — May 23-June 21
Memory may be playing tricks; best to rely on a diary or log book. Friend may be requesting unusual favor. Time should be right for following a diet or fitness program.

Time may be favorable for becoming more involved in athletic activities. Your psychic powers may be stronger than usual. Temperamental friend becomes easier to deal with.

LEO — July 23-August 22
Yoga or another meditative activity may give you new insight into your present feelings. Financial restraint pays off now. Surprise gift comes your way by Tuesday.

VIRGO — August 23-September 22
Ingenuity is at a peak and captures the attention of people in high places. Intuition is not so strong, however. In romance, rely more on logic than on instinct.

LIBRA — September 23-October 22
Better to focus on a specific skill and do a thorough job than to flit from project to project. Romantic intuition pays off by Wednesday. Overseas news arrives after the weekend.

SCORPIO — October 23-November 21
This week brings showers of mail... some more meaningful than you may initially think. Hosting small gatherings is a presnet strength. Creative activity may prove profitable.

Automotive Center Hearings Postponed

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The City License Board postponed for the second time a hearing regarding rustproofing at Magic Automotive Centers at West Squantum St., as several disappointed abuttees with a signed petition were told to come back next week.

Because the owner of the company, Seymour Norman was not present, Board Chairman John Gillis told the abuttees that "in all fairness to the man" the hearing would be continued until May 20.

Last week, after questioning the direction the exhaust system would take during rustproofing, Norman told the board his company was doing rustproofing on Wood

Rd., Braintree. Although the board planned to visit the Braintree site before granting Norman a permit, their busy schedule prevented them from doing so. They planned to view the site following Tuesday's meeting.

In other action the board:

- Granted a request from North Quincy High School girls' volleyball team for canning days Sept. 5 and Sept. 6 from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

- The girls will canvas stores with the Booster Club Parents overseeing the group.
- Granted a request from State Street Bowling League for a one day alcoholic license May 23 from 5 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall, North Quincy. Police Chief Francis Finn advised the league's representative to either hire a professional bartender because of the drunk driving laws, or to make sure the bartender would hire will give drinks out "reasonably" and that no one is inebriated when leaving the hall.

- Granted a request from the Quincy Lodge of Elks for a Community Fair (I. & L. Amusement Co.) to be held July 10-11-12-13 at the Myles Standish school grounds on East Squantum St. Gillis advised the club's representative to cut the hours from midnight to 11 p.m., while Chief Finn asked that the sound of the music be lowered after 10 p.m. The fair will be held Thursday and Friday July 10 and 11, from 6 to 11 p.m.; Saturday, July 12 from 4 to 11 p.m. and Sunday July 13 from 1 to 8 p.m.

- Granted a request from the George F. Bryan V.F.W. Post to conduct their annual Poppy Drive May 15-16-17.

- Postponed for the second time a hearing regarding complaints by residents near the Piccarini Auto and Towing at 24 Raymond St., Quincy. Area residents complained that buses and trailers have been parked outside the fence instead of inside the towing site. Mrs. June Piccarini told the board that she did not know about the complaints until Monday and asked the board to continue the hearing until May 20 when she would be able to appear with her attorney.

- Heard complaints from Joseph R. Valante of Furnace

Ave., Quincy regarding the Vissa Construction Co. In April, the License Board asked Vissa to erect a fence around his property and to keep all his equipment within the area. Vissa, according to Valante has not complied with the board's request. The board will have a show cause hearing May 27 as to why Vissa's license should not be revoked until he complies with the mandate of the board.

- Continued until next week, a hearing on a request from Paul C. DeFazio for a one day all alcoholic license for a wedding reception to be held June 1 at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall. Mr. DeFazio failed to appear before the board and will be duly notified.

- Heard a complaint regarding illegal dumping on Penn St. and Columbia St. from E.M.H. Corp. doing business as Delaney's Pub on Franklin St. The complaint was placed on file.

(Cont'd from Page 1)

"I didn't take this job for the money, though I earn every dollar that I get."

DeCristofaro made a motion, which passed, to reconsider the mayor's raise after it was quickly approved by the Finance Committee.

"It got by so quickly," explained DeCristofaro who was then able to register his opposition as did LaRaia.

LaRaia, a former Quincy mayor who has been mentioned as a potential mayoral candidate in the future, said that he voted against the mayor's raise because he thinks the duties of the office have diminished.

"Supervisory control of Quincy City Hospital has been relinquished, and that's like hiring an assistant mayor," said LaRaia.

He said that he voted for the mayor's salary increases from $10,000 a year to $25,000, and to $40,000 two years ago.

Sheets said he felt that the mayor's salary increase was warranted, "for the chief executive of a city this size."

"The responsibility and time commitment dictate that people be paid an adequate amount," said Sheets.

"At the present time, the council is adequately compensated," he said.

LaRaia made a motion to reconsider the council's raise, but it failed to receive enough votes.

He said he did so because he wanted to vote against the council raise, and voted for it inadvertently.

Mayor Francis McCauley said he was pleased with the Finance Committee's approval of the raises.

"They were reasonable requests, based on comparisons with 14 other cities," said McCauley.

McCauley noted that the School Committee raises, which are not part of the School Department budget, will be submitted in a separate order.

Boston Jail Site Hailed As Quincy Victory

(Cont'd from Page 1) "We argued right along that by all objective criteria established by the Secretary of Administration and Finance that the Southamp-ton St. site was the best," said Morrissey, who was present for the governor's announcement in Boston. "There will be no impact on a residential neighborhood, access by public transportation is good, the land area is sufficient and it is in the city of Boston. "Ninety-four per cent of the prisoners are Suffolk County residents, and 89 per cent are Boston residents." Morrissey said he had been lobbying his colleagues for the last 10 days, and close to 100 said they would vote to keep the Suffolk County House of Correction in Suffolk County. After Quincy took ownership of Moon Island, Dukakis would have had to gain a two thirds majority in the legislature to support a recommendation for making the island a jail site. "I doubt he could have gotten it," said Morrissey, who made a presentation on the siting at a rally in Quincy last week and to the governor. Morrissey also gathered 1,000 signatures on a petition, and dropped flyers over the Squantum area. "Reason prevailed," said Morrissey. "The best decision was made for all involved." Also attending the governor's press conference was Sen. Paul Harold. "Logic and good judgement won out," said Harold, "the Moon Island site was clearly inappropriate and would have forced Quincy to bear the burden of solving Suffolk County's problem. "The decision is a relief for Quincy. It allows the cleanup of Boston Harbor to continue on schedule and provides genuine benefit for the city of Boston. "We'll continue our efforts to protect Moon Island. "The next siting issue will be the Calf Pasture Sewer Facility which is now at the end of Columbia Point. "They're attempting to relocate that and they're looking to Moon Island. "We've preserved Moon Island from one siting, but shortly they'll be another siting to work against." For now, Nutley was savoring the city's victory. "I am just delighted that the governor listened to the public input by everybody and had concern for Quincy and the heavily populated area of North Quincy and the impact a prison would have had on us. "While a prison there may not be totally acceptable, the fact that it is a commercial industrial area made it a far better choice than Moon Island." Nutley also expressed his thanks to the state legislators, mayor of Quincy, the Committee to Save Moon Island, the Squantum Community Association and the Atlantic Neighborhood Association. "I think the rally last week went a long way towards dramatizing the reasons the jail should go to Southamp-ton St. rather than to Moon Island. "There were over 400 people in attendance, and 100 were not able to get in because of lack of parking. "Now we can look forward to a proper use of Moon Island and Long Island. "There will certainly be a celebration in Squantum."

Rodriguez: Quincy Has Maintained Compliance Status

Quincy has maintained its compliance status, according to Alex Rodriguez, chairman of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination.

And no accusation with respect to bad faith was either intended or made by him in a recent news article.

That's the opinion of Gov. Michael Dukakis as stated in a recent letter to Mayor Francis McCauley.

McCauley wrote to Rodriguez in March to express his "deep concern over the public behavior" of Rodriguez.

"Mr. Rodriguez has asserted that Quincy has not made a good faith effort to comply with Affirmative Action and Fair Housing goals," stated McCauley.

"These public remarks are contrary to the ongoing dialogue and program success we have had with the MCAD during the past two years, and are an example of Mr. Rodriguez's fondness for making irresponsible and unfounded charges in the media prior to even initiating a dialogue with the city, town

Early News Deadline For Next Week's Sun

Because of the Memorial Day holiday, there will be an early news deadline for next week's Quincy Sun.

All news and sports

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

There were fireworks at the City Council meeting Monday night even though it's the Memorial Day holiday that's approaching, not the Fourth of July.

As the council prepared to vote on the 1987 municipal budget, Councillor Joseph LaRaia attempted to cut the money for the mayor's and council's raises which had been approved by the Finance Committee without discussion last week.

LaRaia was blocked by other councillors, some of whom said he was using the issue for political reasons. Some heated exchanges followed.

At last week's committee meeting, LaRaia and Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro voted against raising the mayor's salary from $40,000 a year to $45,000 a year in 1987.

The second half of the raise will be to $50,000 a year in 1988.

Councillors DeCristofaro and James Sheets voted against the council raise from $6,500 to $9,000 a year in 1987.

LaRaia, a former mayor who has been mentioned as a potential mayoral candidate in the future, had made a motion to reconsider the council raise because he said he wanted to vote against the council raise, but had voted for it inadvertently.

However, the move to reconsider failed to receive enough votes.

After questioning City Solicitor Joseph ("Jay") MacRitchie Monday night on parliamentary procedures, LaRaia proposed that $11,250 for the council raises be deleted from the budget.

That motion failed to receive a second.

LaRaia then made a motion to reduce the budget by $2,500, the amount needed for the mayor's raise from Jan. 1, 1987 to June 30, 1987.

"It's obvious what Councillor LaRaia is doing," said Councillor Michael Cheney. "He's opening up the issue for public comment and for tomorrow afternoon or evening's paper."

Cheney seconded the motion so that the issue could be discussed by the council.

"One of the most difficult

Lydon Says:

Zoning Changes Policy For Future

Planning Director James Lydon feels that the City Council's zoning changes

Monday night aimed at controlling development "made an important policy statement relative to the city in the future."

But City Councillor James Sheets, whose ward in West Quincy has seen much development, would have preferred stronger action in at least one of the areas.

The council voted to impose a limit of 110 feet above grade for buildings built in the city. The limitation is part of an amendment introduced by Mayor Francis McCauley in January.

It also increased the square feet per dwelling unit in areas zoned for Planned Unit Development from 250 to 1,000. The mayor had proposed 2,000 square feet.

The 1,000 square feet limit was suggested by Councillor John Lydon.

"By increasing the minimum in both areas, the Planning Board and City Council are saying to the general developer 'we want to see proposals less dense,'" said Lydon.

The 110 foot limit reflects a voter referendum in 1984, said Lydon who had suggested a 130 foot limit for commercial buildings.

"My fear had been that 110 would perhaps place more stringent limits on commercial construction than residential, but it appears the most difficult area has been residential construction."

Lydon noted that the P.U.D. change is three times greater than the previous minimum.

"The effect of the changes is not so much in the area of absolute regulation as much

Board Denies License For Automotive Center

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The City License Board denied a request from Seymour Norman, Magic Automotive Center, for a license to do rustproofing and storing gasoline at 216-224 West Squantum St. The board cited offensive odors from the exhaust fumes, flammable materials and a close proximity to homes in the area.

Ward 3 Councillor John Lydon told Norman that a "change for the better will be offered in long range planning for the Montclair community" and that the changes would not include rustproofing.

Police Chief Francis Finn showed Norman a petition signed by area residents opposing the rustproofing.

Although Norman was without legal counsel, a request for a continuance was denied.

The board continued a hearing regarding Piccarini Auto Sales at 24 Raymond St. Area residents have complained and showed pictures regarding buses and trailers parked outside the licensed area.

Photographs shown also included trucks filled with trash and a large dog running free in the area.

June Piccarini appeared before the board with Atty. James Shannon. However, because John Gillis was not present at the hearing, Finn said the hearing would be continued with a full board on June 10.

In other action the board:

- Granted a request for an antique auction at the Sons of Italy Social Center May 27 at 120 Quarry St.

- Granted a request from Joseph I. Manton, Inc., known as the transfer of CV-AA license as held by Gail Sull, Inc. After the board reviewed the financial statement in a closed session, the request was granted.

- Granted a request from the United First Parish (Unitarian) Church for a permit to conduct a Strawberry Festival and Flea Market May 31 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

- Granted a request from North Quincy High School varsity and softball team for a permit for canning, May 23 and 24.

- Granted a request from the South Shore Stroke Club, Inc., for a permit for a yard sale June 22 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the parking lot of the First Bank on Granite St.

- Granted a request from the Sunday P.M. Couples League, for a one-day alcoholic license May 31 from 7 p.m. to midnight at the Knights of Columbus Hall, North Quincy.

- Granted a request from the North Quincy High School Drama Club for canning dates May 30 and 31.

- Granted a request to Paul C. DeFazio for a one-day alcoholic license for a wedding reception June 1 from 4 p.m. to midnight at the Knights of Columbus Hall, North Quincy.

Creedon Rape Case Sent To Grand Jury

A Norfolk County grand jury will decide whether there is sufficient evidence to indict former Quincy School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon and another man in the alleged rape of a homeless woman.

Judge Gordon A. Martin, Jr. in Quincy District Court last week found probable cause against Creedon and Dennis M. Anderson of Boston.

The pair have pleaded innocent to rape and indecent assault and battery charges in connection with the incident alleged to have taken place March 21 in Creedon's home.

The woman told police at the time that she was picked up by the two men in Boston's South End and raped in Creedon's Quincy home.

At the first day of the hearing last week, the woman's testimony was confused and she indicated that she was not assaulted by the men.

However, Judge Martin ruled that there was enough to believe an assault did occur.

On the second day of the hearing, Atty. Richard Barry, who represented Creedon, noted that during a "fleeing lucid moment" of the woman's testimony, she denied being touched by the men.

Atty. Ronald W. Rice, the lawyer for Anderson, asked that no probable cause be found against his client because the woman testified that the incident didn't happen.

However, Asst. Dist. Atty. Marianne Hinkle, the prosecutor, stressed the statements the woman made to police immediately after she left Creedon's house half drressed.

Hinkle said the woman stopped a newspaper carrier and his father and told them she had been raped by two men and asked to be taken to the police station. Hinkle said.

Hinkle also said that Creedon's admission to police had been very close to what the woman said at the time of the alleged incident.

Judge Martin said there were serious doubts about the woman's ability to consent, and found probable cause against the two men.

Creedon was Quincy School Superintendent from 1968 to 1984. He resigned in August, 1984, amidst allegations by three women that he made sexual advances towards them. The allegations were never proved.

Brownell Praises Dukakis' Jail Siting Decision

Rep. Thomas I. Brownell (D-Quincy) said that Gov. Michael Dukakis made a "sound and fair decision" to locate the new Suffolk County House of Correction at Southampton St., Boston.

"My office has always maintained that Southampton St. is the best site for a correctional facility. Now that the prison siting process appears to be over, we have an opportunity to preserve both Moon Island and Long Island for recreational purposes."

Rep. Brownell continued, "Actually, the Governor has made more than a siting decision. He has committed $40 million towards developing the South Bay Area. That's a big plus for the City of Boston. Consequently I'm sure that the package will be approved in the legislature."

Brownell also said, "I've though the list of options should not have included Moon Island, the process administered by Secretary

Frank Keefe was fair and thorough, especially when you consider the 90-day deadline. By making a good choice, on time, the administration has also done a great deal towards cleaning up Boston Harbor in an expeditious manner."

NATURAL GAS THE MODERN ALTERNATIVE

Take a big load off laundry costs with a new gas dryer.

- Nothing dries clothes more economically than a natural gas dryer. Clean, efficient gas dries more loads than electric dryers do for the same cost.
- Nothing dries clothes faster than a natural gas dryer. It moves more warm air through the drying drum.
- A reliable gas dryer maintains its efficiency year after year. Your dryer lasts longer.

Burning calories before you eat them? Take control with a gas range.

- Professional chefs demand natural gas ranges for the precise temperature control they need.
- Only a clean, gas flame adjusts instantly from high heat to low, low to high and everything in between.
- A gas range's flexible flame hugs every size pot and pan perfectly, for total heat distribution.
- With gas, there's no warm-up or cool-down delay. You start cooking instantly, and have control to stop boiling over, burning and splattering.

Final Ship Christening Marks 'End Of Era'

"We will watch her go with sadness, knowing that a great era is coming to an end," said Gary S. Grimes Saturday as General Dynamics Quincy Shipbuilding Division christened its last ship, the Sgt. William R. Button.

The shipyard is scheduled to close next month.

The yard, along the Fore River, has been building ships for 102 years from sail craft, to submarines, destroyers, cruisers, battleships and aircraft carriers.

During World War II it was affectionately known as Uncle Sam's right arm.

The Sgt. William R. Button is the fifth and final Maritime Prepositioning Ship being built for the U.S. Navy by General Dynamics.

The mission of the 22,700-ton, Quincy-designed ships is to provide support for the U.S. Rapid Deployment Force.

Grimes, corporate vice president and general manager, was among the speakers at the ceremony which included remarks by Stanley O. Pace, chairman and chief executive officer of General Dynamics Corporation.

Guest speaker was General Paul X. Kelley, commandant, U.S. Marine Corps.

An address was given by Cong. Silvio O. Conte.

The Rev. Joseph J. Downey, pastor of St. Joseph's Church Quincy Point, blessed the ship which was christened by Mrs. Alfred A. DiTullio, wife of a shipyard employee.

Mrs. DiTullio represented all the shipyard workers, their wives and families over the past 102 years who made the Quincy shipyard a world leader in the shipbuilding industry, according to General Dynamics.

Her family represents over 232 years of dedication to Quincy shipbuilding.

Sgt. Button received the Medal of Honor for extraordinary heroism in the line of his profession, and for his eminent and conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity in actual conflict with the enemy near Grande Riviere, Haiti, on the night of Oct. 31-Nov. 1, 1919.

Following a furlough to his hometown of St. Louis, Sgt. Button returned to Haiti. Less than a year later, he died of pernicious malaria.

Sgt. Button's great nephew,

Ralph Francis, attended the ceremonies.

"Soon after this christening," continued Grimes, "the Sgt. William R. Button will leave Quincy to join her sister ships to begin what we know will be a long and successful career in service to our nation.

"As she passes, through the Fore River Bridge, we also know that this will be the last ship built by General Dynamics at the Quincy Shipyard.

"...We will watch her go with pride, knowing that she is as good as any ship we have ever built and that she carries with her a great tradition to which thousands of men and women from this shipyard have made their own personal contributions since the beginning of this century.

"We will know in our hearts that we have done our jobs well and that the Sgt. William R. Button will remain a final tribute to us all.

"Then we will turn our attention once more to the future; and wherever that future takes us, each of us will know that because of our efforts, Quincybuilt will always be the best thing you can say about a ship."

BALLOONS were released after the christening of the Sgt. William R. Button, the last ship to be built at the General Dynamics Quincy shipyard.

Workers Should Not Give Up, Says Cheney

Workers at General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard should not give up, said Councillor Michael Cheney at Monday night's meeting.

The shipyard christened its last ship Saturday and is scheduled to close next month.

"We're still working on a resolution of some kind of jobs for shipbuilding," said Cheney, who commended the efforts of Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro and Rep. Robert Cerasoli.

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

A sincere "job well done" is due city of Quincy Cemetery section of Mount Wollaston prepared, an American flag marking each veteran's grave.

It is altogether fitting and proper that we do this. We freedoms. We are charged with keeping alive and vivid their deeds and above all, their ultimate sacrifice.

No community can take greater pride than Quincy

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Steve Downing, Manager

REAL ESTATE - A GOOD INVESTMENT

QUESTION: Ownership of a single home has always been viewed as a prize necessity. Is it a good investment vehicle also?

ANSWER: For every investor who makes a killing in the stock market, you'll find another who has been hurt badly. This rarely happens in real estate. It's a stable and safe investment which doesn't fluctuate from day to day which is good for ulcer-prone investors. Then there's leverage.
Real estate can be purchased by using 20 percent down, whereas other investments require 50-100 percent cash. The outlook is still rosy. The national housing shortage will have a continued upward affect on single home prices and tax incentives are super.

IF YOU ARE ULCER-PRONE, real estate is a healthier investment than stocks.

LaRaia And The Pay Raises

Some City Hall observers think they just saw Joseph LaRaia take another step toward next year's mayoral ring.

LaRaia

That's how they interpret his unsuccessful efforts to derail pay raises for the mayor and council colleagues.

In Finance Committee last week
LaRaia voted against raising the mayor's salary from $40,000 to $45,000 next year. He was joined by Councillor Ted DeCristofaro. Another $5,000 hike for the mayor will come in 1988, raising the salary to $50,000.

LaRaia in committee voted for a $2,500 pay hike for the council which would bring the council's pay to $9,000 a year.

This week at the regular council meeting LaRaia tried to cut funds for both the mayor's and council's raises out of the budget.

His turnaround on the council's raise, he explained, was that last week the matter got by him before he realized he was voting for council raises.

His attempts to kill the raises intrigue City Hall observers who think he will make them a campaign issue if he runs for mayor next year. And it looks more and more like he will run.

LaRaia has voted for mayoral raises in the past-- including bringing it from $10,000 to $25,000 when the job went from part-time to full-time and then up to $40,000.

For the record, he said he voted against another raise because he feels the mayor's duties are now less than they were a few years ago.

He pointed to the placing of Quincy Hospital under private management and said: "Supervisory control of Quincy City Hospital has been relinquished and that's like hiring an assistant to the mayor."

But LaRaia watchers think he might make a campaign issue of the pay raise matter.

Like, something along the line that when a man runs for the office of mayor, he knows what the salary is and, if elected, should be willing to serve at that salary.

And, if a candidate thinks the mayor deserves more money, he should say so during a campaign and not afterwards.

The mayor's salary went to $25,000 when Walter Hannon took over as a full-time chief executive.

In four years, during Mayor
Francis McCauley's tenure, the pay has gone from $25,000 to $40,000 and will rise to $45,000 next year and $50,000 in 1988. If he runs for a fourth term and wins, it will mean the salary will have doubled while he is in office.

HANNON

Some observers think that LaRaia will make it a point to promise he will not seek a pay raise if he runs for mayor next year.

But there are people who believe that even at $50,000, the mayor of Quincy would be underpaid. That he still would be making less than a number of his department heads. That no chief executive of a corporation is making less than his assistants.

It's an issue that certainly could be debated and one
Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public might pay a little attention to.
Especially if they would be satisfied with a $25 or $50 pay hike themselves.

Meanwhile, LaRaia seems to be making the rounds more and more -- getting around and talking to people.

As one astute City Haller puts it: "He sure is acting like he's running for mayor."

GERALD D'AMICO who won the Democratic party endorsement for lieutenant governor at the state convention, carried the Quincy delegation -- by one.
D'Amico got 36 of the Quincy delegates voting and Evelyn Murphy 35.

Among those with D'Amico were Rep. Michael Morrissey, Rep. Thomas Brownell, Rep. Suzanne Bump of Braintree, School Committeewoman Mary Collins and former City Councillor Leo Kelly.

Among those with Murphy were Norfolk County
Treasurer Dan Raymond, Rep. Robert Cerasoli, City Councillors Patricia Toland, Ted DeCristofaro and Michael Cheney and School Committee Vice-Chairman Steve Durkin.

The lineups had an interesting footnote. For example, Raymond and Toland who seldom see eye to eye politically, both did this time, backing Murphy.
And Collins and Toland, who usually agree on most things, were in opposite camps this time.

ANSELMO

SCHOOL COMMITTEEMAN
Frank Anselmo's grandson, Tim Sipples, keeps costing him money and Anselmo is delighted.

Tim is the son of Frank's daughter,
Francene who is a Quincy High School graduate and now a practicing attorney in Clinton, Ct.

To give Tim a little extra incentive in school, Anselmo promised he would give him $10 for every A he got in high school.

It has cost Poppa, as Tim calls him, a few hundred dollars.

This past school year at the Morgan School in Connecticut will give you an idea: Tim has racked up 34
A's.

Not only that, but he has been selected by the White House Commission on Presidential Scholars as one of the 500 most outstanding high school seniors in the country and named a semi-finalist in the selection for 141 Presidential Scholars.

In addition to that, Tim has already been accepted at Harvard, M.I.T., John Hopkins and Chicago University. He plans to go to Harvard as an economic major.

And, proud Poppa, is going to do better than $10 for each A. He's going to pay half the tuition.

WJDA's Herb Fontaine will be among those waiting on tables at the "Celebrity Waiters' Dinner" at the Sheraton Tara Hotel in Braintree, Wednesday, May 28.

FONTAINE

The dinner is to raise funds for Association to help children and adults with lung disease.

A number of sports, political and business celebrities will wait on the tables.

Nice gesture, Herb. But be careful. Don't spill the soup.

FAMILY AFFAIR: Saturday will be a big day for the Doherty family of Squantum.

Mrs. Louise Doherty, her son, John, and daughter, Amanda, will celebrate their birthdays together.

coming in from Ansonia, Conn. the party is being held Saturday instead.

Mrs. Doherty, a widow, raised eight children.

One In 5 American Adults Suffer Mental Disorders

A recent study by the National Institute of Mental Health, inflicts almost 29 million adult Americans, or one in five, suffer from disabling mental disorders ranging from anxiety to severe schizophrenia.

Since 1953, May has been designated Mental Health Month. During May and throughout the year, volunteers, staff and supporters of the South Shore Mental Health Center (SSMHC) are "Working for the South Shore's Mental Health."

"The door is opening for South Shore residents who need help dealing with the many stresses we face in life today," said Atty. Peter L. Eeley, of Quincy, president of SSMHC.

"In Massachusetts there are mandated mental health benefits for those who have insurance. Restrictions are being removed to let people with a mental illness stay in their community and lead normal, productive lives.

"There's no cure yet. But through research, new treatments are being used to help people who didn't have a chance just a few years ago."

The National Institute's study however, discovered that new treatments are not enough. Of the 29 million people who were found to have mental illness, only 20 percent sought professional help for their illness. This clearly shows how the powerful stigma attached to mental illness keeps people from seeking the help they need.

According to the latest statistics, the most frequent disorders for men are alcohol abuse/dependence, phobia, drug abuse/dependence and dysthymia (despondency). For women, phobia, major depressive episodes without grief, dysthymia and obsessive-compulsive disorders, are the most reported disorders.

Suicides by persons under the age of 35 increased dramatically between 1958 and 1982 from 19 to 41 percent. Suicide was the third leading cause of death for this age group in 1983.

During the 1980 (latest figures), total expenditure for mental health care in America was estimated to be between $19.4 and $24.1 billion. The Health Insurance Association of America in 1983 estimated this figure to jump to $85.7 billion by the year 2000.

The SSMHC is helping patients, their families and the public learn the facts about mental health and mental illnesses, and is helping to reduce the stigma and misconceptions about people with mental illness.

For more information call SSMHC at 847-1950.

Dial Phone Service Readied

New England Telephone and Telegraph announced plans for the construction of a new exchange building in Quincy Center.

Wilfred Rhodes, manager of the Quincy district said that the new building will provide dial phone service for the first time for the city's 16,000 subscribers. It was estimated that it would take up to a year to change Quincy's phones from operator service to dial service, but that in the long run the new service would be faster and more economical.

ELABORATE CEREMONIES FOR OPENING OF 1840 TUBE

The 300th anniversary of the incorporation of the ancient town of Braintree was marked with elaborate ceremonies at the First Parish Church this week.

Under the direction of William Edwards, a tube sealed in 1840 was opened by Governor Leverett Saltonstall and Boston Mayor Maurice Tobin (a former "bare-footed Quincy boy").

The tube was sealed in 1840, with instructions that it not be opened for 100 years. It was originally left in the care of Josiah Quincy, Jr. and in recent years was kept in the vault in the office of City Clerk Emery Crane.

The tube contained old newspapers, sermons, etc. as well as a message, signed by the town folk of 1840.

As part of the ceremonies, a new copper tube was sealed (made by students of Quincy Trade School) to be opened in 2040. The new tube contained a message from President Franklin Roosevelt as well as a message signed by those participating in the ceremonies.

From Paint To Gun At Toxic Collection Day

Everything from old lead-based paint to a 32-caliber handgun were brought to the city's first Household Hazardous Waste Collection Day Saturday which had twice as many participants as anticipated.

A total of 703 cars loaded with household hazardous waste went through the collection site at the Department of Public Works, 55 Sea St., according to David Smith, the city's personnel director and acting public health administrator.

Smith said that 138, 55-gallon drums were filled with hazardous waste, twice as many as had been anticipated, for the collection day which cost the city $45,000.

Inland Pollution of Braintree was hired by the city to seal the household toxics in drums and transport them out of state for disposal.

Most people brought such items as old lead-based paint, turpentine, outdated insecticides and used oil from cars, according to Smith.

However, an elderly woman whose husband had passed away and found the handgun and some ammunition in her cellar and brought that to the collection day, said Smith, who added that it was given to the police department.

Most people experienced a 45-minute to one hour wait to reach the collection site, and at one point, cars were backed onto Sea St., Smith said.

Residents participating in the collection day were required, by law, to stay in their car until they reached the waste disposal site, Smith said.

Then they brought the material over to a table where four chemists were available to examine it and determine if it was acceptable. Ten people packed the material which was accepted, according to Smith.

A small quantity of material was not accepted, such as items which contained Agent Orange, a common herbicide until recently, Smith said.

He said that those with such material should keep it until the federal government determines what can be done with it.

"It's a Catch 22 situation," said Smith.

Also refused were aerosol cans "because of their explosive nature," Smith said. "It's best to use up all the contents of the can, and then put it in the regular rubbish pickup," he said.

"Most people were very glad that the collection day was held," said Smith. "They said that they had had the material in their cellars for 20 to 30 years."

The city is talking about having another collection day, Smith said, and is determining how much time should be allowed before another such event is scheduled.

Smith noted that the day was a success because of the work of such people as David Colton, deputy director of the Department of Public Works, Robert Federico, Superintendent of Highways; Heather Sargent, Public Works Department; Mary Quinn, Quincy League of Women Voters; and Anthony Siciliano, deputy director of Civil Defense.

Clown And Mime Teach Red Cross First Aid At Merrymount School

Students at the Merrymount School received basic first aid instruction via two funny visual aids known as Dollee and Debbie. The Merrymount School is one of three elementary schools on the South Shore participating in this American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay pilot program.

Dollee and Debbie are a clown and a mime who teach some first aid to elementary school students in an entertaining manner through skits, mime, clowning, dance and puppetry. Both of them are certified by the Red Cross to teach first aid.

"First Aid with Dollee and Debbie" is a 30-45 minute show that demonstrates proper ways to handle emergencies such as choking, poisoning, sprained ankle, nose bleeds. The show holds the students' attention and draws reactions from them. A grant from the Gillette Company has made these shows possible.

Dollee "The Clown" Mollare is originally from San Francisco and appeared at many events in that area. Since her arrival in the Boston area in 1981, Dollee has freelanced at schools, conventions, parties and commercial promotions. She co-founded "Dollee and Debbie" in 1983. Dollee has studied her art with several well-known clowns of the United States and of other countries. She is also a tap dancer.

Debbie "The Mime" O'Carroll is from Newburyport and attended Emerson College and Lesley College Graduate School. She was one of the original members of the acclaimed Pocket Mime Theater in 1971. She has performed with famous mime, Trent Arterberry; composer, Steven Scotti and the Opera Company of Boston. She is a co-founder of "Dollee and Debbie" and when not performing, she designs costumes and teaches mime and mask-making.

Due to another grant from the Gillette Company, the Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay will be able to provide additional "First Aid with Dollee and Debbie" shows in the fall. The grant for the shows is available to the entire American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay which is comprised of seven regions. The South Shore Red Cross is one of those seven regions that will be offering a limited number of shows after September 1986. The shows are geared for grades kindergarten through third and are free.

Any elementary school interested in learning more about this imaginative approach to teaching first aid and other Red Cross programs can contact Merle Jones Lindsay at the South Shore Red Cross, 471-5440.

St. Anthony's Festival: Cardinal Law To Celebrate Mass At St. John's June 7

The 11th annual St. Anthony's Festival, sponsored by St. John's Parish of Quincy, will be held on the church grounds, School St., Quincy Center Friday, June 6 from 6 p.m. until 11 p.m. and Saturday, June 7 from 12 noon until 11 p.m.

Bernard Cardinal Law, Archbishop of Boston, will be the guest celebrant and homilist for the Festival Mass at 4 p.m. June 7. This special consecrated Mass will be in the Italian language and will be followed by an outdoor procession in honor of St. Anthony.

St. Anthony's Festival is Italian in spirit and flavor. Young and old will enjoy a wide variety of foods and pastries. There will be special events, booths, games, prizes, music and singing. Proceeds from the Festival benefit the parish charities and building fund.

St. Anthony's Festival has become one of the most popular religious, social and cultural events on the South Shore. All are welcome and admission is free.

The Islamic Center of New England, 470 South St., Quincy, which started with Muslim families who settled in Quincy at the turn of the century, was built in 1964.

In 1981, four classrooms and a new social hall were added to accommodate the growing needs of the community.

This year, the Center is building a rectory and guest house. The contractor is Derbes Bros. Co. The Derbes brothers are Arab-Americans and staunch members of the Islamic Center since the time of its inception.

Members of the Quincy center, like seven million other Muslims in the U.S.A. and 800 million Muslims in the world are observing a fast for the month of Ramadan, the holiest month of the Islamic lunar calendar. It is started May 9, and is a month of devotion and fasting. Drinking, eating, smoking, and coitus are forbidden during the hours from dawn to sunset. The pleasures of life resume after dark, but nothing can pass between the lips during the day.

Depending on the phases of the moon, Ramadan begins 11 days earlier each successive solar year. This year, the fast began May 9.

Fasting is one of the five pillars of Islam. It is obligatory for every adult Muslim, man and woman. Fasting teaches self-restraint and self-discipline. It is not meant to be a simple denial of pleasures, but the virtue is in monitoring and mastering one's own desires and urges, so that they become under control.

Fasting is required year after year so that a person renews his strength of will and ultimately learns to make this will power an integral part of everyday life. Fasting kindles the spirit of compassion and sympathy toward those who are less fortunate and breaks down the barriers of arrogance and inequality between all human beings.

At the end of Ramadan, June 9, the holiday (Eid Al-Fitr) will be celebrated by much festivity and joy. The culmination of Ramadan is the payment of alms (zakat) to the poor, an obligation of every Muslim on completing his fast. This system which is fourteen hundred years old was the first welfare system in consideration for the needy in society.

The cost of the rectory and guest house is being met by donations from the generous contributions of members of the Center. The members who are American citizens are from 23 different countries and number over 200 families. On the holiday marking the end of Ramadan, 1500 Muslims will attend the mosque for prayer.

The celebration of the Eid, like Christian and Jewish holidays will include the exchanging of gifts, the sporting of new clothes, the sharing of food and a general sense of well-being. Muslims will be taking time off from work and school in order to spend this special time together.
